LLOYD GEORGE, EAGER FOR FRAY, SAILS FOR HOME

'At Beginning of Big Things,' He Says, on Departing, 'and I Am Not Through With Them.'

SORRY TO LEAVE THIS HOSPITABLE PEOPLE'

Former British Premier to Rest, but Not for Long, in Preparation for 'Struggles to Come.'

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—David Lloyd George, former Premier of Great Britain, sailed for home on the steamship Majestic today, after a triumphant tour of American cities with his wife, Dame Margaret, and daughter, Miss Megan.

Right up to the minute of sailing, in his cabin and on the broad decks of the steamer, he was besieged by officials and delegations wishing him Godspeed. Among those who called to say farewell were John W. Davis, former Ambassador to the Court of St. James, who was host to the former Premier during his stay in New York; Secretary James J. Davis of the Department of Labor; Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, and R. A. C. Smith, head of a delegation of the citizen's committee of New York.

Receiving newspaper men, Lloyd George said:

"I am very sorry to leave this hospitable country and warm-hearted people."

Struggles to Come.

A laudatory resolution was presented to him on behalf of ship news reporters. In acknowledging it the former Premier said the sentiments expressed would be a great help to him "In the struggles to come."

"We are just at the beginning of big things," he added, "and I am not through with them."

Asked what he intended to do when he returned to England, he said he would have a rest, adding: "But a rest never lasts very long."

Impression of Audiences.

Replying to questions concerning his impressions of American audiences, Lloyd George said he had found "the American people very interested in European affairs; very interested in the point of view. They wanted to hear, whether they agreed or not."

The American people, Lloyd George continued, made very good audiences and were up to the very best, adding: "Everywhere I went I was welcomed. That touched me most of all. They were very glad to see me."

As to the effectiveness of any cooperation between Great Britain and the United States as urged by Lloyd George in his addresses on this continent he said: "It depends upon whether you follow through."

If there is any doubt on the part of France that England and America don't intend to go through, then it will not go through, he said.

Great Britain and the United States made a contribution to the world war without which, said the former Premier, France today would be a vassal state and, therefore, France cannot help giving consideration to our points of view; especially as France in the world war was fighting for her own land, whereas Great Britain and the United States went in for the cause.

The former Premier emphatically declared that, in his opinion, if the reparations program was agreed upon by Great Britain, the United States and France, the difficulties of Europe could be cleared up.

An account of Lloyd George's farewell speech will be found on Page 9.

AIR TRAFFIC VIOLATOR ARRESTED

Flyer at Akron, O., Taken in Chase by World War Ace.

By the Associated Press.

AKRON, O., Nov. 3.—After chasing Pilot Howard Calvert and his passenger, Frank O'Neill, through the skies in an airplane yesterday, Harold Kullberg, volunteer aerial policeman and former World War ace, made what is believed here to be the first arrest of a violator of air traffic rules in this country.

Calvert and O'Neill were arrested after they landed at Stow aviation field. They were charged with stunt flying over the city in violation of an ordinance passed recently by the City Council.

Girl Electrocuted While in Bath.

By the Associated Press.

GREAT BEND, Kan., Nov. 3.—Miss Ardella McInnis, 18 years old, died here yesterday when she attempted to attach an electric stove cord to a light socket, while in her bath. Artificial respiration and the administrating of adrenalin failed to resuscitate her. A Hallowe'en party was to have been held at the McInnis home last night.

ZEV AND MY OWN RACE FOR $50,000 AT LATONIA TODAY

Rival 3-Year-Old Thoroughbreds to Run Mile and Three-Quarters in Championship Stakes.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 3.—Zev, winner of the Kentucky Derby and conqueror of Papyrus, champion of England, will today race for the second time in Kentucky, the State of his birth, with the prospects of emerging as the world's greatest money-winning race horse of all time.

The strapping brown colt, owned by Harry F. Sinclair of New York, millionaire oil operator, goes to the post with his most formidable American rival, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson's My Own, in the Latonia Championship Stakes, worth $50,000 to the victor.

Zev, to date, has won a total of $265,073, more than $15,000 greater than Man o' War's winnings, which previously held the American money-winning record.

Distance a Mile and Three-Quarters.

The race, at the gruelling distance of a mile and three-quarters, attracted three other starters in addition to Zev and My Own, none of which, in the opinion of turf experts, has a chance.

The other entrants are Rialto, owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney of New York; In Memoriam, the property of Carl Weideman of Newport, Ky., and Taylor Hay, whose owner is C. W. Hay, one of the presiding stewards of the Latonia meeting.

The track at Latonia was lightning fast early today, but this afternoon a drizzling rain began falling, with indications it would continue all afternoon. Early in the day the sky was cloudy, with a prediction from the Weather Bureau of showers for later in the day.

Admirers of the Grayson colt, My Own, have contended all year that he could defeat Zev over a fast track.

Earl Sande, a 115-pound bundle of nerves, who rode the Fancocas colt to victory in the Kentucky Derby and against Papyrus, will be in the saddle on Zev this afternoon.

Rear Admiral Grayson selected Earl Pool, a consistent winner on Kentucky tracks to ride My Own.

Frankie Coltilletti, an Eastern jockey, will have the mount on Rialto, while Mack Garner, highly regarded on the Kentucky tracks will ride In Memoriam. Larry McDermott will pilot Taylor Hay, provided he goes to the post.

Long Odds for Outsiders.

Both Zev and My Own are expected to go to the post at short prices. Backers of Rialto and In Memoriam are expected to receive at least ten to one in the pari-mutuel wagering, while My Own and Zev probably will be about 8 to 5 and 3 to 5 respectively. The price on Taylor Hay, the turf experts said, probably would be as high as 200 to 1.

Zev, refreshed by a night's sleep after travelling from the east was taken out for a limbering up gallop this morning. The other contenders also are expected to get a warming up exercise and then be returned to the barns to await the call of the bugle. Zev and My Own slept under the same roof within thirty feet of each other last night. Both were under guard of special police who patrolled the immediate surroundings throughout the night.

Today's race with favorable weather conditions will attract the greatest throng that ever jammed the Latonia race course.

Matt Winn, general manager of the Kentucky Jockey club, estimated that at least 50,000 spectators would be within the gates. Every reserved seat has been sold, leaving only standing room and unreserved sections of the grandstand.

Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty and President Coolidge's secretary, Bascom Slemp, arrived in Cincinnati during the morning and went directly to the track. A party headed by Edward B. McLean also came on from Washington.

PART OF STREET CLOSED TO AUTOS AFTER SEWER CAVE-IN

Suspension of automobile traffic over Chippewa street at Broadway was ordered at 10:30 a. m. today following a cave-in several feet square of the Gasconade sewer at the alley just west of Broadway.

United Railways engineers are inspecting the street to determine if it is safe for street car traffic. Beside Broadway cars on Broadway, Lee cars run on Broadway and Chippewa, and the Jefferson loop is at the intersection.

Further danger is somewhat lessened by an 18-inch sheathing of concrete over the sewer, which is 10 by 11 feet. Ernest Paffrath, superintendent of sewers, said this sewer had repeatedly been reported in need of repair, but there had been no funds for the purpose before the passing of the $87,000,000 bond issue.

BROKEN SHOE LACE GAVE CLEW TO STOLEN GOBELIN TAPESTRIES

One New String Found in Shoe of Man Arrested—Thumb Prints Similar to Those on Window.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

PARIS, Nov. 3.—The two priceless Gobelin tapestries stolen recently from the Palace of Versailles have been recovered.

Traced by a broken shoe lace, a piece of which he had left in the palace, Prosper Charles, a bricklayer of Versailles, has been arrested. Having been employed at one time in the Palace, he was one of those watched by the police after the recent daring robbery.

Detectives who visited Charles' rooms discovered a pair of shoes with one new lace corresponding to the piece found in the Salon de Mercury, from which the tapestries had been taken. His thumb prints were subsequently found to correspond with those on the window pane of the chateau through which the burglars entered.

Charles protested his innocence but, pursuing the trail, the detectives went to his accomplices' quarters, a shanty in a mean street of Versailles. The two tapestries were discovered in a granary. One is intact, the other, representnig the Siege of Doual, is cut into 12 pieces.

The tenant of the shack, named Nouvain, has fled. Both he and Charles are communists.

COOLIDGE'S OPINION OF EFFECT OF PROPOSED LIQUOR TREATY

Believes It Will Merely Abolish Penalties Against Foreign Ships Carrying Sealed Liquor Stores.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—President Coolidge is of the opinion that a provision in the proposed liquor treaty with Great Britain permitting British ships to bring sealed liquor stores within the three-mile limit would have the effect merely, so far as domestic law is concerned, of abolishing the penalties now assessed by the Volstead act against foreign vessels bringing liquor into American territorial waters.

So far as the question of such a provision conflicting with the Constitution, as interpreted by the Supreme Court in the ship liquor cases is concerned, Mr. Coolidge believes it would be in no more conflict than the exemption now given foreign ships in passing through the Panama Canal.

CROWD APPLAUDS WOMAN RESISTING PAYROLL ROBBERS

Mrs. Andrew Schaefer Kicks Stool in Face of One of Band Who Hold Up Husband in Auto.

BETWEEN $500 AND $1000 OBTAINED

Screams of Victim's Wife Attract Factory Employes and Residents of Neighborhood to Scene.

Factory employes and residents at Garrison avenue and North Market street witnessed a payroll holdup at 11:30 a. m. today, in which Andrew I. Schaefer, president of the Andrew Schaefer Supply and Wrecking Co., reported he was robbed of between $500 and $1000.

Mrs. Schaefer and her 12-year-old son, Russell, were with Schaefer in his Ford coupe when the robbery occured. The factory employes applauded when Mrs. Schaefer kicked a stool into the face of one of the robbers, and several women spectators withdrew from their doorways and windows, fearing that Mrs. Schaefer might be shot for her spunk. However, the robbers contended themselves with taking the money and escaped in a big touring car.

Some of Money Paid Out.

Schaefer told the police that after drawing $1800 from bank to meet his weekly payroll, he had paid much of the money off at his office at 3600 Clarence avenue, because many of the men were not working today on account of the rain and had come to the office for their wages.

He then got into his coupe to go to a job at Washington and Garrison avenues to pay off men who were at work there. Mrs. Schaefer had some shopping to do, so she and her son accompanied him. Schaefer was not sure about the amount of money he still carried, but Mrs. Schaefer said she did not believe it was much more than $500.

They drove south on Garrison avenue and as they approached North Market street, five men in a large touring car drove up alongside of the coupe. One man with a handkerchief over his face jumped on the running board of the coupe and ordered Schaefer to hand over his money.

Screams Draw Crowd.

Mrs. Schaefer began screaming. Employes of Pecco, Inc., came out from the factory. Women living along Garrison avenue stuck their heads out at doors and windows. Two more robbers then left the large car and ran to the side of the coupe where Mrs. Schaefer was sitting. They waved their revolvers at her and commanded silence. She continued screaming. One of the robbers then began feeling about the laprobe which covered her and asked her if she had any money. She kicked the stool, on which her son had been sitting. It struck the robber's face.

Meanwhile Schaefer had taken a bundle of pay envelopes from his inside coat pocket and handed it to the robber on his side of the coupe. As the robbers got back into their own car Mrs. Schaefer observed two men in the robbers' auto. One sat in a back seat with a shotgun across his knees. The other was at the wheel.

The robber who got the money dropped his handkerchief mask as he was getting away. Mr. and Mrs. Schaefer said they would be able to identify him. Mrs. Schaefer noticed three initials on the robbers' car and gave them to the police, together with the license number.

SWEDISH CROWN PRINCE WEDS NIECE OF BRITISH RULERS

Lady Louise Mountbatten Becomes Bride of Prince Gustave Adolph, Heir to Swedish Throne.

CEREMONY MARKED BY SIMPLICITY

Sovereigns of Both Houses Attend Informally; Bride and Bridegroom Leave for Honeymoon in Italy.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Before the ancient altar of the intimate little Chapel Royal in St. James' Palace, where many a King and Queen have been married since the days of Henry VIII, Crown Prince Gustave Adolph of Sweden took as his second bride this afternoon Lady Louise Mountbatten, niece of the reigning sovereigns of Britain.

There was none of the splendor or grandeur about the ceremony, such as the weddings of royalty in vast Westminster Abbey have known. It was as simple as could be, considering the high estate of the bridegroom and the bride and the presence of so many royal witnesses, ambassadors and titled aristocrats. Fewer than 300 persons were able to find seats within the narrow confines of the chapel.

Brother Is Best Man.

Prince Gustave wore the uniform of a General of the Swedish army. His brother, Prince Wilhelm, in naval uniform, was best man.

The bride, wearing a gown made from a fine piece of Indian silver gauze, which had been given her by her uncle, the Grand Duke of Hesse, was accompanied to the altar by her brother, Lord Louis Mountbatten. Her train was of the same material and her veil of honiton lace, was the one given by Queen Victoria to her daughter, Princess Alice, at her marriage to the Grand Duke of Hesse. The sleeves of the untrimmed bridal gown were long and close-fitting, so long in fact that the bride did not wear gloves. Her silver shoes had low heels. She carried a small bouquet of lillies, quaintly arranged.

As the bridal procession moved up the aisle, the hymn, "Lead Us, Heavenly Father," was sung by the choir. It was followed by the sixty-seventh Psalm, "God Be Merciful Unto Us."

Bridesmaids Grecian Princesses.

Acting as bridesmaids were the four Princesses of the royal house in Greece—Margaret, Theodora, Cecilia and Sophie—daughters of Prince Andrew and nieces of the bride. The bride's train was borne by her little nephew and nieces, the Earl of Medina and Lady Tatiana Mountbatten, children of the Marquis of Milfordhaven, who is Lady Louise's brother.

The first part of the marriage ceremony was conducted by the Archbishop of Canterbury, the second part by the Bishop of London, who is dean of the Chapel Royal. At either side of the bride and bridegroom sat the reigning sovereigns of Sweden and Great Britain. Members of both royal houses occupied nearby chairs. Behind them were the bridesmaids and distributed through the rest of the chapel were notables of Great Britain and Sweden and of many other countries.

Ceremonies Simple.

The simplicity of the marriage ceremony was sustained after the church service. King George and Queen Mary and King Gutav and Queen Victoria attended the wedding reception in an informal manner, not as "their majesties." There was no monster wedding cake to fill the eyes and the mouths of those invited to the reception at Clock House, adjoining Kensington Palace—only an ordinary bridal cake of simple design prepared by an unpretentious cook who has been in the bride's family for many years.

Nor was there a glittering display of wedding gifts. From the first the bride had asked her friends to give her furniture and articles for her home, and as fast as these were received they were shipped to Sweden often in the packing boxes in which they arrived from the donors.

The reception did not last long and before nightfall the Crown Prince had taken his bride away from London on their honeymoon, most of which will be spent in Italy. They will arrive in Stockholm on Dec. 11.

MASKED BAND LYNCHES MAN AT EUFAULA, OKLA.

He Had Been Returned to Jail Recently—Was Accused of Attacking Woman.

By the Associated Press.

MUSKOGEE, Ok., Nov. 3.—Dallas Sowell, accused of attacking a woman recently and returned to the McIntosh County jail after a break for liberty across Oklahoma into Texas, was lynched by a band of 11 masked men at Eufaula, the county seat of McIntosh County, at 2 o'clock this morning, according to word received here.

The band appeared suddenly at the jail, overpowered two deputies, took their keys and made away with their prisoner. Telephone wires leading from the jail had been cut.

Following in the direction taken by the band, officers found Sowell's body hanging in a barn on the outskirts of town. The lynchers had dispersed.

Sowell, described variously as a Mexican and a half-breed negro, is alleged to have attacked a woman six weeks go at her farm home in McIntosh County. He was arrested and removed to Muskogee for safekeeping.

Three weeks ago, upon being returned to Eufaula for his preliminary hearing Sowell escaped from Sheriff Moore and fled into the Canadian River bottoms. During his flight he took motor cars at Okemah and Hobart, finally being caught in the Texas Panhandle.

Upon his return he was placed in the Eufaula jail again.

BOXING COMMISSIONER PUNCHES A CRITIC

Alderman Harry Uhlemeyer Splits Lip of William Runge, Interested in a Club.

Harry W. Uhlemeyer, Alderman for the Fifteenth Ward and chairman of the Municipal Boxing Commission, held a session at 4 P. M. yesterday in the first floor corridor of the City Hall, with William Runge, 2617 Olive street, a building inspector, on the receiving end.

Uhlemeyer was entering the elevator to go up to a meeting of the Aldermen when Runge called out: "Hello, one-term alderman.'

Around the City Hall this means not only that the person so disparaged is serving his first term, but also his last term. It is a form of approbrium to which First Termers, as a rule, appraising themselves worthy of many terms, are especially sensitive.

So out of the elevator moved Alderman Uhlemeyer, his dander up and his dukes ready to follow. "Say that again," he snapped, "and I'll punch you in the nose."

"I'll say it again if I want to," countered Runge; "I'll say it as often as I like."

Runge Suffers Split Lip.

That was not exactly saying it again, but it was the next thing to it, so the chairman of he Boxing Commission went into action, landing three times on the Building Inspector and cutting his lip.

A watchman stopped the fight then and Uhlemeyer got into the elevator, which started up.

"Come down and do it again," shouted Runge, which in ring parlance is the same as asking for another match, but Uhlemeyer went ahead.

Runge, with a swollen lip today, said he would let Uhlemeyer do the talking. Runge is interested in the Lafayette South Side Club, of which Tommy Sullivan is manager. He has frequently complained that Uhlemeyer gave the club the worst of it on boxing dates.

Statement by the Winner.

Uhlemeyer said today: "Tommy Sullivan got hold of Runge, who is a Republican ward healer, expecting him to control the Boxing Commission. We try to run the boxing bouts right and play no favorites, so Runge got mad and abused the commission. When I was getting into the elevator he abused me and called me a one-termer and other things and dared me to get off. Well, I got off. It didn't last long. There were only two licks. I hit him and he hit the stairs. He'll never make a good fighter. He doesn't hit back. If Runge put in more time inspecting buildings and less time promoting boxing bouts we would not have cornices falling and killing people."

Both men are heavyweights. In height and breadth and reach they are pretty well matched, but Uhlemeyer, in the matter of age, had an advantage of about 20 years.

POINCARE REAFFIRMS HIS STAND ON INQUIRY

Premier, in Note to British Ambassador on Invitation to U. S., Says Reparations Investigation Must Be With Regard to Germany's Present Capacity.

HOLDS TREATY CAN'T BE DEPARTED FROM

Ambassador Herrick in Long Conference With Poincare —Coolidge of Opinion Restrictions May Make Inquiry Useless.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Premier Poincare reaffirmed his reservation limiting the scope of the proposed reparation conference in a note hanled to Lord Crewe, the British Ambassador, this afternoon regarding the text of the invitation of the United States.

Premier Poincare, according to a semi-official communique, developed at length in a friendly tone the reasons he considers to justify the limitations he had previously placed on the conference's work. The Premier said in substance that the inquiry could only deal with Germany's present capacity for payment because it was impossible to fix definitely, except for a very short period, what Germany could pay, as her economic power might be considerably increased in the near future.

Poincare furthermore said it ought to be understood that the experts named by the reparation commission could not have wider powers than the peace treaty gives the commission. The experts could not, any more than the commission, make any decision concerning the eventual reduction of the German debt, he declared, unless such decision were adopted unanimously by the governments represented on the commission.

Myron T. Herrick, the American Ambassador, called on Premier Poincare this morning and had a long conversation with him. The strictest secrecy regarding the subject of the confehence is maintained at the French Foreign Office and the American Embassy.

Another caller on Poincare this morning was Lord Crewe, the British Ambassador, who talked with the Premier regarding the conditions under which the proposed committee of experts will undertake its investigations into the reparation situation. The point discussed is supposed to have been the Premier's policy to limit the examination of Germany's capacity to pay at the present or in the immediate futurs.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Statements at the White House that President Coolidge would view the placing of restrictions on the proposed expert committee inquiry into Germany's capacity to pay reparations as committing the plan to almost certain failure had a distinct depressing effect today on the entire outlook. What effect the indicated desire of Premier Poincare of France to limit the scope of inquiry may have on American participation, it was stated at the White House, when the President's views were disclosed yesterday, is as yet uncertain. It remains to be disclosed what stipulations France may attach in joining the allies in a formal invitation for unofficial American representatives on the committee and it was indicated much would depend on the language in which these may be couched.

Should they try to place definite restrictions on the scope of the inquiry, it was indicated that probably the Washington government would agree to American participation but only after fully understanding that no further changes were to be made.

Presumably Ambassador Herrick talked over the subject in his conference today with Premier Poincare, although the State Department has not been advised officially regarding it.

The substance of the French Premier's recent speech at Nevers reached the State Department during the night through official channels but did not serve to throw any further light on the situation.

Throughout the negotiations between London and Paris, State Department officers have been talking informally with the utmost frankness with French and other allied diplomatic representatives in Washington. In these conversations it has been made plain that, in the

STRESEMANN'S POLICY FACES TEST BEFORE REICHSTAG

With Socialists Out of Cabinet, Military Rule, Perhaps a Directorate, Appears to Be Certain.

NATIONALIST THREAT AGAINST REPUBLIC

Chancellor's Power for Present Based on Reactionary Sentiment Throughout Germany and Force.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—Official denial was given in a Government statement issued tonight that the Bavarian Government had sent an ultimatum to Chancellor Sresemann demanding the creation of a nationalist dictatorship and threateneing military measures in the event of non-compliance.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 3. — New York's appraisal of the mark on the basis of one and two-thirds trillion to the dollar moved Chancellor Stresemann to convoke a midnight session of his Cabinet, at which several emergency ordinances were proclaimed for the purpose of forestalling a similar collapse of the mark in Berlin. The Government now will permit payments to be made in foreign currencies, although it is prohibited to specify gold exchange as the sole medium of payment. The fading paper mark will still rank as the official currency and its acceptance as such is made obligatory.

The Government also decreed that foreign currencies must be reckoned on the basis of the official rates specified by the Reichsbank and that the new German gold loan, which in the past few days has been made the objective of speculation, will only hereafter be bought and sold at the official rate. The Reichsbank fixed today's dollar rate at 420,000,000,000 marks.

RULE BY FORCE APPARENTLY NEAR

BY ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—The Socialists have cast the die. It took them six days to work themselves up to it, but they have left the Stresemann Government, ordering the three ministers of their party to resign, and are preparing active opposition to the Government based on bayonets.

The Socialists' decision came within an hour after Stresemann refused to consider their demands to end martial law and act in the Bavarian and Saxony crises. Only 19 voices were against withdrawal from the Government. The Socialists in the Cabinet were Wilhelm Sollmann Minister of the Interior; Gustav Radbruch, Minister of Justice, and Robert Schmidt, Minister of Reconstruction.

Must Go On or Fall.

Stresemann must either go on without an important portion of his coalition or fail. All indications are he will stand for the present. His dictatorial powers, given him by the Reichstag, with Socialist consent have fallen through the breaking up of the coalition, but his power is based on strong reactionary sentiment throughout Germany and upon the Reichswehr.

He will not be forced out of office by the Socialists. If forced out, it will be by those who believe in an even more reactionary state Government. The Chancellor has compromised up to date, but he could not brave this split. The Socialists stood firm against industrialist power based on bayonets and Herr Stresemann was forced to march either with the Socialists or the bayonets, and there has never been any question but that he would slough off the Socialists if it came to that.

Stresemann informed the Socialists at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon that he refused to consider their demands. Mueller, Breitsheid and Weis, the same trio who were treated so cavalierly by Stresemann the night before, had swallowed the offense and had returned at the appointed hour yesterday afternoon. The Chancellor this time was up, but looking as though his illness were not entirely diplomatic. He told the trio:

"I would personally like to be able to discuss the points with you and try to smooth out matters but the majority of the Cabinet refuses. The position of the Cabinet is that the Government cannot be forced to act through an ultimatum delivered by one of the parties to the coalition."

Gessler Opposed Socialists.

The correspondent learns that Reichswehr Minister Gessler and Minister of Labor Brauns were the strongest in refusing to consider the Socialists' demands. Gessler said he could exercise no further authority over the Reichswehr if the Socialists were able to dictate to the Government to lift martial law and withdraw the Reichswehr from command of Saxony. Gessler was emphatic, which bears out reports that he has been extremely energetic recently, even commanding Gen. von Seeckt, who has been arguing for a less obvious military rule.

The Socialists stand alone. The Catholic Central party and the Democrats are with the industrialists for continuance of a military policy.

Stresemann met all the party leaders before he answered the Socialist ultimatum and received the assurance they were ready to go ahead without the Socialists and to back him in a dictatorship based on a Reichstag minority.

The Reichstag will meet November 7 and Stresemann must ask for a vote of confidence. If he succeeds, it means perpetuation of the military power in Germany, ending inevitably in denouncing the treaty of Versailles. If the Reichstag refuses the vote of confidence, the Chancellor is expected to create a directorate leading to the same end.

Future Full of Portent.

The coming days are full of portent. For weeks it has been rumored Right Radicals intend to do away with the republic on the fifth anniversary of the revolution of November 9, and the Socialists, among themselves, joke bitterly about the coming "necktie parties." Whether it is so bad is doubtful, but a stroke against the republic from the north and south of Germany at once is within reasonable possibilities.

Irregular Nationalist bands which threaten Thuringia and also Prussia from Northern Bavaria must be broken up. Minister of the Interior Sollman warned the Bavarian Government in one of his last official acts, just before the Socialists ordered him to resign.

Stollman confirms in a clear statement that the irregulars are fully armed and in possession of artillery. He also confirms border raid reports. Sollman requested Bavaria to take notice that Northern Bavaria is filled with "irregular troop formations which it is established officially are heavily armed and possess artillery."

Caruso's Widow Whose Betrothal to Scotchman Is Made Known

MRS. ENRICO CARUSO.

MRS. CARUSO ENGAGED TO WED SCOTCHMAN

Relatives Say They Have Received Word That Wedding Will Take Place in 3 Weeks.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Paris reports that Mrs. Enrico Caruso, formerly Dorothy Park Benjamin of New York, was engaged to marry Capt. E. A. Ingram, a Scotchman, was confirmed by members of the Benjamin family in New York, the New York Times said today.

Mrs. Caruso's relatives declined to make a formal announcement of the engagement, on the ground that they had not been specifically instructed to do so, but admitted they had received word that the wedding would take place in about three weeks in England.

Mrs. Caruso first met Capt. Ingram last August, her relatives said, and added that the romance began when the Captain started giving her swimming lessons. They are in Paris at present.

The marriage of Mrs. Caruso to the famous tenor took place in 1916, when she was 25. Under Caruso's will his widow received a large estate and an annual income from his phonograph records of approximately $250,000.

Poincare Holds Treaty Fixes, but Doesn't Guarantee, German Frontiers.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—The French Government is not interested in any Rhineland separation movement, is not involved in the present one and is not encouraging it. This is Premier Poincare's reply to the British note in which the question was raised whether it would not be a breach of the treaty of Versailles if the Rhineland was separated from the Reich.

At the same time, M. Poincare pointed out that, in his opinion, article 27 of the treaty of Versailles, which Marquis Curzon, British Foreign Secretary, interpreted as guaranteeing the German frontiers, simply fixed them, and that, as a matter of jurisprudence, that clause could not be construed as a guarantee of territorial integrity.

Art Works in Kaiser Hall at Aix Damaged in Fighting.

By the Associated Press.

AIX-LA-CHAPELLE, Nov. 3.—The famous old Kaiser Hall at Aix, a treasure house of art wherein 37 German rulers were crowned prior to the year 1531, is a sorry spectacle today as the result of the fighting that took place within its walls yesterday between the Matthes separatists and the small guard of police and firemen.

The damage done is irreparable. Eight frescoes, ranked among the finest examples in modern painting, were ruined. A celebrated portrait of Charlemagne suffered seriously, while another picture was pierced by 22 bullets.

When the separatists, temporarily successful in their attack on the building, were ordered by the Belgians to leave the city, it did not take them long to comply. The Belgian officers' ultimatum placed the limit at 90 minutes, but immediately the republicans marched to the station and entrained. Four of them who flaunted a separatist proclamation from the rear platform of the train as it pulled out were yanked off the cars by the crowd and taken to an open space, where two were beaten to death. The two others were rescued in a dying condition by the police.

Youth, Trying to Flag Train, Killed.

PANA, Ill., Nov. 3.—Charles W. Witt, 17 years old, was instantly killed when he attempted to flag a Big Four passenger train at his home in Oihman, 12 miles west of here, early this morning. Witt purchased a ticket to Chicago and stepped in the path of the oncoming train to signal it to stop, Oihman being only a "flag stop" station.

SEPARATISTS PUT OUT OF AIX IN 3 HOURS BY BELGIANS

2000 Men From Coblenz, Led by Matthes, Escorted to Train After Seizing City Hall From Police.

By SAMUEL SPEWACK,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

AIX LA CHAPELLE, Nov. 3.—Two thousand separatists under the leadership of Joseph Matthes journeyed to Aix la Chapelle from Coblenz yesterday morning, seized the town and held it three hours, and then were ousted by Belgian troops on the order of the Belgian High Commissioner.

With Matthes, when he was put on the train, were Leo Deckers and other local separatists. Matthes took 2000 armed men from Coblenz during the night with the idea of seizing all the Belgian occupied Rhineland. He entered Aix la Chapelle by train and surrounded the city hall, which the Germans wrested back from local separatists under Deckers.

The ensuing battle lasted from 7 to 8 o'clock in the morning, and in it the police who held the city hall lost five men and the separatists several wounded. The police were forced to retire before the superior number of separatists, who entered and took possession and prepared to spread the movement all over that part of the Rhineland.

Ousted by Belgians.

But at 11 a. m., after they had been in possession three hours, a Belgian officer, escorted by a corporal's guard, went into the room where Matthes was busy issuing orders and informed him that the Belgian High Commissioner instructed him to leave with his entire crew immediately.

Matthes was defiant at first, but the Belgian said it was no use for him to protest, as the whole Belgian Army was there to see him go and there would be a lot of dead separatists in about five minutes if he did not drop what he was doing and go into the street immediately. Matthes realized it was no joke and went.

Separatists Sent on Their Way.

The Belgians drew up troops, accompanied by tanks and cavalry, and escorted the 2000 through the streets to the railroad station where at 2 p. m. they entrained. The town soon realized what was going on and along the route small bands of townspeople found it possible to pull visiting separatists from the ranks and beat them up.

It was a sorry lot of crestfallen separatists who left Aix la Chapelle, not being able to understand how the larger play of politics caught them up and threw them out of the Belgian occupied region. Matthes, with Deckers, had planned to make a separate Rhineland in one blow but this is a serious setback and it looks like the end of separatism in the present form.

LIVESTOCK STATE BANK OF KANSAS CITY IS CLOSED

Officials of Institution Act, Asking for Thorough Check, When Examiner Calls to Look Over Books.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 3.—The Livestock State Bank, 1617 Genesee street, closed voluntarily today. The bank, capitalized at $200,000, had deposits amounting to $800,000 and cash and exchange available for call totaling $260,000. The bank's business was principally in livestock loans.

The bank was closed pending an investigation of the bank's solvency, L. A. Miller, Deputy Bank Examiner in charge of the Kansas City district, said. Miller said he went to the bank today to make an examination of the books and the officers closed the doors. They would not say the bank was insolvent, but wanted to make a thorough check, Miller said.

While he said he did not know why the bank might be insolvent, he intimated that slow cattle paper probably had a great deal to do with it. There are 702 depositors of the bank.

A few stockmen milled about the front door of the bank when it was found to be closed. Assistance had been offered to the bank from time to time, and other bankers suggested a plan to bring the institution out from under the weight of deflated livestock paper, but the offer was not accepted, according to an unsigned statement issued by the Clearing House.

Livestock Loans Chief Business.

The bank's busines was principally in livestock loans and the institution's affairs have been under close supervision by the Kansas City Clearing House Association more than a year. According to association officers, the Livestock State Bank paid a voluntary assessment of $100,000 early this year. The clearing house instructed the bank officials the payment was not sufficient to clear liabilities.

The State Finance Commissioner probably will order an immediate inventory of assets and liabilities. The bank examiners are allowed 10 days or longer to complete an inventory. The stockholders and directors must file a protest against State Intercession within 10 days.

"The bank should pay out without loss to its depositors," a clearing house statement read. "The Livestock State Bank was organized in 1918. Its principal business is with out-of-town concerns. The bank was primarily to give service to cattle holdings in the Southwest."

Chartered in 1918.

The bank was chartered May 22, 1918. The last statement, as of date Sept. 1, showed a capitalization of $200,000.

The statement gave the assets as: Surplus, $5500; undivided profits, $5964; due to other banks, $411,087; individual deposits, $524,517.52; time deposits, $20,366; demand deposits, $25,698.94; savings deposits, $5578.25. These, with other liabilities, gave a total of $1,500,786.42.

Assets by this statement were listed at $1,500,796.42. Principal items included are: Loans, $993,447.93; real estate loans, $1118.21; overdrafts, $11,016.54; due from other banks, $439,103.10; cash items, $3597.60; cash on hand, $11,096.88.

The bank's last financial statement to the State Finance Department, dated Sept. 1, gave the names of Fred T. Platt, president, and C. A. Hasson, assistant cashier. The previous statement, dated April 3, had the name of Sidney Moore, cashier.

Commissioner Millspaugh said this was the largest bank closing in Missouri since the Night and Day Bank at St. Louis, which closed Jan. 6, 1922.

IRISH SYMPATHIZERS RIOT WHILE LLOYD GEORGE SPEAKS

500 New York Policemen Use Night Sticks on Cursing Mob Outside Opera House.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—A cursing, struggling mass of Irish sympathizers rioted outside the Metropolitan Opera House last evening during the entire time David Lloyd George was speaking.

Mounted and motor cycle police and 500 patrolmen charged the crowd repeatedly. Minor casualties were innumerable. About a dozen men and women were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct.

At least 5000 persons gathered outside the opera house around Broadway and Forty-first street, 4500 of them to catch a glimpse of Lloyd George or watch the police work, the other 500 to curse England, extol De Valera and shout "Lloyd George, the arch-murderer of the world!"

Dozens in the mob carried pictures of De Valera and crude banners denouncing Lloyd George and Great Britain. The banners were used to knock off the hats of policemen. The policemen swung their night sticks. The women disturbers outnumbered the men five to one and many of them were old. They insisted on trying to make speeches and distributed literature. The patrolmen made little progress until 16 mounted policemen and a dozen on motor cycles charged into the mob.

LIEUT. BROW FLIES AT 259.15-MILE RATE, NEW RECORD

Naval Aviator Makes Fastest Speed Ever Traveled by Man in Flight at Mitchel Field.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Traveling faster than man ever did before, Lieut. Harold J. Brow of the navy, yesterday, became world's champion speed flyer.

In official tests over Mitchell Field—the army's aviation stretch on Long Island—he flew to the title, driving at the rate of 259.15 miles an hour the small blue Curtiss racer in which he finished second in the Pulitzer trophy race in St. Louis last month. On one stretch he made 265.21 miles an hour, a rate that would carry one from New York, 228 miles to the Capitol in Washington in 51 minutes.

Lieut. Brow also turned the tables on Lieut. Alford J. Williams, who beat him in the Pulitzer trophy contest. Lieut. Williams, in the other of the twin fish-like racers, bettered his own mark of 243.67 miles, or more than four miles a minute, by attaining a speed of 258.61 miles an hour. Williams will try to better Brow's mark today, it was announced last night.

The flights were made under the accepted international speed rule which calls for going over a three-kilometer course and back twice, the average time being taken. They were held under the jurisdiction of the National Aeronautic Association, which is the American representative of the International Aeronautic Federation and Lieut. Brow's almost incredible speed therefore stands as a mark for all other nations to shoot at.

Handful of Spectators.

The straightaway course, with time at the turns not counted, made possible greater speed than in the triangular Pulitzer trophy race, but even the most rabid aviation enthusiasts were thrilled by the daring of the two intrepid airmen, who swept like flaming streaks across the sward and then swooped up and down like some winged prehistoric monsters, snorting as they went.

A handful of spectators who had visited since Thursday morning, along with the army men and airplane experts, for the proposed trials, saw the spectacle.

The aviators did not wait to take advantage of static air, but for the northwest wind, that had been blowing diagonally across the field and rolled the air, to be flattened somewhat. The noon sun did that, and at 1:30 p. m. Lieut. Brow donned his leather headgear, fleece-lined jacket and woolen gloves and had the 700-horsepower motor in his racer started. The sky was cloudless.

In a few minutes the motor was warmed up, bursts of flame shot from the blue thing's exhausts and Brow was off. Over the turf he taxied at 75 miles an hour and then shot up without a spiral until his machine was only a flake against the blue sky.

The course was between the tyo pylons, one near the Long Island Railroad tracks between Mineola and Westbury, and the other to the southeast, near the Beth Page turnpike at the Cold Stream Golf Club. Under the latter squatted the official scorer, with electrical communication to the watchers at the other end. With faces upturned they waited.

Average of 257.42 Miles.

Presently, from nowhere, appeared a speck. It was Brow, with a streak of black smoke trailing behind him. It looked more like a long-haired member of the solar system approaching the earth.

Suddenly he dived for the pylon. The rule provides that the course must be covered at no greater height than 164 feet. He seemed to dive like a rock, but at 160 feet he straightened out and shot like a bullet over the three kilometers. He was going so fast that only a burst of noise was heard instead of the ordinary roar of an airplane motor. Although just overhead of those on the field, all they could see was a flare of flame and a streak of blue behind it. The smoke tail was way in the van.

At the other pylon, Brow shot the speed demon upward again and circled about. Then he deftly dived again and shot back over the course. This performance he went through twice and then landed to learn he had averaged 257.42 miles an hour, which was 13.75 miles faster than Williams had made in St. Louis.

Did he lose consciousness for a second or so, as Williams did on the turns over the triangular course? he was asked.

"No," he replied, "she was hitting just right."

Then he added that he could do better and instructed the mechanics to get the motor to hit evenly, announcing he might try again.

Williams Does 258.61 Miles.

Then Williams, who weighs more than 200 pounds and is therefore handicapped a full 50 pounds against Brow, set forth after shoe-horning himself into the tiny cockpit of his craft. By this time the still air had been stirred a bit by a six-knot southwest breeze, but it blew across the course

Williams had learned that his record had gone aglimmering and was after another one. He defied wind and all to attain it. His motor was running perfectly and he took the air like a skyrocket. Over the course and back he flew twice for a mark of 258.51 miles an hour, bettering Brow's.

Brow's Record Flight.

By this time Brow's motor had been tuned up and he started off for the second time. Over the course he bulleted and the first time back attained as peed of 265.21 miles. His average for the entire second test was 259.15 miles, or 15.48 miles better than Williams' St. Louis record.

The aviators attributed their speed largely to the camber of the planes' wings. These are convex on both sides and offer almost no wind resistance. Then, too, the craft weigh only 2100 pounds.

Maj. W. H. Hensley Jr., commandant at Mitchel Field, was the official timer, having been appointed by C. F. Shorey, secretary of the Contest Committee of the National Aeronautic Association, who also was present. The other timers were Kenneth M. Lane of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation and William Wait of the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Corporation.

Chart of the Flights.

The times the two Lieutenants made in miles per hour over each leg of the course were:

	1st.	2d.	3d.	4th.	Aver.
Brow	255	258	253	263	257.42
Williams	258	260	256	259	258.61
*Brow	255	265	257	259	259.15

*Second trial.

Lieut. Russell L. Maughan of the army air service attained a speed of 236.587 miles an hour in a three-kilometer test in a Curtiss racer at Dayton, O., March 29 last.

On Brow's fastest leg yesterday his motor was turning over at 2800 revolutions a minute, or 1200 revolutions faster than the normal speed of the Liberty motor. The duralumin propeller, with its thin, silvery-flashing blades, described a seven-foot circle at the rate of 1100 feet a second.

The twin racers of Brow and Williams have wing spans of only 22 feet. From nose to tail they measure only 18 feet. Their height is 5 feet 9 inches.

view of the Washington government, anything short of a full and impartial examination of Germany's economic situation would fail of any useful purpose. Officials feel, therefore, that proposals for limiting the scope of the inquiry have been met in advance.

There is no desire to deny France the right to impose restrictions if she sees fit to exercise that right. But officials hold that the treaty interests of all the allied governments are absolutely safeguarded already since they cannot be altered without the consent of those governments.

On the question of selecting American representation on the proposed commission, it was said at the White House that the President had decided that both because of the official status and the necessary absence from Washington involved no member of the Cabinet would be selected.

WOMAN AIDS POLICE IN FIGHT WITH ROBBERS

Major in New York Police Reserves Joins in Exchange of Shots After Chase.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Miss Jean Barnes, a diminutive major in the police reserves, while thousands watched last evening, braved the pistol fire of two holdup men at bay in an empty field near the Upper Harlem River, and with four policemen exchanged more than 40 shots with the gunmen.

While the spectators cheered her pluck, she reloaded and emptied her weapon, never flinching when bullets cut the sod at her feet or whistled by her head. Sergeants Dockstader and Kader and Patrolmen Kerrigan and Corbley, her allies, were not found wanting in bravery either. The pistol battle followed a spectacular chase through several crowded thoroughfares, in which Maj. Barnes also participated.

The gunmen crept into Samuel Kaufmans delicatessen store, at 8 Post avenue, at 6 o'clock, as Kaufman was waiting on Max Elsman.

The intruders quickly aimed pistols and forced Elsman and Kaufman into a back room. Then they took $70 from the cash register and fled to Dickman street, at the corner. The victims yelled for the police.

Woman Joins in Chase.

The fugitives ran east through Dickman street. Approaching down the block were Sergt. Dockstader and Patrolman Kerrigan in one police flivver, and Sergt. Kerr and Patrolman Corbley in another. They gave chase. A few feet behind the cars was Maj. Barnes in her machine. She speeded up and soon was leading the chase. Miss Barnes, as a police reservist, is allowed to carry a pistol. She joined the policemen in firing after the fleeing men. Miss Barnes is only about five feet, two inches tall and of slender build, but she made up for it in pluck.

Reaching Nagle avenue, the fugitives turned, fired at the pursuers and then ran into a field. A score of motorists had followed the chase.

Robbers Get Away.

The fugitives dropped behind a boulder. The policemen and Maj. Barnes sprang from their cars and took stations at the other side of the road. Time and time again the police pleaded with Miss Barnes to seek safety, but she refused and took up the stand beside them.

The spectacle of the police fighting with a woman beside them seemed to fascinate the watchers, for they crowded dangerously close to the firing line. The battle raged nearly half an hour, but in vain, for the robbers escaped. Then Maj. Barnes, her face and hands powder-streaked, rearranged her hair, entered her car and drove away as if her work had been only a small incident in her life.

Zinc and Lead Mines Closed Down.

JOPLIN, Mo., Nov. 3.—Many of the large zinc and lead mines of the Missouri-Kansas-Oklahoma district will close tonight to be idle for one week as a result of the increased surplus ore in the district. The surplus at present is estimated at more than 70,000 tons, or more than five weeks' supply, based on the demand made on the district for the first nine months of the year.

WOMAN HELD HERE LINKED TO CHICAGO COUNTERFEIT BAND

Five Men, Alleged Members of Gang, Arrested, One of Whom Is Said to Have Confessed.

MONEY DISTRIBUTED IN SEVERAL CITIES

Secret Service Agents on Trail of Group Since Last August, When Bogus $20 Bills Were Passed.

It is now quite clear that Mary Snyder, passer of counterfeit $10 bills, arrested Monday at Channing avenue and Pine streets with a bagful of the bills, was entirely mistaken when she told the police that she came from New York, where she found the bills in a Bronx subway train. Either that or she fibbed to them. For the indications are that Mary is a member of a counterfeiters' gang, with headquarters in Chicago. Five men, alleged members of the gang have been arrested since the woman was caught, and one of them has made a confession to the Chicago police say.

It appears to have been a coincidence that Joseph W. Brown, alias F. C. Bronson, alias F. C. Bronez, was arrested in St. Paul the same day that Mary Snyder was arrested here. Singularly he had a lot of the same $10 bills that Mary had been passing here.

Arrested on Train.

Buying a railroad ticket with one of them at Minneapolis was what led to his arrest. The ticket agent, after the man had hurried away to his train, discovered that the bill was a counterfeit. He telephoned to St. Paul and Bronson was taken off the train. He did not say anything about finding the bills in the Bronson subway. It is just possible that familiarity of Mary Snyder with the Bronez alias may have suggested the Bronx yarn she told here.

Another coincidence was that the Federal secret service agents, who had been trailing men who passed some counterfeit $20 bills here last August, were close on the heels of men in Chicago, with whom Mary Snyder and Bronson are presumed to have been associated.

They were ready to close in as they did close in. Their dragnet caught Ralph C. Oldham, a former Chicago policeman; Bob White, alias B. F. Edwards, an advertising solicitor; Lewis Kettler, a former hardware goods dealer, and Edward C. Branson.

Clew in Milwaukee.

The trail which led to the final roundup was picked up in Milwaukee about the middle of August when a very "dangerous" $20 counterfeit was placed in circulation there. Steve Connell, operative in charge at St. Louis, was notified. On Aug. 17 eight of the bills were passed here. Connell conjectured that the "shovers" would go west and asked William H. Davenport, operative in charge at Kansas City, to watch for them.

On Oct. 15 one of the bogus twenties was brought to Davenport. It had been passed on a Kansas City druggist on the 13th. A number of the counterfeits turned up at one of the banks put a warning in the evening newspapers Oct. 17. That evening a man known as "Powder River," frivolously disposed, hired a taxi and told the driver to take him to a resort. The driver took him to May Miller's.

He was a good spender and paid with a $20 bill. The woman had read the evening paper. She told him his money was counterfeit. He laughed, a rolling laugh. Good joke! Why, the man he got that bill from was a fine gentleman. She brought him the paper, but he pooh-poohed and said that bill was as good as gold. She reluctantly accepted it.

"Powder River's" Explanation.

Next morning the taxi driver told another taxi driver that "Powder River" had slipped May Miller a bill the night before. The second driver taxed "Powder River" with it. "Powder" told him he had been associating for several days with four men who had arrived at 2 a. m. on the 15th from Chicago by way of Omaha, in a Cadillac, and one of them had given him the bill. A friend of May Miller had shown him the new paper he went to his friend at the hotel and upbraided him for giving him a bill which was calculated to hurt his reputation. The man laughed and showed him a bundle of bills and offered to sell him all he wanted at $5 apiece. He declined, but agreed not to tell. Then the counterfeiters had a falling out over an actress and split up and left Kansas City.

The four men were found to have registered at hotels as Lou Hall, Clyde Oldham, E. C. Branson and B. A. Edwards, all from Chicago. At the Baltimore Hotel both Branson and Edwards exhibited Chicago police badges and revolvers and in a bantering spirit compared the weapons with the one carried by a house detective.

These badges and weapons have also been used to impress "Powder River." They had told him that they obtained the paper on which the bills were printed from Washington and had Government protection. The "leading lady" of a re-

WOMAN HELD HERE LINKED TO CHICAGO COUNTERFEIT BAND

Five Men, Alleged Members of Gang, Arrested, One of Whom Is Said to Have Confessed.

MONEY DISTRIBUTED IN SEVERAL CITIES

Secret Service Agents on Trail of Group Since Last August, When Bogus $20 Bills Were Passed.

It is now quite clear that Mary Snyder, passer of counterfeit $10 bills, arrested Monday at Channing avenue and Pine streets with a bagful of the bills, was entirely mistaken when she told the police that she came from New York, where she found the bills in a Bronx subway train. Either that or she fibbed to them. For the indications are that Mary is a member of a counterfeiters' gang, with headquarters in Chicago. Five men, alleged members of the gang have been arrested since the woman was caught, and one of them has made a confession, the Chicago police say.

It appears to have been a coincidence that Joseph W. Brown, alias F. C. Bronson, alias F. C. Bronex, was arrested in St. Paul the same day that Mary Snyder was arrested here. Singularly he had a lot of the same $10 bills that Mary had been passing here.

Arrested on Train.

Buying a railroad ticket with one of them at Minneapolis was what led to his arrest. The ticket agent, after the man had hurried away to his train, discovered that the bill was a counterfeit. He telephoned to St. Paul and Bronson was taken off the train. He did not say anything about finding the bills in the Bronx subway. It is just possible that familiarity of Mary Snyder with the Bronex alias may have suggested the Bronx yarn she told here.

Another coincidence was that the Federal secret service agents, who had been trailing men who passed some counterfeit $20 bills here last August, were close on the heels of men in Chicago, with whom Mary Snyder and Bronson are presumed to have been associated.

They were ready to close in and they did close in. Their dragnet caught Ralph C. Oldham, a former Chicago policeman; Bob White, alias B. F. Edwards, an advertising solicitor; Lewis Kettler, a former hairgoods dealer, and Edward C. Branson.

Clew in Milwaukee.

The trail which led to the final roundup was picked up in Milwaukee about the middle of August, when a very "dangerous" $20 counterfeit was placed in circulation there. Steve Connell, operative in charge at St. Louis, was notified. On Aug. 17 eight of the bills were passed here. Connell conjectured that the "shovers" would work west and asked William H. Davenport, operative in charge at Kansas City, to watch for them.

On Oct. 15 one of the bogus twenties was brought to Davenport. It had been passed on a Kansas City druggist on the 13th. A number of the counterfeits turned up and one of the banks put a warning in the evening newspapers Oct. 17. That evening a man known as "Powder River," frivolously disposed, hired a taxi and told the driver to take him to a resort. The driver took him to May Miller's.

He was a good spender and paid with a $20 bill. The woman had read the evening paper. She told him his money was counterfeit. He laughed, a rolling laugh. Good joke. Why, the man he got that bill from was a fine gentleman. She brought him the paper, but he pooh-poohed and said that bill was as good as gold. She reluctantly accepted it.

"Powder River's" Explanation.

Next morning the taxi driver told another taxi driver that "Powder River" had slipped May Miller a bad bill the night before. The second driver taxed "Powder River" with it. "Powder" told him he had been associating for several days with four men who had arrived at 2 a. m. on the 15th from Chicago by way of Omaha, in a Cadillac, and one of them had given him the bill. After May Miller had shown him the newspaper he went to his friend at a hotel and upbraided him for giving him a bill which was calculated to hurt his reputation. The man laughed and showed him a bundle of bills and offered to sell him all he wanted at $5 apiece. He declined, but agreed not to tell. Then the counterfeiters had a falling out over an actress and split up and left Kansas City.

The four men were found to have registered at hotels as Lou Hart, Clyde Oldham, E. C. Branson and B. A. Edwards, all from Chicago. At the Baltimore Hotel both Branson and Edwards exhibited Chicago police badges and revolvers and in a bantering spirit compared their weapons with the one carried by the house detective.

These badges and weapons had also been used to impress "Powder River." They had told him that they obtained the paper on which the bills were printed from Washington and had Government protection. The "leading lady" of a revue was entertained at Branson's room and the four had what they called a good time while they were in Kansas City, with "Powder River" joining in.

Policeman Gets Leave.

Through Operative-in-Charge Porter at Chicago it was learned that Oldham, on leave of absence from his duties as park policeman to visit his sick wife at Boulder, Colo., and Branson, left Chicago in Branson's Cadillac early in October.

That shifted the trail to Boulder. Through Operative-in-Charge Goddard at Denver, Mrs. Oldham was found at the home of her parents on the outskirts of Boulder, where she was receiving a great deal of mail, especially packages. R. C. Oldham and L. Kettler were found to have registered at a hotel, Oct. 21. Mrs. Oldham joined her husband there. The two men went away Oct. 23.

At the telegraph office it was learned that Mrs. Oldham had wired to R. C. Oldham at Hotel Baltimore, Kansas City, on Oct. 12, and on Oct. 18 had received a "Sweetheart" night letter from Junction, Kan., from "Daddy."

Wired for Money.

But although many $20 counterfeits were passed in Denver, Oct. 20, Oldham, in Denver, on Oct. 21, wired to Ed Bronson, Wichita, Kan., for money and next day he received $60 from "B. C. Brown," with instructions to meet "Brown" at Wichita.

Branson returned to Chicago. On Oct. 25, Oldham and Kettler were reported in Marland, Ok. From there they returned to Chicago and the three were joined there by White. Their arrest followed Wednesday and Branson, the police announced, made a confession.

It is said he has not admitted knowledge of the activities of the Snyder woman and Brown in passing the $10 bills, but secret service men believe they are all members of one gang. One of the men has been identified by photograph, as the one who passed the counterfeits in St. Louis.

$2,000,000 Road Contracts to Be Let

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 3.—The State highway Department will let contracts this month for approximately $2,000,000 in highway construction, to be pair for from proceeds of the $5,000,000 of State road bonds just sold by the State Board of Fund Commissioners. Contracts totaling $3,000,000 have been let against the bonds, work to be started when money becomes available.

Four Society Women to Open Antique Furniture Shop Monday

MRS. OLIVER RICHARDS

MRS. R.S. KENNARD

MRS. EPHRON CATLIN

MRS. JOHN L. JOHNSTON.

Mrs. John L. Johnston and Mrs. Richard S. Kennard to Be Assisted by Mrs. Oliver P. Richards and Mrs. Ephron Catlin Jr.

Four St. Louis society women on Monday will open an establishment for the sale of antiques, modern decorative objects for the home and kindred things—The Curio Shop, 4535 Olive street.

The proprietors are Mrs. John L. Johnston of 4474 Westminster place, wife of the president of the Liberty Central Trust Co., and Mrs. Richard S. Kennard of 4934 Buckingham Court, whose husband is connected with the Cupples Co. Their announcement card refers to them as "Ethel B. Johnston" and "Louise Nugent Kennard."

Associated with them, as agents for certain lines, are Mrs. Oliver F. Richards of 4612 Maryland avenue, whose husband is a vice-president of the Mercantile Trust Co., and Mrs. Ephron Catlin Jr. of 15 Vandeventer place, whose husband is president of the Catlin Manufacturing Co. Mrs. Richards was Miss Evelyn Whitney and Mrs. Catlin was Miss Emma Drew.

Will Run Shop Themselves.

It is to be purely the enterprise of the four women, financed by themselves, and except for janitor service they will have no assistants. Hours will be about 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. The shop, which is decorated in Colonial style, is in a new store building. On Monday afternoon women friends of the owners will assist in serving tea to visitors.

Mrs. Catlin gave expression to the feeling that moved her and her associates to open the shop. "I was tired of this thing of going out perhaps five nights a week," she said, "with nothing special to do in daytime. We wanted to do something worth while. It was really Mrs Johnston who started the idea. Many women in the East are conducting shops of this sort."

Things to Be Sold.

Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. Kennard will have for sale early American furniture, old mirrors, prints, glass and ornaments. It is said that they put a number of months in gathering their stock.

Mrs. Richards will be agent for a Louisville firm of silversmiths, handling English silverware of early date. A collection of these objects recently was on display at the Buckingham Hotel. The silver pieces, many of which are for table service, bear the "hall mark" of Guild Hall, London, an official registry.

Mrs. Catlin's stock will consist of Japanese indestructible pearls, made by putting grains of sand within oysters' shells, specially constructed mah jong tables and hand-woven bags and scarfs.

BALDWIN WOULD HAVE EMPIRE GROW ALL COTTON IT NEEDS

"I Will Not Be Satisfied Until We Are Absolutely Independent of America"

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—A plan to develop the British Empire's resources in cotton and other raw materials, so as to be independent of American and other foreign products and to put a tarrif on manufactured goods, was outlined in the important speech of Premier Baldwin made at a big Conservative meeting in the Manchester Free Trade Hall last night.

"I will not be satisfied until we have so developed our empire that it will be absolutely independent of America," he said. "We can grow all the cotton we want, and the more of it and other raw materials we grow the better will be our capacity to compete with the world.

"It is an integral part of my policy to devote a portion of the new revenue to pushing our development as it has never been done before."

Coming to the details of his protectionist scheme, Premier Baldwin said: "What I propose is to put a tax on manufactured goods, with special regard to these imports that cause the greatest amount of unemployment among our people and to give substantial preference to our dominions, but to put no tax on wheat or meat."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ANNAPOLIS, Mo., Nov. 3.—Fire starting at 7:35 last night in the Harris Hotel swept the entire business section. The principal losses were in Radke & Talbert's general store, the Bank of Annapolis and the Harris Hotel. The loss was estimated at $50,000.

Woman Shot by Son-in-Law. Dies.

By the Associated Press.

ELDORADO, Ark., Nov. 3.—Mrs. Sue Styles, who was shot by her son-in-law, E. L. Thomas, Oct. 26 when, according to the story of the affair, she remonstrated with him because he wanted to give away his two weeks' old baby, died in a hospital here yesterday. Thomas is in the county jail.

LIQUOR RAID LEADS TO BARBER SUPPLY LOOT

Anonymous Letter Results in Discovery of Whisky, Razors and Two Arrests.

An anonymous letter received by the police stated they could find lots of liquor at the house of Alphonse Paolucci, 2901 Minnesota avenue. So to Paolucci's and there lots of liquor. Ten gallons of wine in a keg and 22 gallons of wine in other receptacles and five gallons of whisky and some mash.

Then to the second floor and in a cedar chest lots of other things not named in the anonymous communication. Fifty-nine bottles of toilet water, 27 boxes of talcum powder, 44 combs, hair tonic, clippers, scissors, razors. Practically everything in the barbering line except conversation.

The latter by the police: "Where'd you get it?"

"My frien', William McDermott, 3134 Arsenal street, he bring um."

So to McDermott's, engineer for the Koken Barber Supply Co., who makes admissions and is arrested, along with Alphonse.

Janitor Opens Trap Door and Discovers Strong Drink.

A negro janitor, working yesterday in a building at 1422 Washington avenue, taken over by the International Shoe Co. for a warehouse, found a trap door in the garret, opening to a nook on the third floor in which reposed four quart bottles and one pint bottle of whisky. Oscar Rodie, traffic manager, told the police, and also about some barrels containing dried mash in the basement.

Suspecting there was something more than smoke at Rudolph Potzman's cigar store, 2718 South Broadway, the police went there and found in a rear room a pint of whisky, four quarts of wine, five pints of homemade beer, and in the cellar four four 50-gallon barrels, four 15-gallon barrels, one 5-gallon keg, two 10-gallon kegs and two 10-gallon jars of wine, 15 bottles of homemade beer, a fruit press and two siphons.

Upstairs at 2718A they found Frank Wolf and four cases of pints and two cases of quarts, home brew, and two gallons and two quarts of wine.

Both men were arrested on liquor charges and an additional charge of operating a gambling device goes against Potzman on account of a penny slot machine found in the cigar store.

EARTH TREMORS RECORDED YESTERDAY AND EARLY TODAY

Shock at 2:42 A. M. Believed to Have Centered About 2600 Miles West of St. Louis.

Great unrest within the earth has been indicated at intervals during the last few days by the seismograph in the observatory at St. Louis University, and violent disturbances were recorded yesterday afternoon and early today.

The most violent shock occurred yesterday afternoon, at 3:23 o'clock, and lasted one hour and 37 minutes. Brother George R. Rueppel, assistant in charge of the observatory, calculated that the source of disturbance was at a point 7900 miles west, which would be in the southern part of Japan or China.

The second violent disturbance consisted of three distinct shocks between 2:42 and 3:04 a. m. today. This disturbance was traced to a point in the Pacific Ocean, 2600 miles west of St. Louis. Dispatches yesterday told of an earthquake in Manila.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. — An earthquake of moderate itnensity was recorded at the Georgetown University seismographical observatory early today, the tremors beginning at 3:42 a. m. and continuing for an hour. Director Tondorff of the observatory estimated the center of the disturbance at 1500 miles from Washington.

Another disturbance was recorded beginning at 11:48 a. m. and continuing until 12:45 p. m. It was described by the director as "very distant" and the reading was not sufficiently distinct to indicate its intensity.

MAN, 94, IS FOUND UNCONSCIOUS

Tailor Beside Gas Stove, With Burners Open.

Frank Arnold, 94 years old, a tailor, was found unconscious from gas in his home, 1113 Chambers street, at 3 p. m. yesterday. He was sitting by a gas stove, the burners of which had been opened, but were not lighted. Mrs. Ruth Parks, a daughter, said that was her father's accustomed place on cool days and that he probably attempted to light the burners and was overcome by accident. He was revived at the city hospital.

Julius W. Fahlkamp, 31, of 5407 Beacon street, was found unconscious near a gas stove at 5:30 p. m. He had suffered a nervous breakdown and had been in a sanitarium. A physician revived him.

Trapped by Telephone Book.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—When Mrs. Ethel Horstman, wife of Edward F. Horstman, found her husband's name in the telephone directory listed at another address, she went there and found another Mrs. Horstman. Horstman was arrested on complaint of Mrs. Ethel Horstman, to whom he was married in May last. The other Mrs. Horstman said she had been married to him for eight years. Both declined to sign a complaint against him and a charge of bigamy was preferred by the police.

$16,471 ACCOUNTS DUE DR. AMYX AT DEATH

List, Filed With Inventory of Estate, Contains Names of 690 Individual Patients.

A list of unpaid accounts for professional services rendered by Dr. Robert F. Amyx, who died Aug. 5, totaling $16,471.50, but carried at nominal value, is included in an inventory of his estate filed yesterday by the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. as executor. The list contains the names of 690 individual patients and 49 corporations and 77 items range from $1 to $272.

Other assets shown are personal property and realty, totaling $14,542.70. The realty, which was Dr. Amyx's residence at 1943 North Eleventh street, is appraised at $4400. Corporation stock with a face value of $44,750, but listed as of doubtful value, also are shown.

Dr. Amyx left his estate to Miss Margaret Lynch "in recognition of her long and faithful service as an employe in his office." His sister and several other relatives filed suit to set aside the will but the case was compromised out of court and the will formally sustained. In addition to the estate probated Dr. Amyx is said to have carried $50,000 life insurance, $35,000 of which was payable to Miss Lynch and the remainder to a nephew.

2 MEN AND GIRL ARRESTED IN WHOLESALE AUTO THEFT CASE

Prisoners, Taken at Kansas City, Deny Connection With Stealing of Cars Here.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 2.—Two men and a girl were arrested here tonight in connection with the investigation into wholesale theft of automobiles in St. Louis, which was disclosed last July, when 100 stolen cars, principally Ford coupes, were rounded up by detectives in Central Missouri towns.

The prisoners, booked as Earl Jobe, Kansas City, Kan.; J. T. Russell, Kansas City, Mo., and Helen Carey of Kansas City and Peoria, Ill., emphatically denied connection with the motor car thefts. Their arrest followed a purported confession by H. C. Dobbs, who was arrested Thursday, after he had been identified by George Routzan, an auto dealer at Tipton, Mo., as one of the men who had disposed of stolen cars at Tipton.

As ahs ben told, James Herbert Boughan, a Kansas City auto dealer, was arrested Oct. 11 on an indictment charging him with larceny in connection with the wholesale theft. John and Thomas Kehoe, two St. Louis police characters, and a third man, formerly in the automobile rental business here, also are under indictment. Boughan and the Kehoes are under bond. The other man was not apprehended.

CITY APPEALS FROM ORDER FOR RETURN OF WEAPONS TO HOGAN

Surrender of Revolvers to Police Will Be Required if Petition Is Sustained.

The city, through Assistant City Counselor Richard Bull, today filed an appeal in the Circuit Court from a decree issued April 16 by Justice of the Peace Miles, ordering the police to return four revolvers, valued at $200, to Edward J. (Jelly Roll) Hogan, 3835 Cass avenue, gangster and former member of the Legislature.

The appeal was filed on behalf of Chief of Police O'Brien, Chief of Detectives Hoagland and Detective Sergeant Sheller, who seized the weapons in an automobile in which Hogan was riding the night of June 25, 1922.

In conformance with the order, police returned the revolvers to Hogan, and the appeal, if sustained, will require their surrender. Hogan this week was sentenced to 50 days in jail for carrying a concealed weapon —the first conviction of numerous prosecutions brought against Hogan.

BUILDING MATERIAL CASE PASSED

Supreme Court Puts Off Trust Action Until January.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 3.—Quo warranto proceedings instituted by Attorney-General Barertt against 29 building-material dealers and millmen in St. Louis under the antitrust statutes were passed in Supreme Court en banc yesterday, until January, as the work of the special commissioner, D. W. Shackelford, has not been completed.

These prosecutions have awaited the outcome of similar action against 19 St. Louis lumber companies, which resulted in a victory for the State in the conviction of the companies last July and imposition of fines aggregating $96,000.

Former Union Officer Acquitted.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Richard Houlihan, former treasurer of the International Association of Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, was acquitted by a jury yesterday on a charge of embezzling $10,000. Houlihan testified that the alleged shortage was more apparent than real, that the transfer of $10,000 to another organization had been made in a legal manner.

"L" Railway Agent Shot to Death.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Charles H. Johnson, 65 years old, agent at an elevated railway station, was found shot through the heart, at the station early today. A window was broken and money scattered about the office, leading the police to believe he was shot in an attempted holdup.

FORMER FAVORITE IN SOCIETY ENDS LIFE

Mrs. Gregory Van Hicklen McLaughlin of New York Shoots Herself.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Temporary insanity was assigned today by members of the family as the cause of the suicide yesterday of Mrs. Gregory Van Hicklen McLoughlin, once a favorite in New York society.

She died in a hospital last night five hours after she had shot herself in the chest in her home at Mount Kisco. Repeated questions as to the cause of her act brought only the answer that she "did it because she wanted to." She told her husband, who is a well-known painter and the son of a New York banker, that she had pulled the trigger three times before the cartridge exploded.

Members of the family said she had appeared happy up to the time of the tragedy, spending several hours in the company of her three children.

Mrs. McLoughlin was the daughter of Mrs. Cornelius Van Vorst Sewell, a member of one of New York's oldest families.

Shortly after her wedding Mrs. McLoughlin surprised the society world by dropping society entirely. She said she had no patien with "Butterfly activities" and wanted to devote herself to housework, charity and study.

APPROVAL FOR LAWS OF LINCOLN BUILDING & LOAN ASSOCIATION

Finance Commissioner Millspaugh Announces Decision on Reorganization Plan of Trust.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 3.—State Finance Commissioner Millspaugh today said he had approved the bylaws of the Lincoln Building & Loan Association, organized to take over the assets and business of the Lincoln Housing Trust, and operate under the supervision of the Business and Loan division of the Finance Department.

An agreement has been entered into with the officers of the association that it will not write new business until it has completed the taking over of the Lincoln Housing Trust assets, which cannot be done until a court order authorizing it is obtained. It is understood this will be asked for after the assignments of shares in the Lincoln Housing Trust for conversion into shares of the building and loan association are obtained from the shareholders.

STRIKES COSTLY IN AUSTRALIA

Workers Lost $2,813,100 in Wages in Three Months Ending June 30.

By the Associated Press.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 3.—Strikes cost the workers of New South Wales $2,813,000 in wages during the three months ended June 30, according to State officials.

The strike fever seemed to have affected the mother state mainly, for of the 48 industrial disputes in Australia, involving more than 20,000 workers directly and indirectly, there were only three serious strikes in Victoria, five in Queensland and one in South Australia. Western Australia and Tasmania appear to have enjoyed perfect peace industrially, as not one dispute was reported from either of those districts.

At a recent function here delegates to the conference of the Employers' Federation of Australia issued a direct invitation to the employes to discuss their differences, not behind the barricades of the arbitration court, but over a friendly table.

RIOTING FOLLOWS POLICE STRIKE

Gangs of Rowdies Rob Many Stores in Melbourne.

By the Associated Press.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 3.—The comparative quiet prevailing since the beginning of the Melbourne police strike on Wednesday was broken late today when gangs of rowdies became active.

These gangs swept through the crowded streets, overturning tram cars, smashing shop windows and robbing many stores. The tram way board finally stopped all service and special police dispersed the crowds. Many of the rioters were injured.

FORMER ST. LOUIS WOMAN IS KILLED

Wife of Lieut.-Gov. Story of Montana Dies in Auto Accident—He Is in Hospital

By the Associated Press.

POCATELLO, Idaho, Nov. 3.—Lieutenant-Gover Nelson Story Jr., of Montana, is in a hospital, while the body of his wife lies in a local undertaking establishment—the result of an automobile turnover which occurred when Story applied his brakes too suddenly when approaching a sharp turn in the state highway, two an a half miles south of McCammon, Idaho, yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Story died about half an hour after the accident occurred.

Mr. and Mrs. Story were returning to Bozeman, Mont., from California, when the accident occurred.

Mrs Story was formerly Etha Mayo of St Louis.

Story was chosen Lieutenant-Governor in 1920. He was formerly chairman of the Republican State Committee and Mayor of Bozeman.

Story is improving to such an extent in a McCammon hospital that he will be brought to Pocatello some time today for an X-ray examination. Dr. J. M. Waste, McCammon physician in charge, said Mr. Story spent a restful night and awoke this morning fully conscious for the first time since the accident.

TEMPORARY RECEIVERS NAMED FOR FURNITURE COMPANY

Suit Against Daynite Concern Charges Note for $15,000 Was Made Under Duress.

A receivership for the Daynite Furniture Manufacturing Co., with offices in the Central National Bank Building and a factory at Kirkwood, is requested in a suit filed yesterday by the Perfection Furniture Manufacturing Co., of Cape Girardeau, and its president, Arthur E. Schuppan.

E. D. Hoffman, president of the Daynite company, and John I. Sample, a stockholder, are co-defendants. The Daynite company owes approximately $66,000 and has not operated since June, 1922, the petition alleges.

Schuppan asks that Hoffman be restrained from selling property included in four chattel mortgages and several deeds of trust which Schuppan executed to Hoffman in June, 1922. The petition charges that Hoffman advanced $44,000 to the Daynite company, of which Schuppan was then general manager, and insisted that Schuppan assume one-third of the indebtedness by giving his note for $15,280. Schuppan asserts this note was made under duress. Three farms, one in Scott County, another in Stoddard County and one in Perry County, are mentioned in the deeds of trust.

Schuppan and Samuel I. Sievers, a lawyer, were appointed temporary receivers by Judge Hartmann, who issued an order on defendants to show cause Nov. 15 why the receivership should not be made permanent.

In asking for cancellation of the note and release of the security, Schuppan asserts that the note was executed without consideration to him.

Gov. Hyde Grants Iowa's Requisition for Russell Cockburn.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 3.—Gov. Hyde today granted a requisition from the State of Iowa for the return to Des Moines of Russell Cockburn, a patient in a veteran's hospital at Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis, who is wanted in Iowa on a charge o fhaving been one of a number of persons who fraudulently obtained $86,000 of the funds of Des Moines while in the city's employ.

GOLFER'S NOSE IS BROKEN

Harry Gibson, of 4949 Forest Park boulevard, playing golf in Forest Park yesterday, swung with his driver at a ball, but hit on the nose Edward Kleykamp, 67 years old, of 3004 St. Louis avenue, who happened to be standing within the arc of the swing.

Gibson conveyed Kleykamp to Barnes Hospital, where it was found that his nose had been fractured.

"DO WALTON A FAVOR IN IMPEACHING HIM"

"State Can't Continue With This Millstone Around Its Neck," Prosecutor Says.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Nov. 3.—Defeated in his latest legal maneuver against the impeachment action instituted by the lower house of the State Legislature, Gov. J. C. Walton must go to trial Nov. 8, on all of the 22 charges of official misconduct contained in the indictment against him.

This was ordered by the Senate court of impeachment, which overruled the executive's demurrer to 12 of the articles in the impeachment bill at the close of the second day of the hearing last night. Nov. 7 was set as the date for the Governor to enter his formal plea and the following day the actual trial will begin with the introduction of testimony.

The court's action came after a lengthy argument by defense counsel in support of their demurrer to the charges on grounds that they either did not constitute impeachable offenses or were based upon insufficient evidence. Originally the Governor's attorneys had demurred to 14 of the impeachment articles, but the list was cut to 12 yesterday.

The defense move was hotly contested by the house board of managers, which is conducting the prosecution.

"I contend that we do this man a favor when we file these charges of impeachment against him," declared Representative W. E. Disney of Muskogee, chairman of the board, in his argument defending the charges attacked by the Governor's counsel. "The State cannot continue for three years longer with this millstone around its neck."

The court's vote on the demurrer was overwhelmingly against it. On only two of the articles did more than four members of the court vote to sustain it.

JEWELRY VALUED AT $2000 TAKEN IN STORE HOLDUP

Shopkeeper Put in Closet by Robbers, Who Rifle Safe and Get Also $100 in Money.

Two robbers held up Vernon Huff, jeweler, 2861 North Union boulevard, in his store at 4 p. m. yesterday, taking $100 in money and jewels valued at $2000.

Huff was at the telephone when the robbers entered. They compelled him to hang up the phone and walk into a closet room, which they barricaded. The unlocked safe in the store was rifled.

Huff told policemen he believed the robbers were the same pair who called at the store earlier in the day and examined some phonograph records. Huff freed himself from the closet after the men had departed.

NO CLEW TO GIRL ALONG RIVER

Had Telephoned Mother That Hat and Coat Would Be Found There.

Mrs. Florence Van Hest, 1014 North Leonard avenue, informed the police that her daughter, Mrs. Isabelle Linne, 20 years old, of 4870 King's highway, Northeast, telephoned to her at 10 o'clock last night that her hat and coat would be found on the bank of the Mississippi.

Mrs. Linne's husband, William F. Linne, a former taxicab chauffeur, said that she had left home after a quarrel. He is searching for her.

Mrs. Van Nest, aided by policemen, searched along the river bank most of last night, but found no trace of her daughter's hat or coat. "Maybe she is at some girl friend's home," suggested Mrs. Van Nest, when the search ended.

Four Persons Injured.

Two women and two men were injured last night in motor vehicle collisions. They were Miss Mary Pearick, 39 years old, of 3720 Westminster place; Joseph Stoyeba, 35, 6323 Page boulevard; Mrs. Leona Gary, 39, 4659 Alaska avenue, and William Stindlar, 29, 2931 Magnolia avenue. All were cut about the head except Stoyeba, who suffered fractured ribs.

JUDGE FOR RELEASE OF 2 'POLITICAL PRISONERS'

Californian Indorses Plea as to Tabib and Quigley—Reports to Coolidge on Trial.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The campaign for the reelase of Federal prisoners still in jail for the expression of unpopular opinions during the war has been advanced a measureable stage by a telegram just received from Federal Judge Frank H. Rudkin of San Francisco, who tried and sentenced the I. W. W. prisoners of the so-called Sacramento group.

Judge Rudkin says that, "assuming conditions are as stated in telegram of Abby Scott Baker, I concur in the recommendation of Preston and Duncan recommending the immediate release of Tabib and Quigley."

Caesar Tabib and Edward Quigley are the two Sacramento prisoners who have contracted tuberculosis. They are at Leavenworth. Mrs. Baker of the Joint Amnesty Committee, has shown through the statement of a Kansas City physician, who examined the men, that both have the disease in very active form and probably will never recover unless released soon.

Prosecutors Favor Release.

Preston and Duncan, named in Judge Rudkin's message, are, respectively, the former special assistant to the Attorney-General, in charge of war work in Northern California, and the man who conducted the Government prosecution of the Sacramento cases. Both recommended on Oct. 16 that the two tubercular prisoners be freed at once. Judge Rudkin's telegram, addressed to the joint amnesty committee, has been sent to the President, to be added to the bulky file of petitions asking for the unconditional release of all "political prisoners." Appeals for Tabib and Quigley have been further strengthened by a report to the Department of Justice from the Leavenworth Prison physician, recommending that the men be transferred to a different climate. Previous reports by this physician had been unfavorable to a change.

President Has Judge's Report.

At the White House it has been learned that President Coolidge has received from Judge Rudkin, in response to a request, a report covering the whole Sacramento trial. Persons who have talked with the President lately on the subject of amnesty have carried away the impression that Judge Rudkin's report is not unfavorable to clemency.

A number of recent White House intimations that the President is giving serious thought to the cases of the "political prisoners," together with the knowledge that new appeals in their behalf are constantly reaching him, have given amnesty workers new hope that the President, without much more delay, will wipe out this country's unenviable distinction of being the only one in which men are still in jail for the expression of opinion during the war.

KANSAS CITY JUDGE ACQUITTED

Was Charged With Leaving Scene of Fatal Auto Accident.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 3.—Edward J. Fleming, Judge of the South Side Municipal Court, was cleared of charges that he left the scene of a fatal motor car accident by a jury verdict returned in Circuit Court last night.

The charge grew out of the wrecking of his motor car here on the night of June 30, when Miss Elizabeth Dungan, an occupant of the car, was killed. It was brought out that Fleming walked only a short distance from the scene of the accident and he further pleaded that he was dazed by injuries received in the wreck.

ADA BLACKJACK ARRIVES IN U. S.

Eskimo Woman Was Survivor of Wrangell Island Expedition.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 3.—Ada Blackjack, an Eskimo woman, who was the sole survivor of an expedition led to Wrangell Island in the Arctic Ocean by Allan R. Crawford of Toronto in 1921, has arrived here from Nome, Alaska, on the steamship Victoria.

She is believed to have left for the East to join Capt. Harold Noice, leader of a relief party that took her from the island last August. Lorne Knight having died on the island in June and Crawford and the remainder of the party, R. W. Maurer and Milton Calle, having disappeared over the ice in the winter.

PRISON SENTENCE OF BANKER ON FRAUD CHARGE ANNOUNCED

Carl E. H. Smith, Denver, Given 4 to 10 Year Term on Plea of Guilty.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 3.—Carl E. H. Smith, Denver banker, on Oct. 20, last was sentenced to serve from four to 10 years in the State penitentiary when he entered a plea of guilty to obtaining money by false pretenses and fraudulently selling land twice, it was announced by Philip S. Van Cise, District Attorney, today.

According to the District Attorney, Smith obtained approximately $20,250 from the North Denver Bank here on fraudulent transactions, and $24,300 from the Central Savings Bank. The losses at both banks have been made good, according to the District Attorney. Smith was one of the vice presidents of the Central Savings Bank and president of the North Denver Bank.

Outside of his peculations at the two banks, according to the District Attorney, Smith failed for $95,750 which was owed to some 19 corporations and individuals and which was not secured by marketable securities.

NOBODY WINS FISHERMEN'S RACE

Blue Nose Captain, Holding He Is Winner, Sails Home.

By the Associated Press.

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 3.—Nobody won the international fishermen's schooner championship this year, Capt. Angus Walters of the Canadian champion Blue Nose considered that he had won it, however, and he and his crew sailed out to sea for their homeport, Lunenburg, yesterday, disregarding the plea of Nova Scotia officials to meet the American challenger, Columbia, in a third race today to decide who should win the trophy and prize money.

The Blue Nose won the first race from the Columbia and came in ahead on another Thursday, but lost because the race committee decided the Columbia had been fouled. The committee decided on a third and decisive race but Capt. Walters figured he had won two already. The trophy will be held by the committee for competition at Gloucester, Mass., next year. Capt. Pine of the Columbia was given the right to sail over the course alone today and thus technically win the race but he refused. Capt. Pine will receive $1200 awarded by the committee.

Receiver for Granite Company.

On the petition of the Lafayette Bank, Ben G. Brinkmann wa appointed receiver yesterday for the Schneider Granite Co., with quarries at Ironton, Mo. In February, 1922, th Schneider company issued $40,000 bonds secured by a mortgage on the assets. The bank holds $10,000 of these, on which interest has not been paid since Aug. 1, 1922. The petiti r alleged insolvency and asked appointment of a receiver to prote and other creditors. E. F Kinsel, president o. the company, made no objection.

DEATH OF BOY 'HOPPING RIDE' CALLED ACCIDENT

Schoolmates Contradict Story That John Aguayo, 8, Was Pushed Under Vehicle.

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned today in the case of John Aguayo, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeres Aguayo, 100 Bremen avenue, who died Wednesday from injuries suffered the day before when he was run over by a meat wagon on Bremen avenue, between Ninth and Eleventh streets.

John and his 10-year-old sister, Anita, had told the police that he was pushed beneath the wagon by two older boys, strangers to them, but their story was contradicted at the inquest today by several of their schoolmates who witnessed the accident.

Girls Testimony.

Mary Crowley, 14, of 813 Bremen avenue, testified that she and other children, including the Aguayos, were returning from school about 4 p. m. She was walking a few feet behind John and his sister. She saw John run into the street and "hop on" the side of the wagon. He slipped. She knew he was going to get hurt and she turned her head. In response to a question if she had seen anyone push John into the stret she replied: "I know he was not pushed."

Other children, including Orval Belt, 7; Richard Endsley, 10, and Joseph Billick, 7, residing near the foot of Bremen avenue, gave similar testimony. They all said they saw John "hop" the wagon and slip off. One of the back wheels passed over his body and the driver did not stop. Maybe he did not see the accident, the children testified.

Horse-Drawn Wagon.

The wagon was described as painted gray and was drawn by two horses. It was loaded with meat and was going toward the river. Policemen interviewed the drivers of the Krey Packing Co., the delivery wagons of which concern are drab colored.

Martin Kemp of 4464A Chouteau avenue, one of the Krey drivers, said re drove east in Bremen avenue about 3:50 p. m. Tuesday. He did not recall seeing any children passing along the street at the time. He felt no jar or bump, he said, and saw no one trying to "hop" his wagon. He testified at the inquest.

EDITOR CONVICTED OF LIBEL

Charges Based on Editorial Attack on Prosecutor.

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 3.—Lucius T. Russell, editor of the Newark Morning Ledger, and the Ledger Publishing Co., were found guilty of criminal libel by a jury yesterday. Bail was continued at $1500 pending the setting of a date for sentence.

The suit was brought by Prosecutor John O. Bigelow, who charged that the editor had criminally libeled him in two editorials in which, it was alleged, declaration was nade that the prosecutor's office protected criminals. Russell, in his own defense, contended that the editorials were legitimate criticism of the prosecutor's office and were not directed against the incumbents personally. In the course of his testimony Russell admitted that he had shot a man in Texas in self-defense when he was attacked for printing an editorial in his paper there in which he charged the local authorities with protecting gamblers.

Accused of Burning Bank Notes.

By the Associated Press.

GENOA, Nov. 3.—Nicola Pellegrini, a bank clerk, is charged with burning nearly a million lires' worth of bank notes for revenge against the Bank of America and Italy because he was refused an increase in salary. Pellegrini received $25 a month and told the bank officials this was not enough to live on. When his request for more money was refused, he is alleged to have taken the notes from the bank to his home, saturated them with gasoline and then watched them burn.

$115,000 APPROPRIATED FOR DES PERES BRIDGE

Kinsey Plans to Let Contract This Year, With Work to Start Early in Spring.

The Board of Aldermen yesterday passed an ordinance appropriating $115,000 for the construction of a reinforced concrete bridge over the River Des Peres at Gravois road, out of the $11,000,000 appropriation in the bond issue for the conversion of the River Des Peres into a public sewer. The ordinance previously had been approved by the Board of Public Service and the Citizens' Bond Issue Supervisory Committee.

President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service plans to let the contract for the construction of the bridge this year, enabling the contractor to start work early next spring.

A bill was introduced by Alderman Kuhs, extending the franchise rights of the St. Louis Automatic Refrigerating Co. for a period of 11 years, until Aug. 26, 1935. Kuhs explained that this company, which is the sucessor of the St. Louis Cold Storage and Refrigeration Co., furnishes refrigeration to stalls in Union Market, firms along commission row on Fourth street, and some of the downtown hotels. Their pipes are under streets and alleys adjacent to these places. The ordinance would authorize the company to continue the use of these pipes under the streets and alleys of the city. The ordinance provides that the company furnish a $25,000 surety bond to protect the city against any claim.

At the request of the Comptroller, Alderman Kuhs introduced a bill authorizing the Mayor and Comptroller to renew the lease to the Government for a portion of the unimproved wharf at Rutger street for periods not exceeding two years. The conditions of the lease to the Government, made June 15, 1921, was that the Government should build and operate a dock on the site within two years. A dock has been constructed but has not been operated. The Comptroller is in favor of granting the Government more time to complete the dock and operate it.

The Legislative Committee will hold a public hearing on the traffic bill, introduced at the request of the Mayor's Traffic Committee and supported by the Safety Council and the Automobile Club, Wednesday morning at 10:30 in the chambers of the Board of Aldermen. The bill condenses all the traffic ordinances now in the municipal code into one ordinance and confers upon the Director of Streets and Sewers the power to regulate parking and establish boulevard stops without the passage of an ordinance by Aldermen. A majority of the members of the Legislative Committee are opposed to granting such wide powers to the director.

CHILD BURNED AT GRATE DIES

Dress of Girl Catches Fire When She Plays in Room Alone.

Mattie, 2-year-old daughter of Archie and Cora Waters, 726 Baugh street, East St. Louis, died today from burns suffered while playing with a fire in a grate at her home Thursday evening.

Mrs. Waters, intending to visit a neighbor, had left the room where her daughter was standing gazing into the grate. When she returned she found Mattie's dress in flames and the child screaming and vainly trying to get it off. Mrs. Waters could not extinguish the fire before the child was badly burned on the left side.

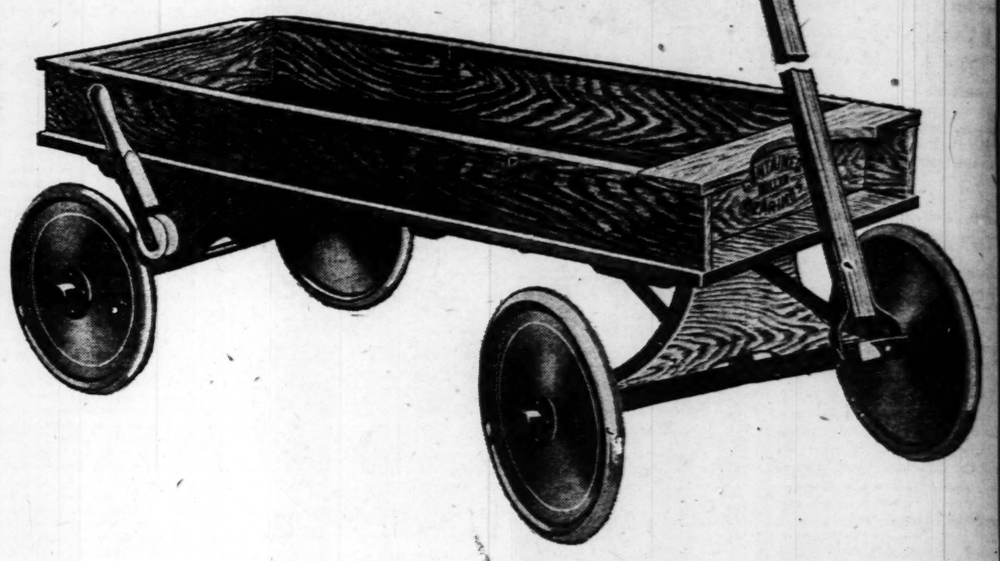
For a Boy's Christmas—An Aero Flyer



What could possibly suit a boy's fancy or compel a boy's enthusiasm to the same degree that this fleet, handsome coaster wagon will?

Whatever a boy may NEED, there can be no doubt that he WANTS—always—the things that GO! The things that respond to his urge for action—the speedier the better!

And so we suggest today to the parent, elder brother, sister or other adult relative, already searching the lists for the ONE gift that will bring greatest happiness to Junior on Christmas morning, that there need be no doubt about the manner of his reception of an Aero Flyer.

More than 3400 of these "Coaster Wagon Aristocrats" have been distributed FREE by the Post-Dispatch since September 2d. These three thousand are demonstrating, daily, in every neighborhood section of St. Louis and environs, Aero Flyer sturdiness, beauty and speed. They meet every test imposed by boy owners. They inspire boys who have received them to write us letters that praise, unstintingly, the prize we have chosen for boy subscription-getters.

The Aero Flyer model offered by the Post-Dispatch has a retail value of ten dollars. It is a worthy prize for spare-time effort, and no normal boy could fail to be delighted with it as a Christmas gift.

You May Count Upon

Post-Dispatch Co-operation With Santa Claus

First, by renewal here of the offer of an Aero Flyer for four new subscriptions, on the terms outlined below.

Second, by withholding publication of the boy's name from Honor Roll lists, when that is requested, and,

Third, by free storage of the Aero Flyer, if desired, to be delivered December 15th or later.

Resolve now that an Aero Flyer will delight some manly boy on Christmas morning. The first step is enrollment. Mail the completed Enrollment Blank NOW—while you have it in mind. Then read carefully, and be guided by these

MAN AND WIFE IN HOSPITAL, BOTH SHOT

They Say They Were Wounded at Roadhouse by Man Who Argued With Secondhand Dealer.

Abraham Fiener, 31 years old, 1005 North and South road, Brentwood, St. Louis County, and his wife, Mrs. Anna Fiener, 29, were taken to the Jewish Hospital last night, suffering from bullet wounds. Fiener, who was shot in the chest, is in a serious condition. Mrs. Fiener was shot in the left leg.

Policemen, questioning Mr. and Mrs. Fiener at the hospital, were told the shooting occurred in a roadhouse across the street from the Fiener home. Fiener, who is a secondhand dealer, said the shooting was doned by a man known to him only as James, who resides above the roadhouse.

Fiener said he went to the roadhouse to get a bottle of beer and got into an argument with James, who drew a revolver, and shot him. Mrs. Fiener, who had heard the argument, ran across the street from her home. She entered the roadhouse as James fired at her husband. James shot at her, she said, when she tried to interfere between him and her husband.

County authorities, who are investigating the case, say that James left home shortly after the shooting. He has not yet been found.

MAN, WOUNDED BY SHOT FIRED AT ANOTHER, DIES

Pneumonia Given as Cause of Death of Giuseppi Perusian—No Clew to Assailants.

Giuseppi Perusion of 910A Biddle street, who was shot in the mouth when another Italian was assassinated the night of Sept. 28, while sitting in front of a grocery store at 912 Biddle street, died at 6:30 a. m. yesterday at Baptist Hospital, from pneumonia. An autopsy will be performed tomorrow to determine if the bullet wound contributed to the cause of death.

Perusian and Tana Rollo of 1127A North Ninth street, were attacked by three men, one of whom shot Rollo in the head and chest, causing almost instant death. One of these bullets passed through Rollo and entered Perusian's mouth, lodging in his throat. He was treated at the city hospital and apparently recovered. He recently became ill and was taken to Baptist Hospital Wednesday.

The assassins escaped and the police have no clew to their identity.

2 MEN HURT, 2 AUTOS WRECKED IN UNIVERSITY CITY COLLISION

One of Machines Destroyed by Fire After Smash on Olive Street Road Intersection.

Two men suffered undetermined injuries which caused them to be taken to a hospital, and two automobiles were wrecked, one of them being destroyed by fire, in a collision of the machines at the intersection of the Olive Street road and Mt. Vernon avenue, University City, about 7:30 this morning.

University City police and firemen reported that William Letter, 3469 Locust street, was driving his automobile east, when he struck a automobile driven by W. K. Myers, of 7721 Olive street, going in the opposite direction.

In Myers' car were two passengers, who gave their names at St. Luke's Hospital as Mitchell Schaul, 1529 Hogan street, and P. J. Tiemer, 5736 Theodosia avenue. Myers' wrecked car caught fire and the University City fire department responded to an alarm. Meyrs suffered cuts and bruises and was removed to his home.

BOY SHOT HALLOWEEN NIGHT TO LOSE SIGHT OF ONE EYE

Operation to Be Performed When Edward Walton, 11, Is in Less Serious Condition.

As a result of having been shot Halleween night when he was one of a crowd of merrymakers, Edward Walton, 11 years old, will lose the sight of his right eye, it was announced at St. John's Hospital today. An operation for the removal of the eye will be made as soon as the boy is in a less serious condition. Two other buckshot, one of which physicians have not yet been able to extract, entered Walton's head.

The shooting was done by Lee Moss, 41 years old, St. John's Statistician, who is now being held at Clayton on default of $5000 bail on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

DR. COOK'S LAWYER REBUKED

Former Senator Bailey Draws Fire of Judge.

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 3.—Former United States Senator Joseph W. Bailey, chief counsel employed to defend Dr. Frederick A. Cook and his 13 codefendants in the oil frauds cases now being heard in Federal Court, drew a rebuke from yesterday's session.

Bailey, according to Federal Judge Kittrs, challenged the right of the court to question a witness. "It was the second serious clash between the court since the hearing started.

"The court has a right to conduct this case as it sees fit, in an effort to bring facts to light," said Judge Kittrs. "Certainly he has not forgotten in Texas that a Federal judge has not the right to intimidate a witness to develop facts."

City News in Brief

MRS. J. B. THOMAS WAS ELECTED president of the Methodist Episcopal Women's Foreign Missionary Society of St. Louis at the society's annual meeting last night at Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, Skinker and Waterman avenues. Other officers elected were: Corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. C. Boutelle; recording secretary, Mrs. F. A. Raithel; treasurer, Mrs. W. J. Parker.

JOHN WEBER, 70 YEARS OLD, OF 306 West Schirmer street, suffered concussion of the brain, scalp wounds and several fractured ribs at 6 p. m. yesterday when knocked down by a southbound Broadway car at Courtois street.

MRS. MARY CONNEY, 55, IS BEING sought in St. Louis by policewomen at the request of relatives in Chicago who say they want to settle an estate with Mrs. Cooney's assistance. She was last heard from here, they say, 15 years ago.

LOUIS K. HAMMER, 60, OF 3950 SULlivan avenue, employed at the Beicher Hotel, Fourth street and Lucas avenue, fell dead on the sidewalk in front of 1001 North Second street yesterday.

TWO MEN WHO REPRESENTED themselves as detectives stopped James Scott of 4233 Cook avenue, near Delmar boulevard and Euclid avenue, at 8:15 p. m. yesterday, and robbed him of $5, gave him a kick and told him to "get out of the neighborhood." Scott remained around, however, and a half hour later pointed out two men he thought resembled the robbers at Washington boulevard and Euclid avenue to Policeman Glenn. When Glenn started after them, the men ran and escaped.

SAMUEL CROWELL, 2633 OHIO AVENUE, chauffeur for a laundry, told policemen he had been robbed of $30 by three men who boarded his truck at 6400 Marmaduke avenue and made him drive to a point beneath the railroad bridge near Ivanhoe and Southwest avenue. They told him to "speed up" and get out of the neighborhood after the robbery.

A REWARD OF $200 HAS BEEN POSTed with the police for the arrest and conviction of three negroes who stole $3 from Lee Hin, a Chinese, in his restaurant at 2226 Franklin avenue, Thursday noon after assaulting him. An attorney representing the Chinese Reform Association notified Chief O'Brien that the association was back of the effort to capture the negroes and prosecute them.

300 DOZEN PAIRS OF GLOVES

Stolen Goods Seized After Shipment From Here to Chicago.

Word was received yesterday that the Chicago police have 300 dozen pairs of women's gloves, of the wholesale value of $3000, sent from St. Louis by express to a Chicago "fence." The police here learned that the gloves were stolen from the Rothschild Bros. Hat Co., Eleventh street and Washington avenue. Manager Joseph Singer of that firm went to Chicago to reclaim them.

The goods were delivered to the express office here by an Italian. J. C. Leonard was given as the shipper, with an address on Easton avenue. No such person was found at the address given.

NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

"THE WOMAN OF KNOCKALOE," by Hall Caine. (Dodd, Mead & Co.)

HALL CAINE, pacifist, changed into war-propagandist when war came, rejoiced with the return of peace that the great war had ended war, and all but despaired when he found that the war had not ended war and that the after-war, called The Peace, was proving more productive of passions than the war had been.

So now he publishes the story of "The Woman of Knockaloe," which he calls a parable, in an effort to show that there can be "no peace under the soldier's sword," and that the salvation of the world is a personal return of all men to the laws of love and mutual sacrifice and human brotherhood.

"The Woman of Knockaloe" is so named because she, Mona Craine, is the only woman at the civilian internment camp at Knockaloe farm on the Isle of Man during the war, there assisting her father in unwillingly serving, at the Government's behest, the German prisoners. She comes to know Oskar Heine, an educated German, and finds herself, after a while, to her horror, pitying him and then loving him.

They hope that with the coming of peace there might be happiness for them either in Germany or England, but after-war hatreds made that impossible and they sacrifice themselves for the world's redemption.

As the story is told and the sacrifice described, it is a tremendous appeal for world peace. Frankly, a preachment it is not the less a beautiful and natural love story of strong human appeal.

"WANDERING IN NORTHERN CHINA," by Harry A. Franck. (Century Co.)

THE wandering described was not of a casual sort. Mr. Franck has seen and understood extraordinarily in a region where more than superficial seeing is not easy, and where understanding is not attained by all visitors. And he has told a most interesting story. Korea (Chosen) is described in the opening chapters, with a critical, but seemingly just review of the merits and faults of Japanese administration.

Moving into China, the climax of interest is reached, after crossing the Gobi desert, in a visit to "Red" Mongolia and its holy city of Urga, where the "Living Buddha" resides. The life of a "Living Buddha" was literally "a short life and a gay one" before the days of the present incumbent. These hand-picked deities, chosen in childhood, were not restrained from excesses, and they died at the age of 18 with suspicious regularity—until the present "Living Buddha," who is well on in middle age. He is blind, from the effects of profligacy, but this does not deter the populace from paying him the homage of actual worship. Another interesting figure is the one-time boy Emperor, who chooses to be known as Henry, and who has two brides and would probably take a third, if the Chinese people would pay his pension arrears.

Bright pictures of the condition and prospects of present-day China do not appeal to this author, who warns Americans not to infer too much from the ability and progressiveness of a few Western-trained men like Minister Sze. His frequent references to missionaries show a ton of fairness and are sympathetic and largely commendatory.

"DOCTOR NYE," by Joseph C. Lincoln. (D. Appleton & Co.)

NORTH Ostable was the Doctor's address before he went to the Penitentiary for taking the church building funds and he had the hardihood to set up again in North Ostable after he left the institution. It was a slow job to show the town that it had been mistaken, and that the doctor was a good citizen and a good fellow, but it all gets happily done. Like the other Lincoln stories, this one is mostly atmosphere and salt breeze.

"FIELD BOOK OF COMMON ROCKS AND MINERALS," by Frederic Brewster Loomis. (G. P. Putnam's Sons.)

A HANDBOOK of science which is at the same time an artistic addition to any library. Of the many full-page plates, a number are examples of the finest color printing. The pictures of the banded agate and the jasper are two of the most admirable.' The information is compact and conveniently arranged.

"MONSIEUR JONQUELLE," Prefect of Police of Paris. By Melville Davidson Post. (Appleton.)

SUPER detective stories are most of the dozen in this volume. M. Jonquelle reads finger prints of the mind, rather than those of the hand, and his imagination and a notable gift of conversational oratory enable him to bring self-accusation from the lips of the guilty.

"THE GIRL IN THE FOG," by Joseph Gollomb. (Boni & Liveright.)

LOVERS of mystery and detective stories will hail this one with delight. In the thick pall of a London fog there descends on a girl of great beauty a series of weird tragedies that drive her to the verge of madness.

The bloody finger prints found on the throat of her scientist father, who was murdered, were those of a criminal who had been legally executed four days before. With this as a start, the story moves tensely to the end.

"CROSS SECTIONS," by Julian Street. (Doubleday Page & Co.)

A COLLECTION of short stories. "The Lost Columbine" an amusing fantasy of a masquerade, is very clever and "Living up to Letchwood" pokes broad fun at our "million circulation" magazines and their passionate serials. "The Jaz Baby" satirizes the younger generation with a savage severity, born out of a complete understanding and sympathy. "The Bride of Boreas" and "A Voice in the Hall" are also included in this volume.

"A LAUGH A DAY," his favorite stories, as told by Irvin S. Cobb. (Doran.)

A COLECTION of anecdotes in which the author's skill as a narrator of funny stories is well brought out. They are purported to be the humorist's own favorites, and as there are 365 of them in the volume, dealing with all classes from United States Senators down to the mythical Pat and Mike, the reader is impressed with the catholicity of Mr. Cobb's taste. All are well told. Readers of the Post-Dispatch Comic Page who have been following these stories from day to day can now have them permanently collected and preserved for them.

"CAROLYN WELLS," "An Outline of Humor." (Putnam.)

THESE are the days of outlines. To the outlines of science, history, literature and art is now added an outline of humor. Compiled by the author of "The Book of Humorous Verse" and "A Nonsense Anthology," the work is well done. Samples are given of the humor of ancient and modern times and of the intervening ages and from French, German, English and American writers. It is a book to keep on the table to serve as a source of brightness and cheer. The student of the history and development of humor and of the various theories of its nature will find here a brief account of the different philosophies of the subject and famous masterpieces by which these theories are illustrated or refuted. He may also reflect upon the fact some of these writings have greatly entertained others though they are not at all amusing to him.

"ST. NICHOLAS" BOOK OF VERSE.' (Century Co.)

A CAREFUL selection of the best verse appearing in 50 years in that exquisite magazine for children, St. Nicholas, ought to be welcome to children and to those parents who realize the value of reading aloud as a means of unifying the family life. The compilers have tried all these poems on their own children, the criterion of excellence being joy in reading and hearing. Many of the poems were written by children. There are no sorrowful poems here, and no verse without music in it. Those who purchase this book are recommended not to put it on the book shelves, where it is likely to be forgotten, but to keep it on the table where it can easily be picked up. It may help some families to discover that a better and happier time every way can be had at home with good stories and musical verse than can be found at the movies.

"THE OUTLINE OF RADIO," by John V. L. Bogan. (Little, Brown & Co.)

"JUST what I wanted to know," is what many a reader of this little volume is likely to exclaim as he lays it down. It attempts to answer the questions: "Just what is this radio, anyway? How did it happen? What makes it work?" It is within the comprehension of all who are acquainted with the fundamental principles of physics, of all, for instance, who understand the telegraph and telephone. After a brief historical review and a statement of the basic principles of all communication systems, it is explained how electro magnetic waves are used as a medium of transmission, how these waves are created, how codes, speech and music are impressed upon them and how they are received and intensified. The last two chapters set forth what wireless is now doing in the world and suggests extensions of this service which are warranted by the technical progress already made.

"THE THOMAS JEFFERSON BIBLE," edited by Henry Jackson. (Boni & Liveright.)

A NEW edition of a famous Biblical compilation with much interesting comment, and with a curious and uncomely figure, apparently intended for an angel, upon the cover.

Of the 333 pages, the actual text of Jefferson's selections from the Gospels, in the King James version which he used, occupy only the last 82 pages. More space is taken by the editor's discussion of the work, and his story of the manner in which Jefferson prepared it. The book was not read by others until after Jefferson's death, and was not made accessible to the public until it was printed as a Government document in 1904.

As is generally known, Jefferson omitted all passages indicating the supernatural, and ended the story with the death and burial of Jesus. He preserved the parables, however. The present editor, Mr. Jackson, thinks that Jefferson omitted one passage which should not be omitted, and he inserts it. This is the description, from the fourth chapter of Luke, of the vivid scene in which Jesus appears as a preacher to His fellow townsmen in the Nazareth synagogue. However, the editor cuts from the brief recorded discourse three verses, in which Jesus is quoted as citing miraculous deeds of Elijah and Elisha.

The new edition also offers the Jefferson selections in the Weymouth version as preferable to the King James translation. The Weymouth translation, a modern affair, was published by the Pilgrim Press, which is the publication house of the Congregational Church. The Weymouth version is under such headings as "A Child Has No Superior," "An Abandoned Woman," "A Reversal of Values" (the parable of Dives and Lazarus), and "A Popular Short Story" (the parable of the Prodigal Son.) The Weymouth version of the Lord's Pray is:

"Father, may Thy name be kept holy; let Thy kingdom come; give us day after day our bread for the day; and forgive us our sins, for we ourselves also forgive every one who fails in his duty to us; and bring us not into temptation."

"ON AUTUMN TRAILS" by (Emma Lindsay Squier) Cosmopolitan Book Corporation.

A PREVIOUS book "The Wild Heart" put this writer in the front rank as a writer of nature stories. "On Autumn Trails" are personal experiences told with the simplicity and charm of one who knows the out-doors. A grown-up book for children and a children's book for grown-ups.

"LIFE OF ROGER BROOKE TANEY, CHIEF JUSTICE OF THE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT, by Rennard C. Steiner. (Williams and Wilkins Company, Baltimore.)

THIS biography is the work of a true scholar. Mr. Steiner has selected a subject that appeals strongly to historians and to lawyers, but not, perhaps, to the average reader. Taney will always be associated in popular opinion with the wrong side of the slavery question. The average reader is not interested in the biography of men, even great men, who are indentified in history with lost cause unless they happen to be soldiers. Taney was not a soldier. He hated soldiers. No Judge in history tried to do more in the way of discrediting the military power of Government.

If Taney was right in his view of war, then not only Abraham Lincoln but also William McKinley and Woodrow Wilson, must be regarded as usurpers. There is something tragic about Taney's career. He possessed all virtues except one, and that was wisdom as to the limitations of law. Himself so devoted to law, he did not realize that the slavery question was too permeated with passion and prejudice for settlement by judicial decree. At this day it is impossible to read a fair biography like Steiner's without feeling that Taney was sincere, honest, learned and patriotic when he wrote his famous opinion in the Dred Scott case, but he lacked common sense. The generation which condemned that opinion has passed away.

"What should be our view at the present time? Steiner's book furnishes all necessary data, including an excellent summary of worthy criticisms much as the recent and notable study by Prof. Edward S. Corwin of Princeton. The only issue actually decided by the Supreme Court was as to the legal servitude of a St. Louis negro named Dred Scott. On that issue Taney was clearly right. But Taney thought he could settle the political controversies of slavery by expressing his opinion on other questions besides the simple question of property before the court. Taney announced two additional propositions as if they were law. The first was that of a negro, because he was a negro, could never be a citizen of the United States. There is excellent reason for believing that this was good theoretical law until the fourteenth amendment was adopted in 1868. The second proposition was that the Missouri compromise act was unconstitutional. This view, in theory, is undoubtedly correct if Chief Justice White's "incorporation doctrine," invented after the Spanish War of 1898, is good law, and that doctrine is accepted as good law in every law school in the land. Taney's error was not in the domain of legality, but in the domain of common sense.

A wise Judge will always sidestep a political question. Taney himself did this in Luther vs. Borden, decided in 1849, which involved the legality of two contending governments in Rhode Island. In that case Taney sagaciously said that the question was not one of law, but one of politics and as such had already been decided by the President and Congress But in the Dred Scott case, when the purely political question of congressional power over the territories of the Louisana Purchase was before the court, Taney did not hesitate to say in effect that a thousand governmental acts in those territories, including the execution of murderers, were null and void. This may have been legally correct, but it was unpardonably stupid. Poor Taney paid the penalty and the Supreme Court suffered an injury in prestige from which it has not yet fully recovered.

Steiner's well-printed book contains 552 pages. Quotations are numerous and authorities are always given. At the same time Mr. Steiner is quite willing to express his own opinions on controverted questions, and those opinions are generally temperate and judicious. The book ought to be especially interesting to St. Louis readers because of its full treatment of the two lawsuits over Dred Scott's servitude, which directly concerned the representatives of so many St. Louis families, including the Gambles, the Blows, the Geyers, the Charlesses, and the Blairs.

TYRRELL WILLIAMS.

"FAMOUS SINGLE POEMS," by Burton E. Stevenson. Harcourt, Brace & Co.

IT is the fate of famous single poems, when they gain a certain celebrity, this author says, to be claimed by many people, with the most amusing and astonishing results. Therefore, it becomes necessary, if justice is to be done, that authorship be decided. As bearing upon the authorship of the 15 poems gathered into this volume the compiler offers material which was occumulated during the gathering of "The Home Book of Verse." He hopes it will settle certain historic and more or less heated controversies.

The book tells how the famous "lyrics" were written and of the controversies waged about the authorship. The 15 are: "There Is No Death," "Kaiser & Co.," "A Visit From St. Nicholas," "There Is No Unbelief," "Casey at the Bat," "If I Should Die Tonight," "Waiting," "Ben Bolt," "Beautiful Snow," "Nothing to Wear," "Solitude," "Rock Me to Sleep," "The Lesson of the Water Mill," "What My Lover Said" and "Derelict."

"RED BIRD," by William Ellery Leonard. (B. W. Huebsch.)

"RED BIRD" is a drama of Wisconsin history, in four acts, which attempts to present, by the symbolism of a dramatic episode in American frontier history, certain issues of life in individual and nation. The author is professor in the English department of the University of Wisconsin. It is based upon the legend of "Red Bird," Winnebago chief, who surrendered when he found that a supposed wrong to his people, which he had terribly avenged, was but idle gossip.

FABLES, by Robert Louis Stevenson. (Charles Scribner's Sons.)

THE fable as a form of literary art is said to have had at all times a great attraction for Robert Louis Stevenson. He was accustomed to try his hand occasionally on the composition of such and planned making a book of them. Before carrying out the plan he took up his residence in Samoa and found so much there to write about that the fables were forgotten or put off with a promise of attention at a more convenient time. Only one or two were added to the collection during the six years of his residence in Samoa. It is considered certain that the collection, at the time of his death, was not such as he expected to make it, but the 20 fables, as first published in Longman's Magazine, are now offered in the form of a small volume.

It is interesting to be told in an introductory note that, according to the author's conception, several of his semi-supernatural stories, such as "Will of the Mill," "Markheim" and even "Jekyl and Hyde," belonged essentially to the field of fable.

Simultaneously and from the same publishers appears a small selection of the poems of Stevenson.

The QUICK and EASY way to find a LOST ARTICLE is to ADVERTISE the loss in POST-DISPATCH WANTS!

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

DAVE—The information you desire concerning the bond issue can be read at the Public Library.

C. B. S.—Consult the advertising agencies in St. Louis for the names of magazines such as you desire.

B. L. G.—The St. Louis Zoo might be interested in purchasing your rattlesnakes; write to them for information.

F. L. Y.—Babe Ruth made 41 home runs during this last baseball season. He tied with Cy Williams of the Phils for major league honors.

T. A.—Following are some of the Spanish publications in New York, N. Y.: American Futura, American Exporter, Magazine de la Raza, Norte Americano (deals with Pan-American affairs), and the Pictorial Review publishes a Spanish edition.

C. W. B.—When a man is on first base and a batter is up at the plate, the man on first starts for second as the pitcher throws the ball, and the batter hits the ball and reaches first. This is called a hit and run play.

NAMELESS.—Eels may be stewed or fried or made into a sort of chowder. To stew them, skin, clean and cut off the heads, and then cut them into pieces two inches long. Put them into a stewing pan, cover with water, add a tablespoonful of vinegar, and simmer for 10 minutes. Then drain and put a tablespoon of butter in a saucepan and when it is melted add two tablespoons of flour, mixed well, and add a pint of the water in which the eels were stewed. When boiling, add a tablespoon of pepper and the eels. Cover and stew gently for 20 minutes. Dish and dust thickly with chopped parsley and garnish with triangular pieces of toasted bread.

BIRDIE.—Some canaries are so nervous that they never attempt to sing in the presence of any person for a very considerable period of time. Some of them sing freely when left by themselves, but refuse to do so in the presence of other birds. This happens most frequently with birds that have been kept for singing only, and have been isolated for a long time, and probably petted as well. Whenever a strange bird is introduced into the presence of an old bachelor bird, unaccustomed to company of another bird, he is liable to become peevish and jealous, and is likely to be excited to anger on such an occasion, in which case he will sulk and refuse to sing. But if he takes kindly toward his companion, he will sing harder and louder than before the introduction, through rivalry. The only means of getting a bird of the former disposition to sing is to remove the stranger or intruder. Canaries readily learn the songs of other birds. If you wish them to acquire another song, differing from their natural lay, you must remove the birds you desire to be taught at an early age, and place them where they will hear the songs of no other bird than the ones whose notes you wish them to learn. They can be taught to imitate flutes and other musical instruments. One tune only should be played in their daily hearing, until they have acquired it and when a second is introduced the first one should be repeated at short intervals.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

G. R. E.—If your husband leaves you without cause, he will have to continue to support you.

A. R. W.—Under these circumstances, the named beneficiary would receive the insurance, in case the insured died.

A. B. C.—The landlord can sue you at once. However, if you explain the facts in the Justice Court, a few days' time may possibly be allowed you.

MR. A. M.—You cannot go on your neighbor's property to paint your fence unless he consents to your doing so. There is no law permitting you to do so.

BROTHER-IN-LAW.—If the husband refuses to support his wife you can report the fact to the Prosecuting Attorney, in the Municipal Courts Building.

JOE N.—There is no workmen's compensation law in force in Missouri. If the company refuses to settle with you, for your injury, you will have to sue them in the Circuit Court.

M. A. B.—(1) A one-month's written notice that you are going to vacate, given to the landlord, is good. Notice by mail is good, provided that you can prove that he received the notice, but this is usually difficult to do. The notice need not be sealed by a notary public. (2) If the husband died, leaving no children and no will, his wife would receive one-half of the estate, and his relatives the other one-half.

READER.—City ordinance 30607 requires that apartments which are leased with an agreement, either expressed or implied, to furnish heat, must be heated so that the rooms occupied as living quarters are not less than 70 degrees from 7 a. m. to 10:30 p. m., and not less than 60 degrees from 10:30 p. m. to 7 a. m., during the period from Oct 1 to May 15. You can report the facts to the Prosecuting Attorneys' office and have them prosecuted and fined for not providing heat. You can also sue for any damages you have sustained as a result of not having heat.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

J. J. F.—Consult the pure food and drug commissioner and the license collector for the information you desire.

UNFORTUNATE GIRL.—We advise that you consult the gynecological clinic at 1605 South Fourteenth street.

WORRIED JANE.—If you will please repeat your question, inclosing a stamped addressed envelope, it will be answered.

MRS. L. A. M.—We do not publish the names of physicians in this column. Repeat your question, enclosing a stamped addressed envelope for reply.

HOT.—Treatment would help you considerably for the condition you describe, and this is what should be had. We think hypodermics of corpus luteum would be of value. There is no danger in taking oil of anise; the dose is one to three drops.

K. M.—There is no reason why a man of sixty, may not stop smoking without ill effects. If upon discontinuance the need of a stimulant to replace the tobacco is felt the following is useful: tincture capsicum, 6 minims, tincture nux vomica and tincture calumbae of each 1 ounce, tincture cinchona compound, enough added to make 4 ounces. Take a teaspoonful in water after meals.

MARION.—The period differs in different women, some two and three days and some longer. A week could be normal. The condition, however should receive attention. The cause may be local or constitutional and if not complicated, would hardly affect the ovary. A woman having this condition can become pregnant, but is not so likely to, as a perfectly healthy woman, especially if the cause is local. You can bear children with one ovary removed.

MODERATE GAINS IN STOCK LIST IN WEEK-END TRADE

Railroad Shares as Whole Rather Quiet — General Market Irregular Early — Bonds Firm.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Although considerable irregularity cropped out in the early trading in stocks, sufficient strength soon developed to insure the finish of the week with the bull movement still in progress. Those stocks which have been leaders in the market rally were the weakest at the opening, but support was forthcoming and the losses were not only regained but further small advances were registered. Aside from one or two issues the rail shares were rather quiet, and trading over the industrial list was only moderately active. As the market closed, moderate gains predominated throughout. Bonds were firm in quiet trading.

"Rather active trading in sterling and French francs were the only features of the foreign exchange markets. Quotations at the opening were established on the basis of London's closing, with sterling at a new low for the year at $4.45 3-8. As trading developed, however, the quotation improved a half cent, bringing the price up to the previous close. French francs were firm as were the other continental allies. Other Europeans were inclined to be lower, particularly the Scandinavians and Spanish pesetas.

"In view of the sharp rise in cotton futures in response to an unexpectedly bullish government crop estimate, resulting in the operation of the rule of the Cotton Exchange bringing trading to a close when an advance of 200 points has been registered in any one day, interest in the market was unusual. Heavy profit-taking was the natural sequence, but it was absorbed without much difficulty and was offset by mill and further speculative buying which carried prices up to the highest levels reached since the deflation period of 1920. The advance at Liverpool also was sharp, being partly in response to the action of our market yesterday. At a late price of 32.50 the December future was 22 points above the previous close. In grain, aside from covering of shorts in corn, there was little of interest. Wheat for the most part showed a strong tone.

"A decrease of $35,000,000 in surplus as shown by the statement of the Clearing House brought a deficit of $13,350,000 in that item. This change was accompanied by a decrease in loans of $10,457,000 and an increase of $34,440,000 in demand deposits. Other changes were unimportant.

GRAIN PRICES HIGHER IN TRADE AT WEEK-END

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Wheat exhibited much strength early today, but prices reacted little from the high point in the later trading under realizing sales. There was an improvement in the trade, and there was said to be some good commission-house buying for investment account, largely for Eastern clients. This scared many shorts into covering. On the bulge longs took profits. It is difficult to account for this display of bullishness, but the fact that the market has failed to respond to bearish news the last few days caused a change in sentiment. Foreign exchange was weaker. Liverpool market was a little firmer. Milling demand was light. Millers' federation is advocating a 15c increase in the tariff on wheat to aid the farmers. Shipping sales were 57,000 bushels. Market closed ½@⅝c up, December, $1.07¼@⅜; May, $1.12⅛@⅝ to ¾; July, $1.09⅛.

Corn also scored a sharp advance. There was buying by houses with Eastern connections and short covering. The bulge brought out some long corn for profit. Cash corn was irregular. New corn was unchanged, old No. 2 white 3c lower and No. 2 yellow ¼c higher. Weather was unfavorable for gathering the new crop. Shipping demand was light. Sales were 30,000 bushels. Market closed ½@1¼c higher, December, 74⅛@⅝c; May, 73⅛@¼c; July, 73⅛c.

Oats followed wheat and corn early. On the bulge cash houses sold. Sales were 24,000 bushels. Market closed ⅛@¼c higher, December, 41⅝@⅝c; May, 44⅛c; July, 43⅛@⅜c.

Provisions were easy early. Locals sold in expectation of big hog receipts next week. Cash interests bought on the dip. Lard closed unchanged to 7½c lower, ribs 10c lower and bellies 10c higher.

LLOYD GEORGE CALLS ON U. S. TO 'FOLLOW THROUGH'

In Final Eloquent Appeal He Says It Is Duty of Britain and America to Bring World Peace.

SAILS TODAY AFTER AMERICAN TOUR

Great Audience Hears Him at the Metropolitan Point Out His View of Work Yet to Be Done in Europe.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—A new voice, wistful and appealing, called to the American people last night to finish the work they began in 1917. The voice—that of David Lloyd George—has been heard by small groups here and elsewhere in the United States and Canada. Perhaps it was not a faint voice before. But last night it spoke to millions, and its musical tones stretched across the entire continent like a soft thunder. Today he sails for England.

Lloyd George spoke in the Metropolitan Opera House to as brilliant an audience as that old hall has ever known ut in the mall of Central Park in flats and cottages from here to the Golden Gate, he spoke to the public invisibly—by radio. It was said his voice was heard by more people than have ever heard a single human voice at one time before.

The plea he made was the same he sent out from the rear of his special train and in the halls as far west as Winnipeg. But it was a little more eloquent than it has been before. Its ring was a little clearer.

He pointed out two paths to America and, in doing so, pointed them also to Great Britain. One is the path of indifference to Europe, with the threat, he said, of a new and inconceivable calamity before the present generation has died out. The other was the path of unselfishness and peace.

On the United States and Great Britain, he said, as he has said before, rests the future of humanity. If they do not prove to a distracted, blinded Europe that justice can outrace force, civilization will collapse. Its walls are sagging dangerously now, he said.

The United States and Great Britain, as the two nations that entered the war without a selfish motive, he said, are the two nations that must show Europe what it does not now believe. Responding to the war cry did not complete their obligations, he said.

"Work Is Only Half Done."

He spread his legs wide. His two hands played cease'essly with the black ribbon of his gold-rimmed pince nez. He glanced down at the floor and then quickly upward, and said:

"The work is only half done. If it is not finished, civilization is doomed within this generation to a catastrophe such as the world has never seen."

He used a golfing term, "Follow through," as that best expressing the maxim he offered for both the United States and Great Britain. He pleaded that the policy of avoiding Europe was not courageous nor farsighted.

"There are millions underneath the wreckage," he said.

He told quietly, but with graphic, almost lyrical, words how Europe is suffering from the war.

"Don't be harsh on Europe," was the soft phrase he repeated so often that it assumed the emphasis of a giant's shout.

Persuasive; Manner Easy.

New York has seldom heard a speaker so persuasive, so winning. America has known few of them. His tone was intimate, caressing. His voice is thin, a little high and with a slight accent of his native Wales. But it has a variety of tones that makes it musical. His words were strange on the lips of a politician. They were chosen with poetic care. His ruddy face, with its laugh wrinkles chased by those of gravity, won him affectionate attention.

His manner was as easy as that of the armchair talker and his gestures far more fluent. The audience accepted him at once as a new and delightful friend for the moment talking about a disagreeably serious subject. They were honestly sorry when he stopped.

He has a peculiar manner as he speaks. He stood close to the table with his hands pressed on it and his face thrust intimately forward as he began each part of his speech. And then he would fall back three paces, stretch his legs apart, play with his glasses ribbon with both hands, or gesticulate naturally. His words never drew a picture but that his hands and body made it vivid.

Speech Built on the Human Note.

It was a skillful speech, a polished speech. Its artistry caught and held his audience, although there sat before him, solidly intrenched, every variety of political opinion. But it seemed that he wrung more from them for himself than for his views. He built his speech on the personal, human note. He talked to each one individually. They liked him for it.

It was of him, not of what he said, that the great crowd murmured as it pressed toward the doors. His very skill had robbed his theme of the drawing power of a simpler man with less genius. His voice was wistful, tender, but it was the voice of a great actor, not, so it seemed to one, at least, a great man. Here was not the crude, overpowering sentiment of a Clemenceau, but the sweet lute of a player rapt in his playing.

The audience was a distinguished and polite one. Its politeness froze inside the wall of white shirt fronts and bright gowns and jewels any spontaneous outbursts. But its applause always was perfectly placed and sometimes hinted a spontaneity that in that gathering meant enthusiasm. Only two men broke through the shirt fronts. One called "Hear, hear!" when Lloyd George said America's duty was only half done. The other cried out at the end, "Three cheer for Lloyd George, the father of the Free State."

Outside the Metropolitan things did not move quite so smoothly. A band of Irish sympathizers, no sign of whom came inside the hall, were chased by the police. Two thousand police guarded the hall inside and out and the route he took from the home of Thomas W. Lamont to it and from it to the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, where he spent the remainder of the night.

Has a Talk With "the Boys."

Lloyd George talked over old times to his heart's content for a few minutes yesterday with two former cronies of the peace conference table at Versailles—E. M. House and Frank Polk. First the British ex-Premier had luncheon and had stolen a little nap at the John W. Davis home on Long Island. He awakened fresh and twinkling, had comfortable chairs drawn together in the sun and invited "the boys" to join him.

LLOYD GEORGE'S FAREWELL APPEAL TO LIFT WRECKAGE FROM SUFFERING EUROPE

There Are Millions Underneath, He Says, in Calling on America and Britain to Save World for Peace.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—In his speech last night David Lloyd George thanked the American people for the cordial welcome accorded him and said he left these shores with regret.

"I have traveled," he said, "some thousands of miles in Canada and the United States of America, and my first, and I think, my deepest, impression is the vastness of these two great countries, countries of infinite resources and of endless possibilities.

"I came here to address eight meetings—I believe this is my seventieth. It is not in mortal man to deliver 70 speeches without saying something for which he is sorry. If I have said anything in the course of these numerous speeches that has given offense to anyone, that has transgressed any of your party controversies—well, please put it down to my ignorance and pass it over.

"I did not willingly trespass. I came on no mission, but, being asked to speak, I have spoken frankly. I have spoken what I believe. I have seen a suggestion that I was in collusion with Lord Curzon in something which I said. Well, I haven't the honor of having any consultation or communication or previous arrangement with Lord Curzon. I am a member of no Government, I am simply a private citizen. But in the things I have said I had a certain sense of personal responsibility, having regard to the part which I had played in the war and in the making of the peace.

Responsibility—War and Peace.

"We have all had our responsibility. During the war I stood for the ruthless prosecution of the war to a triumphant end. The moment the war was over I equally stood for a ruthless prosecution of peace to an even more glorious end. Those who make war, whether they are individuals or nations, cannot esca.e responsibility for the peace.

"Europe is in a deplorable condition. Whose is the responsibility? Some say it is the treaty of Versailles. Well, I am not here to defend the treaty of Versailles. I am quite willing on an appropriate occasion, to do so, and to say that it was the best treaty that could be negotiated under the conditions of the time. But it is not the treaty of Versailles. Every treaty depends not merely upon its intrinsic merits, but upon the methods and manner of its execution.

"But the condition of Europe was not created by the treaty of Versailles. The difficulties were not created by that treaty. They were created by the war. They were created by completeness of the victory. It was the most complete victory that has ever been won in wars between great nations. Germany and Austria were shattered, demoralized, disarmed, prostrate; we left them like broken-back creatures on the road for any chariot to run over. We created the responsibility. Who did it? Who smashed Germany? Who smashed Austria? Who created the impotence which makes it difficult to execute treaties?

"Well, if you had asked it on armistice days, we all would have gently hinted that it was really done by us.

Prone to Dodge Responsibility.

"Now," he added, "the nations were more prone to dodge the responsibility.

"We were all responsible for the victory," he said. "We each contributed his part, we each did something toward shattering the fabric, and we have got our responsibility for what follows.

"It is easier to make war than make peace. In the civil war in America, there were millions of men who were prepared to sacrifice their lives to wage successful war, but there was only one man who was prepared to risk his career to make a successful peace. He was shot down. You say, 'Yes, by an unbalanced mind.' All vengeance is unbalanced. Every vindictive man or woman is partly insane.

"Your chairman has referred to the great step taken recently by your Government to try to restore order out of chaos in Europe. I acclaim that step with full enthusiasm. When it was first proposed a year ago I felt it was the right step to take. It is suggested that I have been using flattering words since I came here about that proposal. The moment it was published in December of last year, I wrote an article supporting that proposal. I thought it was the right course to take, and I am glad at last there is some prospect of its being acted upon.

"There are two golf principles which are constantly dinned into the ear of the golfer, which I would apply to Mr. Secretary Hughes' proposal now.

"The first is, follow through, the second is, keep your eye on the ball.

"You are playing in rough country, full of bunkers, part of it a wilderness. There are some who might try and get the ball into the rut, and, once it is there, they might even substitute another.

"And, if you follow these rules, I believe this great play will be won. Europe will be better for it. America will be better for it. The world will be better for it. Humanity will be better, civilization will be better for it.

America and the World.

"The world is better because America at one moment took an interest in the enforcement of right beyond its own frontiers. The world will be better tomorrow when it knows that the interest of America in human right has not weakened.

"Your country and ours have very largely the same problems to consider and to confront. There is a natural disinclination in England to get entangled in European politics. It is traditional. We have said: 'We are an island in the Atlantic; we have got the sea between us and you,' and in the past it has proved to be just as difficult to cross the Straits of Dover as to cross the Atlantic Ocean, when the British fleet is about."

Describing the terrible toll of life and property taken by the World War and admonishing America not to think too harshly of Europe, he said:

"There are events in the lives of men and in the lives of nations which are like the fall of the autumn leaves. But, once in a century there are events which are like the fall of the stars; the fragments strike the earth and send it rocking and reeling out of its course.

"There were empires in Europe that were like the planets in the heavens that have been rolled down into utter, endless darkness. There were countries that were like the fixed stars in the firmament; they have crashed into atoms. The earth quivers in Europe and no one can tell how far it has been shocked out of its course. Don't be hard on Europe.

Millions Under the Wreckage.

"But they say to us in Britain and they say to you here, 'Keep clear of the wreckage.' Yes, but there are millions underneath. Europe has played a great part. There would have been no known America had there been no Europe to find it. You have got a great, virile population. It came from Europe.

"What is the real problem in Europe today? I will tell you. In spite of the war, because Europe has been left so much to herself, she still believes in force. Why?

"France says: 'Justice never gave Alsace-Lorraine back. We had to lose one million of our young men. You in the British Empire had to lose 900,000 of younr young men. Force gave it back to us.'

"Poland says: 'Force came at the end of 150 years and unlocked the door of our nationality.'

"The Russian peasant says today: 'We never saw the light of liberty until the revolutionist came with his power and blew our prison walls down.'

"But what does Germany say? Germany says: 'We trusted to justice. We trusted to treaty. We are broken; we are shattered. Why? We are disarmed. We have no force.'

"That is why Europe believes in force. That is why Europe believes in violence. What is the remedy? Give Europe the conviction that right is supreme over force. Who is to do it? There are only two countries on earth who can establish that conviction, and those are the United States of America and the British Empire.

"Unless it is done I don't know what is going to happen. France, at the present moment is committed to holding the wolf by the ear. She cannot let go, but ultimately it may tear and rend her.

"I heard yesterday from a man who had just returned from Germany, who met one of the officers who had been appointed at the Treaty of Versailles to break up the cannon and the machine guns and the torpedoes of Germany. He said up to the last year the German workmen, wherever he went to the workshops and arsenals, used to help him to destroy these guns and say: 'For God's sake, destroy them. These are the things that brought ruin on our country.' Now he says there is a change. There is a change. They say: 'We cannot trust justice, we cannot trust treaties, we cannot trust the world of great nations? force is the only thing that rules in the world.'

"Unless you stamp out that conviction, civilization is doomed on this earth.

Catastrophe or Happiness.

"Why do I say that these great nationalities are the only two that can provide the remedy. These two countries entered the war for no selfish purpose. We both came in to redress a great wrong.

"There have been times in the history of the world where you have had two or three nations that for the time being have been the Trustee of civilization. One after another they have failed. They have not discharged their functions and, in spite of the efforts and the power they enjoyed in the days of their might, one after another they went and new nations sprang up to take their places. Commission on trusteeship of civilization does not come from kings; does not come from rulers or princes; it does not come from Senates and Parliaments nor councils. It comes from on high. When it comes it does not come from the choice of the people. It comes from the will of God.

"That commission—that commission is yours and ours today.

"The scene is a divine occasion. You responded to the invisible message in 1917 and we had already done so; but the commission is not fulfilled. The work is only half done. If it is not discharged fully—fully—civilization is doomed within this generation to a catastrophe such as the world has never seen. But, if you here, this mighty people, if our people throughout the British Empire, resolutely, firmly, courageously, without flinching, carry out the message, then I have no fear but that humanity will climb to higher altitudes of nobility, of security, of happiness, than any it has ever yet known."

Swedish Foreign Minister to Resign.

By the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 3.—Foreign Minister Hederstjona has telegraphed to King Gustave his intention of resigning as soon as the King returns from England, where he has gone for the marriage of the Crown Prince. The minister's decision is due to thepress campaign waged against him since his recent speech in which he openly declared himself in favor of a defensive alliance between Sweden and Finland against possible Russian aggression.

New England for Coolidge, Says Lodge.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 3.—Declaring that he feels that President Coolidge will be the presidential nominee of the Republican party in 1924, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts expressed the conviction here yesterday that the six New England States will rally behind their native son.

Halloween Depredations.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I READ in some paper today that a little boy had been shot out in the county, who happened to be the one in line of the fire of an irate property owner who fired promiscuously at a bunch of marauders who go around one night in the year feeling they have a right under the guise of the word Halloween to wreck property, bother pedestrians, tear up for sale and rent signs, and generally cause thousands of dollars worth of damage to citizens, all under the license of perpetrating Halloween jokes.

It is too bad such a thing happened, of course, but if a bunch of these marauders, and who, by the way, I find are mostly the sons and daughters of our most respected citizens in the West End were rounded up in the north, east, south and west of our city doing this dirty work, and their heads knocked together until they yelled to go home and go to bed, where they belon,, by our policemen, who do not seem to do anything in that line, it would do this city a whole lot of good and tend to make better citizens of all those youngsters who are training themselves to have the right to do as they please, regardless of other people's rights. ALBERT T. TERRY.

Some Fogs.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN all my travels here and in Europe I met mostly representatives that hailed from St. Louis. All I could hear after any sort of an argument was "St. Louis has the best climate in the U. S. A." being that I myself somewhat claim that Denver, Colo., offers the most wonderful climate. Here is my answer for my above-mentioned friends:

There are fogs that make you chilly,
There are fogs that make you damp;
There are fogs that drive away the sunshine,
As the bulldog drives away the tramp.

There are fogs that hardly blur the vision,
There are others that would float a boat;
But the fogs that roll in Sunday mornings
Are the f-o-g-s that g-e-t my g-o-a-t
E. J. EICKHORN.

Zoning Laws.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE POST-DISPATCH is opposed to prohibition because it is an infringement of personal rights guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States. But it is in favor of the so-called zoning law, which has been held unconstitutional by every court from Circuit to Supreme before which it has been argued, and is giving its support to the effort now being made by those who seek to divide the city into classes, or rather the people—where the rich will live in one district, the fairly well-to-do in another and the poor in the alleys and slums. The rich man may invade the district where the poor live and build his slaughter house or glue factory, but the poor are to be kept away from where the rich live, that their mere presence may not be an offense to them. If the attempt to fasten the zoning principle on the people of this community is not an invasion of personal rights, and property rights, then I would like to know what it is. A READER.

Dark Streets on Halloween.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

HOW long will St. Louis householders tamely submit to the peril of dark streets on Halloween? All through the Cabanne district the lamps were put out early in the evening, and not relighted. No doubt the same occurred all over the city. If our streets were safe at night we might overlook this as merely a childish prank, but they are not safe even with every lamp burning with all its feeble power. Every lamp put out of commission makes the danger greater to pedestrians and residents near by. If our police are too tender-hearted to arrest those caught in the act of turning out lamps, why does not the Board instruct the patrolmen to relight them as fast as they are turned out? Pending the coming of decently lighted streets let us do our best with what we have. CABANNE RESIDENT.

Report Cases of Cruelty.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE Humane Society of Missouri asks your readers to report any case of cruelty or neglect to children or animals coming to their notice anywhere in the city or county, to this society. An investigation by an experienced agent will be promptly made. Report your case the hour you learn of it if possible; information treated confidentially.

BREAK THE SMOKE PALL.

The Committee on Smoke Regulation of the Chamber of Commerce has drawn up an authentic answer to objections advanced against the pending smoke ordinance. Not only are reason and explanation offered to the attacks made on the ordinance, but the experience of such cities as Pittsburg, Chicago, Cleveland and Cincinnati is cited in proof of the soundness of the ordinance's provisions.

Not only is smoke abatement in St. Louis theoretically and practically feasible, but the thing is being done in other cities. As much or more afflicted than any other metropolis, we have waived the honor of being first in the field and of having sister cities copy after us. The damage to St. Louis increases and becomes disgraceful the longer we postpone modern regulations to scotch this fearful blight.

About all has been said in these columns that may be said on the need of smoke elimination and the penalty of inaction in the matter. Since we have reviewed the subject, however, a St. Louis engineer, Victor J. Azbe, has had published in an engineering magazine an article in which it is estimated that $1,000,000,000 a year is wasted in the nation through imperfect fuel combustion and that the St. Louis share of this is $10,000,000. This is beside the scores of thousands of dollars a year in property damage caused by smoke.

The ordinance was first carefully prepared on the basis of experience in this field and modeled on the Pittsburg law, which was the result of exhaustive investigation by the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research. Since local objection has arisen the challenged provisions have been supported by further research.

Recent autumn mornings, frosty and windless and blazing with sunshine in the surrounding country, have been turned into hectic night in St. Louis by the descent of the city's own smoke back upon itself. From happy daylight we have been plunged into gloom and the discomfort of smoke-filled lungs and throat.

While the city is subjected to this costly pall of grime, notwithstanding that its removal is possible and feasible, it should feel disgraced. The pending ordinance may not wipe out the evil completely, but it is the best start that can be made. With all objections authentically answered, the burden now falls upon the Board of Aldermen and the city administration to explain why the ordinance should not be passed and made effective at once.

THE WIZARD'S FAILURE.

The estate of the late Charles P. Steinmetz is not sufficient, it is said, to carry out the few small bequests of the will. The inventory shows an ancient automobile and a $1500 insurance policy. Here is a failure for Main Street to deplore and Crookery to deride.

Such lack of thrift, frankly, may not be offered for general emulation. Steinmetz was a rare spirit in whose philosophy or needs money did not count. It is in his unselfishness and tireless industry that youth will find patterns after which to fashion their efforts. Incidentally it is to be hoped that the big corporation with which he was associated and which made and will continue to make large profits from his labors will make good the engineer's modest gifts.

THE PEDESTRIAN'S WHITE LINE.

Our streets have been marked, at the crossings, with broad white lines, intended to show pedestrians where they may safely cross. Drivers of vehicles have contended that in the interest of safety pedestrians should observe these lines and make it a rule never to cross the streets except at the crossings so designated.

But the practice has grown up of automobile drivers refusing to recognize these lines, and a great many drivers, on coming to a crossing and seeing that they cannot at once proceed, go as far as they dare and stop right over the narrow path laid out for the use of the pedestrians, thus preventing the latter from crossing, or forcing them to go out in the street beyond the white line.

It is perhaps useless to hope that offenders of this class in the present generation can be taught to do better. The Automobile Club might bring the matter to their attention. But as a very large proportion of the generation now growing up will become automobile users, it might be as well to teach automobile manners and the rules of traffic in the schools.

A LAUNDRY MONOPOLY REVERSE.

If F. W. Ireland is like other laundry patrons he has been paying a cent for insurance on every bundle he has sent to the laundry. But the insurance was not for the protection of his own property. It was to insure the laundry company against the defects of its own system. When a certain bundle failed to return he had to sue the company for reimbursement and then found himself face to face not with one company but with the whole mobilized power of the Laundrymen's Association.

That association it was which conceived the ingenious idea of taxing laundry patrons to pay the losses of the companies. Therefore, a legal precedent of reimbursing a patron for the loss of a bundle in the custody of one of its members must not be established. It was established, however, by the Justice and Circuit Courts, and the laundry counsel, evidently seeing defeat, decided to settle before the St. Louis Court of Appeals rendered a verdict.

The reader will recall that laundry associations are exempt from prosecution for price-fixing under the antimonopoly law of the State because that law, in its present form, applies only to articles and not to service such as rendered by the laundries. An attempt to amend the law to include the laundries met with a favorable vote of 78 to 6 in the lower house of the last Legislature, but was kept from a vote in the Senate largely through the activities of a St. Louis Senator, Frank B. Warner.

It is possible that St. Louis laundry patrons will yet rise up and defeat legislative candidates who lend their talents to laundry monopoly rather than to the people. Meanwhile, the laundry monopoly, though temporarily secure in its castle, is tremendously popularizing the soft collar, the private laundress and the washing machine.

NEGLECTING THE NOLLE PROS.

It is a good thing for Paul Palermo that there is a statute which liberates an accused person if four terms of court pass without trial. By virtue of that law Palermo has been relieved of the charge of murder. Without it, the man might have rested under the charge forever because of the inertia of the Circuit Attorney's office.

Palermo is an obscure citizen, whose sole distinction is that he killed two men in his saloon. He says they were attacking him. He proved it by the State's witnesses when he was tried for killing one of the men and was acquitted.

Circuit Attorney Sidener and his assistant who was handling the case agreed that there was no evidence against the man and no hope of convicting him in the other case. So far as their capacity to prove anything to the contrary was concerned, he was an innocent man, and entitled to release from the imputation of guilt. The way to make amends when a man has been unjustly accused is to nolle pros the case against him.

Prosecutors are usually too liberal with the nolle pros. Circuit Attorney Sidener has been criticised in the past for improper liberality. The criticism seems to have incapacitated him for the proper exercise of the function. Anyhow, Palermo remained under charges, with all the attaching disabilities, until, by the lapsing of four terms of court, he automatically became entitled to freedom.

Automatic justice is better than none, but a Circuit Attorney ought to use the nolle prosequi as unhesitatingly where the circumstances call for it as to refuse it when the circumstances do not justify.

MR. ANTWINE'S OPINION.

"WE are all by this time skeptical of reports that the missing link has been found. It has been found too many times," Mr. Antwine said. "We would, therefore, dismiss with a smile the story of the Santa Barbara man, which is the latest of these scientific discoveries and is said by the Smithsonian experts to carry us back to a time before the Neanderthal man, if the discovery came from any place but California.

"California bears a singular relation to the rest of the country. It is the home of the movies, which have exaggerated our time into a bigness by which we are engulfed. That earth which we formerly lived upon in the quiet and calm of values determined by long and careful thought has been made by the movies a vast phantasmagoria in which we are neither sure of anything nor have the least sense of proportion.

"California is also the home of isolation as a political faith in America—a blinking of fact which is comparable only to the delusion of the ostrich that by hiding its head it renders itself unseen. We have other isolationists than those in California, but they reach their most characteristic and fantastical form in Senator Johnson, who presents the spectacle of a man with his head in the sand kicking out vigorously in every direction.

"It is for these reasons that the Santa Barbara man has done what neither the Neanderthal man nor Pithecanthropus Erectus was able to do. He has been eagerly hailed by a joyous laity, which finds in his entire absence of forehead and unusual bigness of mouth assurance that California has always been just as she is now. We shall probably see duels fought over the grave and active differences of opinion as to whether the Santa Barbara man was in moving pictures or politics. It will probably take measurements with intricate scientific instruments to determine which opinion is correct.

"So, hat our usual skepticism, our hoarse bark of disbelief, does not lie in the present instance," Mr. Antwine said. "We do believe it, and we think it is damned interesting."

The Democrats of St. Louis are looking for a club house where the party can be at home locally and revive the scandals of former Democratic clubs in the city. Meanwhile, the Republicans are using the city hall for their club house. It has served their purpose admirably for a number of years, and has the advantage of being free from rent. This was always a bugbear to the Democrats, and if they find a place the enterprise will likely resolve itself into the usual difficulty about rent. Why don't they realize that this will be the case and try to drive the Republicans out of the city hall? It would not take half the effort to do it that will be required to get a good competent Democratic club started on a rental basis.

Certainly Turkey is the last place to which anyone would have looked for democracy, which recalls the celebrated aphorism that you never can tell.

THE DROWNING RENTER GRASPS AT A STRAW.

Sir: How quick we are to assume when the other fellow does something different from our way he is a fool. Take the case of France and our own in the matter of taxes. France collects less than needed to conduct the Government, making up the deficit by issuing bonds. We collect the full amount. As one reporter puts it, the American taxpayer gets a receipt; the French taxpayer gets a receipt for part, and a bond for the balance.

Now, the first impression this situation makes is that we are hard-headed business people, and the French are not. They are simply going deeper into debt and the inevitable end is bankruptcy, we think. Are we thinking straight, or is it possible that the most highly civilized people in the world, with a reputation for saving that threatens to oust the Scotch from pre-eminence have some good reasons for their seemingly unwise financing?

I refer the question to the two-story thinkers for an answer, submitting, for illustration, the concrete example of the results of the two methods in the purchase of a new apartment building bought at cost from the builder, and assuming that the French builder directly and indirectly has paid taxes amounting to $1500 and the American $3000—these amounts including all taxes of every sort, personal, amusement, income, profits, etc. I further assume that to cover interest on the investment, depreciation, property tax and insurance, both owners would expect to collect in rents 10 per cent of the cost. The American tenant would, therefore, pay $300 per year on account of taxes included in cost, and the French $150. Added to the latter, however, would be the interest at 4½ per cent on $1500 in bonds, plus annual payment for retiring the principal, say $50 per annum for 30 years, a total for the first year of $117.50, a net saving to the French tenant of $32.50. This would be increased $2.25 per year over each prior year and at the end of 30 years the total saving would be $1953.75. After that time the full $150 per year would be saved. This is all simple arithmetic; the two-story thinker's problem is to find the element omitted from the analysis that vitiates the conclusion.

Perhaps, after all, your corps of volunteers should not be asked to solve the problem which when stated seems plenty big enough for Chancellor Hadley's professionals. Certainly if the Chancellor can assist in finding a way to reduce rents, it will be a very valuable advertisement for Washington University and higher education. I mention the Chancellor because he is at the beginning of a career we all hope will be as successful as his heart desires, but the field is not barred to the thinkers of St. Louis University, or any others.

WHERE is my river, I wonder, today?
The river aquiver in laughter and play;
The Sunday stream
In its noonday gleam,
With violet winds in the rushes astray?

Where is the river the whole week long?

Does it flee from the scream
Of our whistle—and dream
In some nook—and on Sunday— it comes forth

FRANCE AND ITS FRIENDS.

From the Philadelphia Record.

NINE years ago German officers would have kept their dinner engagements in Paris even after the middle of August if England had not gone to France's assistance. Six years ago France would in all probability have collapsed if the United States had not gone to its rescue. France is also deeply indebted to Italy for diverting the Austrian forces. In view of France's obligations to these three countries, it plainly owes some consideration for their opinions. Italy has not said much on the subject of the Ruhr, but it has taken no part in the military efforts of France to collect the indemnity. Our Government has kept out of the controversy, but it will be pleased to join with its associates in the war in constituting a commission to investigate Germany's capacity to pay. England has for months been trying to impress it upon France that the invasion of the Ruhr is authorized by the peace treaty only if done by the Allies collectively, and that the occupation of the Ruhr is seriously impairing the ability of Germany to pay anything, and is imperiling the prosperity and even the peace of Europe. But France cares nothing for the opinions of any of the nations that saved it. It will consent to an inquiry into German resources by a subsidiary of the Reparations Commission, provided that there shall be no reduction of the 132 billion gold marks assessed by the commission, and that the investigation shall be limited to ascertaining if Germany can pay more, and to any additional time in payments that Germany may need. It is hardly worth while to go on with the investigation. If the economic experts should report that Germany could not pay half the indemnity fixed by the commission, it might force France's allies to take some action. But if France will under no circumstances consent to a reduction, it is hardly worth while to make it. The assessment levied by the Reparations Commission was an aggregate of claims. There never was any investigation of Germany's ability to pay, and men of authority of this country, England and Italy do not believe that 132 billion gold marks is a possible sum.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA.

From the Detroit News.

SUNDAY celebrates the fifth anniversary of the republic of Czechoslovakia. It is an adage that no news is good news, and the truism is nowhere more evident than in Europe. The silent progress of President Masaryk's republic is eloquent amid the "alarums and excursions" which surround it in every direction. The five years have been marked by two distinct policies both of them markedly successful. One was to establish good commercial arrangements with the neighboring states; the other was to stabilize the domestic economic situation and balance the budget. The quiet persistence with which Masaryk and Edward Benes have pursued these objectives has been paralleled by a corresponding prosperity within the State. Where neighbors are trying to leap to reform by revolution, Czechoslovakia plods slowly but surely forward, paying her bills, living decently and finding a little to put by in the bank. Men try many ways to reach their goal in good government and social satisfaction, but no one yet has found a better formula than the old-fashioned one of quiet work and sincerity of conduct.

$266,871 PLEDGED TO SYMPHONY FUND

Special Campaign Ends but Work Will Go On Until $500,000 Goal Is Reached.

The week's special campaign of the St. Louis Symphony Society to raise $500,000 in cash subscriptions, with which to meet deficits of the Symphony Orchestra in the next three years, officially closed with the noonday luncheon at Hotel Statler, today, with a total of $266,871 pledges reported.

At the same time it was announced the drive for the guarantee fund would be carried on indefinitely until the desired amount is raised, and headquarters will be maintained at 404 Equitable Building. Following the luncheon, at which the previous day's collections of $34,071 was announced, members of the 51 teams who have made solicitations were asked to assemble to recruit volunteers for the extended drive.

Although the amount raised is only slightly in excess of half the amount sought, General Chairman Frank P. Crunden and George D. Markham, chairman of the Big Givers' Committee, expressed themselves as well pleased with the response, and predicted the goal would be reached after a campaign of "mopping up" had been carried out.

Some Large Contributions.

The following large contributions were announced: St. Louis Clearing House Association, $2500; Mrs. Daniel Catlin, $500, and Catlin estate, $2000; the Globe-Democrat, $1500; Mr. and Mrs. Ewing Hill, $2000; Laclede Gas Light Co., $250; St. Louis Independent Packing Co., $500; Mrs. Newton R. Wilson, $3000; American Automobile Insurance Co., $500, and Mrs. David R. Calhoun, $1000.

Mention also was made that Mrs. Mary Lionberger had doubled her subscription of $300, and another individual, who asked that the name be not divulged, increased a subscription of $1000 to $2000. Chairman Markham also announced that Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Knight, both of whom are out of the city, had given assurance of a pledge of $5000 for each year of the three-year period, which would constitute the contribution next largest to the $10,000 a year pledge of John W. Fowler, president of the Symphony Society.

NO FAVORITISM TO AMERICANS

Have Been Made to Comply With French Divorce Laws.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Americans getting divorces in Paris have been made to comply fully with the French laws, it is shown by an investigation ordered by Premier Poincare. The Prosecutor Lescouve was instructed to make the inquiry when the American embassy recently transmitted complaints from a number of leading lawyers in the United States to the effect that the Paris divorce courts had been grinding out separations too easily for some Americans.

M. Lescouve reported to Premier Poincare that the Americans are treated exactly the same as the French, the cases are judged entirely according to French laws, and there is no favoritism.

ACTORS' TERMS REJECTED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—A deadlock existed today over renewal of the contract expiring June 1, 1924, between the Producing Managers' Association and the Actors' Equity Association, by the refusal of the steering committee of the managers to accept the Equity terms. Augustus Thomas announced the proposal was rejected unanimously after a stormy two hours' session. A further attempt to meet the situation will be made at a meeting of the managers early next week.

Lee Shubert, who conferred with Equity heads, reported the actors' terms to the managers. The terms amount practically to forcing the "closed shop" on the managers, said Thomas.

WILSON TO SPEAK OVER RADIO FOR 10 MINUTES ON NOV. 10

American Participation in Peace of the World Likely to Be His Subject.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Woodrow Wilson will address the American people on the night of Nov. 10 on the significance of Armistice day.

He will speak from his S street home here, and his message will be carried to every section of the country by radio. It will be the first time his voice has been heard outside of Washington since he was stricken in the West in September, 1919, while carrying to the country his fight for the League of Nations.

The former President has promised to speak for 10 minutes, and his friends believe he will devote much of his address to the subject closest to his heart—American participation in the establishment of the peace of the world.

Mr. Wilson's message probably will be heard by millions, not only by owners of home radio sets, but also by crowds at public gatherings for which his friends in many cities are expected to arrange.

Under present plans the former President will begin to speak at 8 o'clock, talking into a microphone. His message will be carried over a telephone wire to a speech apparatus mounted on a truck stationed in the yard of the S street home. Amplified by this apparatus, it will be carried on telephone wires to the WCAP broadcasting station here and on another set of wires to the WEAF station in New York, where it will be further amplified.

'WE MUST HANG TOGETHER,' SAYS HARVEY, LEAVING ENGLAND

Retiring Ambassador Expresses "High Hopes" of Agreement On Reparations.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Nov. 3.—"If England and the United States do not hang together, there is nothing left to hope for," said George Harvey, retiring American Ambassador to England, just before he sailed for home on the Aquitania today. He said:

"I firmly believe that is more important than most of my countrymen believe it to be."

Discussing the reparations issue, he said: "The difficulty is to get an agreement among the governments, but I have high hopes."

Harvey told his friends in London yesterday that he anticipated no senatorial objection to the proposed treaty to curb rum running by British ships in American waters, as Secretary Hughes had assured him that the terms to which Foreign Secretary Curzon has agreed will be acceptable to the Senate, in his opinion.

After three cheers had been given for Harvey before his train left London T. P. O'Connor, whose seventy-fifth birthday Harvey helped celebrate the other night, led three for Mrs. Harvey.

The Ambassador and his wife went to the station from Marlborough House, where they had luncheon with Dowager Queen Alexandera. At the station Major General Sir John Hanbury Williams, marshal of the diplomatic corps, gave Harvey the King's farewell message and J. D. Monck delivered a similar message for Foreign Secretary Curzon.

FORD-FOR-PRESIDENT MEETING

Club to Be Organized Here Tonight at 3535 Pine.

Sheridan Carlisle, national committeeman for Missouri of the Farmer-Labor party, and T. J. Wolfley, a real estate man, will speak at a mass meeting at 8 o'clock tonight at Musicians' Club Hall, 3535 Pine boulevard, at which it is expected a Missouri "Ford-for-President" Club will be organized. Election of a permanent president and appointment of an organization committee of 100 is scheduled to follow organization.

Carlisle yesterday received a letter from Dr. William Dawe of Dearborn, Mich., pastor of Ford's church and head of the national "Ford-for-President" clubs, which states that the organization plans for Missouri have been approved by the national organization.

BONAR LAW'S BODY CREMATED

Ashes to Be Placed in Urn for Burial in Westminster Abbey.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The body of Andrew Bonar Law, who died on Tuesday, was cremated at Golder's Green this afternoon. Only those closely connected with the family were present for the service at the crematorium. After cremation, the ashes were placed in an urn for burial in Westminster Abbey next Monday.

The mourners at today's service included Bonar Law's two sons, his daughter, Lady Sykes, and her husband, Major-General Sir Frederick Sykes.

JUDGE GRAVES WILL NOT ENTER PRIMARY

But Refusal Seems to Leave Door Open to Convention Indorsement for Governorship.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 3.—Judge Graves of the Missouri Supreme Court last night announced he did not desire to be Governor of Missouri and that he would not be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor in the 1924 primary, but the Judge did not lock the door. He just pushed it to.

The inference to be drawn from the Judge's statements, which were in a letter to Nicholas M. Bell, veteran Democrat of St. Louis, is that if the Democrats in State convention should formally call upon him to take the nomination, he might reconsider.

About two months ago Congressman Hawes of St. Louis initiated something in the nature of a Statewide movement to induce Judge Graves to become a candidate. It was Hawes' theory that, if this could be brought about, nearly all the others seeking the nomination would withdraw. Judge Graves was noncommittal for so long that Bell wrote to him, urging him to become a candidate, but asking him what he intended to do.

"If the People So Desire."

"I will not become a candidate before the primary because I do not want the office," Judge Graves replied. "Nor am I convinced the office wants me, or that there is any special reason for me to become a candidate therefor. Your letter is a little broader than the usual letter I have been receiving," he continued, "in that you qualify by saying 'if the people of the State so desire.' Now, Colonel, let me cross that bridge when I come to it.

"I do not feel that I should become a candidate for Governor, and, as at present advised, I shall not become a candidate. It is not necessary for me to say what I would do 'if the people of the State so desire,' because that question is not now before me. The usual method of finding out the desire of the people is to go before the primary and, if successful there, to stand for election. At least that has been the method since the advent of the State primary. This method I do not care to use in determining the question. If I wanted the office I would do just as many others are doing—announce my candidacy before the primary."

Statement Significant.

Judge Graves' refusal to state that, under no circumstances, would he be a candidate is significant, in view of the fact that, at a meeting of the Democratic State Committee in St. Louis, Nov. 12, there will be considered a suggestion that a State convention of the party be called to indorse a candidate for Governor, many of the party leaders believing that the candidate receiving the indorsement would be virtually certain of nomination.

They also believe that weaker candidates would withdraw if one of their opponents received the indorsement of the convention.

COOLIDGE FAVORS CHANGE IN VETERANS' BUREAU CONTROL

Believes Inclusion in Department Under Cabinet Officer Would Be More Efficient.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—President Coolidge believes that incorporation of the Veterans' Bureau in one of the various departments of the Government might result in greater efficiency. At present the bureau is a separate and distinct agency in charge of a director responsible to the President.

Mr. Coolidge feels that the President in the course of his manifold duties cannot give as full attention to the operations of the bureau as would a Cabinet officer. Its inclusion in a department furthermore would, in his opinion, render the head of the department strictly responsible for all its activities. The plan for reorganization of the Government departments, worked out by a commission headed by Walter F. Brown, would place the Veterans' Bureau in a new department of public welfare.

ACTRESS' ENGAGEMENT DENIED

Conflicting Reports Over Eagles-Warren Betrothal.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Conflicting reports were current yesterday over the engagement of Jeanne Eagles to Whitney Warren Jr. At the office of Sam H. Harris, producer of "Rain," the play in which Miss Eagles stars, it was said that Warren, who is employed there, laughingly asked his friends at the office to congratulate him, but declined to answer when asked if the report was true.

At the home of Mrs. Julia Eagles, the mother of the actress, 168 East Sixty-first street, it was twice denied that any such engagement had been announced. At the house of Mrs. William Greenough, a sister of Mr. Warren, the same denial was made. Mr. Warren is the son of Whitney Warren, noted architect. In the war he served with the French forces and won the Croix de Guerre and Medaile Militaire. Warren is a member of the Knickerbocker, Racquet and Tennis and other clubs, and is related to many persons well known in New York and English society.

Taylor Hay Might Be More Popular in the Horse World if His First Name Were Timothy

Zev and My Own Have Race to Themselves, 1922 Records Show; Conqueror of Papyrus Favorite Latonia Championship May Prove a Trifle Too Far for Sinclair's Horse, Some Turfmen Think — In Memoriam the Only Outsider With Remote Chance to Cause an Upset.

The Championship Stakes Field

PostPos. Horse.	Weight.	Jockey.	Odds.	Owner.
1—In Memoriam	126	M. Garner	6-1	Carl Wiedemann
2—Zev	126	E. Sande	3-5	Rancocas Stable.
3—Rialto	126	F. Coltiletti	10-1	Green Tree Stable.
4—My Own	126	C. Kummer	8-5	Admiral Grayson
5—Taylor Hay	126	L. McDermott	20-1	C. W. Hay.

By Charles O'Connor,
Of the Cincinnati Times-Star Sport Staff.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 3.—The $50,000 Latonia championship which will decide the 3-year-old turf honors of the world, will be contested over the historic Latonia track this afternoon and in this rich Western fixture some of America's leading colts and geldings will parade to the post.

From present indications it appears that Zev and My Own have the running of this classic all to themselves, with In Memoriam, from Carl Wiedemann stable, the outsider to win, should one drop from the clouds and defeat the famous rivals.

Rialto, although his recent efforts in carrying weight over distance may compel the players to support him, will hardly keep pace with either Zev or My Own, while Taylor Hay is merely placed in the event to get fourth money and nominating fee should the track turn heavy and one of the other decide to withdraw his entry at the eleventh hour.

Zev, the odds-on choice, only once has been farther than a mile and a half and only that far on one occasion, when he won the Lawrence Realization Stakes in one and five-eighths miles. He is capable of going that distance and it is assumed could step the extra furlong as readily.

My Own has been over the championship distance of 1¾ miles when he won over Bunting over a good track in 2:57 1-5. The most sensational time turned in by the Grayson crack was when he won the Washington Handicap at Laurel, running 1¼ miles with weight up in 2:02 3-5 to defeat Spot Cash. It was upon this race that Col. Grayson challenged Sam Hildreth to a two-horse match event.

In Memoriam is given a chance, due to the fact that he ran a cracking race over the slow Hawthorne track, winning the Illinois Derby over General Thatcher, when he went a mile and a quarter with weight up in 2:04 1-5. In his latest works over a mile he worked that distance in 1:40 handily, and ran the last quarter faster than he completed the first.

Rialto was not regarded much of a horse in the early spring, about Kentucky Derby time, but the colt has filled out considerably since then and his last race at Laurel, when he ran 1¾ miles over a fast track to defeat Dunlin in 2:04 demonstrated that the Greentree stable star might go farther and win the big race.

Taylor Hay, thought to have a chance in the Kentucky Derby, faltered and as he is such a cheap horse with little or no class, he appears to be doomed to ignominy.

My Own Likely to Overhaul Zev at The Finish, if Sande Sets the Pace

Zev has won 10 out of 11 races this year, for a total of $240,408. His only defeat came in the Preakness stakes, but, following that, he went on to win such classics of the turf, among others, as the Kentucky Derby, the Belmont Stakes, the Lawrence Realization, and the international race, in which he beat England's derby winner.

Zev now heads the list as the biggest money winner in the history of the American turf, with a total of $265,072. If he wins tomorrow and earns another $50,000 he will head the list the world over with a grand total of $315,072.

My Own is unbeaten in six races this year, but his opportunities have been limited, so that he has earned only $24,140. He was selected as alternate to Zev in the international race, and over this fact a controversy arose which at times became highly acrimonious.

The meeting of Zev and My Own was made possible by the fact that Matt J. Winn, manager of the Kentucky Jockey Club, offered to increase the value of the Latonia championship stakes from $30,000 to about $60,000, with a guarantee of $50,000 to the winner.

Over a heavy track Zev looks like a sure winner, as he is a superior mud horse. Over a fast track, however, it is hard to make a choice.

Many horsemen are still unconvinced that Zev is a natural stayer or that he will show to the best advantage over a mile and three-quarters. The outcome really hinges on this, as there are few horses, if any, with greater speed.

Facts About Today's Championship Race

PLACE—Latonia race track, Latonia, Ky.

TIME—3:30 p. m., Central Standard time.

DISTANCE—One and three-quarters miles.

WEIGHT—126 pounds.

PURSE—$50,000 to the winner, in addition to a gold cup.

CONTESTANTS — Zev, by The Finn-Miss Kearney; owned by Harry F. Sinclair. Trainer, Sam Hildreth; jockey, Earl Sande. My Own, by King James-Bettie Landon, owned by Admiral Cary T. Grayson. Trainers, W. H. Brooks and W. P. Burch; jockey, Clarence Kummer. In Memoriam, by McGee-Enchantress II, owned by Carl Weidemann. Trainer, G. J. Gilmore; jockey, Marck Garner. Rialto, by Chicle and Matinee, owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney. Trainer, James Rowe Jr.; jockey, Frank Coltiletti. Taylor Hay, by Faux Col-Emma Star, owned by C. W. Hay. Trainer, C. W. Hay; jockey, Larry McDermott.

A great deal depends on the way in which the race is run. If Sande rates Zev off the early pace, he probably will go the distance. If he sets the pace and makes it too fast in the early part, My Own probably will pick him up through the last half mile.

Pikers and Drury Elevens Crippled For Today's Game

Washington Hospital Squad Includes Almost Enough Players to Make a Team.

The game between the Washington Pikers and Drury Panthers will monopolize the university football program here today. The game will be played at Francis Field at 2:30 p. m.

Neither team will have its full strength on the field. The visitors will be without the services of Becker, their regular quarterback, who was unable to make the trip from Springfield on account of an infected foot. Davis and Kerr, the regular tackles, were also kept at home on account of injuries. These two linemen weigh about 190 pounds each and their absence is expected to weaken the Panthers' forward wall considerably.

The Pikers have almost enough regulars on the hospital list to make up another team. Albin, Levy, Schnaus, Dugdale, Mitchell and Hersch are the linesmen who will either not be able to start the game or, if used at all, will play only for a short time. Walsh and Massengale are not in good enough condition to start, and Claypool, aother backfield star, is in a precarious condition.

Regular Kicker Absent.

In the absence of Levy, regular kicker, Weil, tackle, will handle the punts. It will be Weil's first appearance on the Pikeway as a punter.

Several of the recent additions to the Piker squad, including a few Medics, will be given an opportunity to show their quality today.

The lineup:

Drury.	Position.	Washington.
Wilson	L. E.	Goessling
Neale	L. T.	Weil
Darling	L. G.	Kurrus
Lockwood	C.	Cantwell (c)
Carter	R. G.	Neupert
Fryer	R. T.	Turner
Freund	R. E.	Hutton
Matthews (c)	L. H. B.	Floun
Freitzert	R. H. B.	Peterson
Hines	Q. B.	Lyle
Kuhn	F. B.	Thrasher

TENNIS PLAYERS UNDER ASSUMED NAMES SUBJECT OF ENGLISH INQUIRY

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The practice of entering lawn tennis tournaments under an assumed name has grown to such an extent that it has come to the offiical notice of the Lawn Tennis Association.

At the annual meeting in December a new rule will be recommended and probably adopted which suggests that particulars of assumed names be forwarded to the secretary by the committee of every open tournament in the country.

BILLY SHADE OUTPOINTS JACK BURKE AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Billy Shade, California light heavyweight, defeated Jack Burke of Pittsburg, former sparring partner of Jack Dempsey, in a bristling eight-round match, preliminary on the heavyweight card at Madison Square Garden, last night. Shade's aggressiveness earned him the judges' verdict, although Burke landed hard and effectively at times. Shade weighed 175½ and Burke 176½.

Ed Keeley of Bridgeport, Conn., won the judges' decision over Dan Bright of England in another eight-round bout. Bright weighed 209½ and Keeley 194 pounds.

NATIONAL LEAGUE MEETS AT CHICAGO ON DEC. 12

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The annual meeting of the National League will be held at Chicago, probably on Dec. 11, President John A. Heydler announced last night.

This will be the first annual session outside of New York in the history of the senior circuit. Its constitution provides that the meeting be held here, but President Heydler said that this could be waived without difficulty.

The joint major league meeting has been called by Commissioner Landis for Dec. 12 at Chicago.

Johnson Stopped In Final Round By Jack Renault

Iowan's Seconds Toss in Towel After He Is Floored Twice by Canadian.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Jack Renault, formerly of the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police, who always "get their man," got his, last night at Madison Square Garden. He knocked out Floyd Johnson, the young California giant, after two minutes and 29 seconds of the fifteenth round.

It was a whirlwind bout. Johnson had the lead in the early rounds. He staggered Renault with volleys of straight lefts and punished him severely about the body until the seventh. In that frame the Canadian began to use a right uppercut, the blow that eventually won the fight. From the seventh on it was just a question as to whether Johnson would be able to keep going and away from that murderous sock.

Johnson Rises Too Quickly.

When the fifteenth began it looked like an even fight, as the early lead of Johnson had about been balanced by Renault's rush in the closing rounds. Renault evaded Johnson's rushes, both trading heavy body punches for the first half of the round and then almost in midring landed an uppercut that dropped the Californian for a count of three. Had he known enough to stay down for the full count he might have lasted the round, but he arose too quickly and Renault was on him like a tiger. A heavy right swing sent Johnson down again.

No one expected to see him get up, but at the count of eight he staggered to his feet and stumbled across the ring. Just as he came within striking distance of Renault a towel was thrown in from his corner and the battle was over.

The attendance was given as 10,973 and the receipts as $50,683.

Schaefer Makes High Average in Billiard Tourney

Young Balkline Wizard Wins From Hagenlacher, 500 to 173.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Jake Schaefer, in five strokes, set the high average of the international 18.2 balk line billiard championship tournament last night. In administering a defeat to Eric Hagenlacher, the German, in the tenth game of the series at the Hotel Pennsylvania he set the mark at 41 8-12. The final score was 500 points to 173.

The playing of the young "wizard" was easily the best he has displayed. There were periods when his nursing was of feathery delicacy. On these occasions his control of the object balls on the lines afforded an inkling of the possible termination of the tournament.

It cannot be said that his gathering shots and his open table play were of as high quality. His best runs were 104, 91 and 85.

Schaefer in the tournament is still undefeated. Hagenlacher, considering his serious physical condition which will necessitate a surgical operation, was excellent. His average was 14 5-12 and his runs 103, 31 and 25. The German has held to his record of counting a run of more than 100 in every match.

Horemans Defeats Conti.

Edouard Horemans, the Belgian, won the afternoon game. He defeated Roger Conti, the Frenchman, 500 to 475.

Three matches will be played today. In the afternoon Horemans will meet Hagenlacher. This will be followed by Hoppe and Conti. At night Schaefer will encounter Cochran.

Score:

SCHAEFER—19, 82, 0, 1, 85, 104, 91, 28, 16, 6, 0, 68. Total 500 points. Average 41 8-12. High runs 104, 91 and 85.

HAGENLACHER—0, 25, 0, 0, 0, 103, 31, 0, 7, 4, 2, 1. Total 173 points. Average 14 5-12. High runs 103, 31 and 25.

HOREMANS—10, 7, 25, 10, 26, 33, 0, 4, 73, 1, 2, 3, 0, 27, 0, 60, 1, 1, 38. Total 500 points. Average 20 20-24. High runs 112, 73 and 64.

CONTI—13, 30, 0, 1, 18, 58, 0, 2, 2, 1, 48, 42, 60, 5, 3, 0, 0, 2, 8, 4, 126, 0, 0, 7. Total 475 points. Average 20 15-32. High runs 126, 60 and 58.

The standing to date in the world's 18.2 balkline billiard championship follows:

Player.	Won.	Lost.	High Run.	Grand Average.
Schaefer	3	0	169	27 15-55
Hoppe	2	1	170	21 54-56
Cochran	2	1	146	20 23-65
Hagenlacher	2	2	157	19 20-83
Horemans	1	2	241	23 52-58
Conti	0	4	126	15 25-92

BILLIKENS ARE SLIGHT FAVORITES IN GAME WITH ST. XAVIER TODAY

CINCINNATI, Nov. 3.—The St. Louis University Billikens will enter the game with the St. Xavier eleven today as slight favorites. The showing of Coach Savage's team against the Missouri Tigers was enough to stamp it as a great defensive combination, and despite a weakened backfield, the St. Louisans are expected to win by a close margin.

Both teams wear blue and white jerseys which may result in some confusion on forward passes, the main reliance of the St. Xavier team. St. Louis drilled intensively during the past week on a defense against passes and is confident it can stop the aerial attack of the Ohio eleven.

With Halfback Ramacciotti out of the game, St. Xavier will concentrate its defensive efforts on Fullback Bob Hannegan, who is returning to the game after an absence of two weeks.

Miller Huggins, manager of the world's champion New York Yanks, and Pat Moran, leader of the Reds, will attend the game.

OWNERS OF EPINARD TO PROPOSE MATCH RACE IF ZEV WINS TODAY

PARIS, Nov. 3.—An offer to match Epinard against Zev in a race to be run in France next April or May will be forwarded to Harry Sinclair by the French Jockey Club, should Zev defeat My Own and the other cracks at Latonia this afternoon.

The assent of Pierre Wertheimer, owner of Epinard, to the holding of a match race has already been obtained with the distance, stakes and other details to be discussed later.

The race, according to the present plan, would be run at the Longchamps course by the French society for the encouragement of horse racing under the auspices of the French Jockey Club.

MANION AND PENDLETON WIN PRO-AMATEUR EVENT

Jimmy Manion, Missouri and district golf champion, paired with Pendleton of Chicago yesterday in the amateur-professional best-ball tournament at St. Louis Country Club and won the event with a low ball of 67. Manion's score was 74 and Pendleton's 80.

T. J. Moss with 84 and Bill Mehlhorn with 74 were second with a best ball of 70. About 40 professionals and amateurs were entered.

Ty Cobb to Retire.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 3.—Tyrus Cobb, who for 18 years has batted his way into the circle of .300 hitters, has been quoted while visiting here in his home state, as saying that next year will probably be his last as an active player. Cobb expects to be in Atlanta three or four days.

Cleveland Leads Yeatman, 6-0, At the End of the First Half

Shellier Grab's Hannegan's Punt and Steps Across Goal Line for Touchdown in Second Period — Elevens Battle on a Muddy Field.

HIGH SCHOOL FIELD, Nov. 3.—High School Field was covered with mud as Yeatman and Cleveland High Schools took the field for the first game of the weekly Interscholastic League double-header today.

Cleveland ..	0	6

FIRST QUARTER.

Engler returned the Cleveland kick-off to his 45-yard line. Hannegan punted to Cleveland's 45-yard line. Cleveland hit the Yeatman line for first down three times. Leo broke through Yeatman's left tackle for 15 yards, putting the ball on Yeatman's 10-yard line. Yeatman then took the ball on downs. Hannegan kicked from behind his goal to the 22-yard line. Yeatman again took the ball on downs. Hannegan kicked to his 38-yard line. Cleveland failed to gain and Kohlbry's attempt to kick was blocked. Yeatman took the ball on its 35-yard line. Hannegan's punt was fumbled and Hannibal recovered from Yeatman. Hannegan punted to Kohlbry, who returned to midfield as the quarter ended. Score: Cleveland 0, Yeatman 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

Clevelnd lost seven yards on a fumble. Pickering, substituting for Kohlbry, punted 15 yards. Meyer fumbled and Kneirim recovered in midfiell for Cleveland. Cleveland kicked to Yeatman's 30-yard line. Time was frequently taken out to dig the mud out of the player's faces. Yeatman lost 15 yards when a pass from center to Hannegan on a kick formation stuck to the muddy ground. Hannegan kicked to his 30-yard line. Pickering kicked and Cleveland recovered the ball on the Yeatman 11-yard line. Cleveland made eight yards on three line plays, but failed to make first lown, and Yeatman took the oval on its three-yard line. Hannegan punted, but the ball went straight up in the air. Sheller caught the ball and stepped across the line for a touchdown. The attempt for added point failed. The score: Cleveland 6; Yeatman 0.

Cleveland kicke dto Yeatman's 40-yarad line. Cleveland was penalized for offside. Yeatman failed to gain. Hannegan kicked to the center of the field. Cleveland was penalized for offside. Yeatman intercepted the first forward pass of the game. A Yeatman pass was grounded. Eams dropped Hannegan's forward pass on the next play. The half ended with ball in midfield. Score: Cleveland 6; Yeatman 0.

Pimlico Futurity Draws 20 Entries

All Are Expected to Go to Post in $40,000 Two-Year-Old Racing Event.

By the Associated Press.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 3.—Barring scratches, 20 2-year-olds will race over the mile course this afternoon in the Pimlico futurity, the feature of today's card. With starting fees and the $40,000 added money the annual classic for juveniles will be worth over $50,000 to the winner, and as a result has attracted many notable youngsters. The race will be worth still another $5000 if the winner was bred in Maryland.

Chief among the favorites are A. H. Morris' Rustic, H. P. Whitney's Transmute, and Gonfalon and J. S. Stein's Lord Baltimore.

The other entries are: Beau Nash, Beau Butler, Rinkey, Fluvanna, Diogenes, Aga Khan, Nellie Morse, Fabian, Sunflag, Elvina, Fredericktown, Bob Tail, Senator Norris, Modest, Sun Pal and Sunspero.

UNBEATEN W. AND J. TEAM FACES LAFAYETTE TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—A football game as closely fought and thrilling as occurred when the teams met here last year is expected at the Polo Grounds this afternoon when Lafayette and Washington and Jefferson stage their second annual contest in this city.

Washington and Jefferson is undefeated and the Easterners hope to avenge their 1922 whipping by toppling the Presidents from their high position.

Famous Club Passes.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The Staten Island Cricket and Tennis Club, famous as the scene of many sporting events and associated with the names of many great American athletes, will soon pass out of existence after a life of 51 years. The property has been bought by the Staten Island Academy, which will use it as an athletic field for its pupils.

Last Night's Fights

NEW YORK.—Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, knocked out Floyd Johnson of Iowa in the last round of a terrific 15-round battle.

TORONTO.—Benny Gould of New York won the featherweight championship of Canada by defeating Curley Wilshur in 10 rounds.

KALAMAZOO, Mich.—Jack McDonald, Chicago, knocked out Sailor Bill Gagnon, Kalamazoo, heavyweight, in the third round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

SAN FRANCISCO. — Jack Silver, San Francisco lightweight, won an easy victory over Benny Berris of Chicago in four rounds.

Cornell Favored Over Dartmouth

Best Battle of the East Looked for When These Rivals for 1923 Honors Meet.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Further incursions on the ever dwindling group of undefeated football teams were in order today as the gridiron elevens of the East prepared to entertain fandom with the most attractive program thus far this year.

The scores can prevent two undefeated elevens from falling from grace. At Hanover, N. H., Dartmouth is to meet Cornell and at Syracuse, N. Y., Syracuse is to encounter Penna State, all with clean slates.

Other unconquered teams may pass from the classification before nightfall, in the opnion of football students who have taken note of the caliber of the Army team, which is to oppose undefeated Yale; the strength of the Lafayette team, which is to clash with undefeated Washington and Jefferson, and the determination of the Harvard eleven, which is to play undefeated Tufts.

West Virginia and Rutgers, the other members of the undefeated coterie, do not play today but will join in the elimination program on Tuesday when they meet at the Polo Grounds.

Big Attendance Expected.

Between 75,000 and 80,000 are expected at the Yale-Army games and capacity crowds of 15,000 to 25,000 are predicted at Hanover, Syracuse and the Polo Grounds.

Chief interest will center in the Dartmouth-Cornell battle, for whereas several of the unbeaten teams have been tied and others have yet to engage sturdy foes, the big Green team of Hanover and the big Red team of Ithaca have scored clean-cut victories and have numbered among their opponents teams of real worth, Dartmouth having defeated Vermont and Harvard and Cornell having trounced Williams and Colgate.

The majority of football experts have named Cornell as a slight favorite in this engagement, but assert Dartmouth will prove the strongest opponent the Ithacans have faced since Gilmore Dobie became Cornell's coach.

The game at New Haven is heralded as Yale's first real test. Both Harvard and Princeton have encountered defeats.

GODFREY KNOCKS OUT TATE IN SEVENTH ROUND

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—George Godfrey, negro heavyweight of Philadelphia, knocked out Bill Tate, Chicago negro, in the seventh round of the 10-round semifinal match of the heavyweight card at Madison Square Garden last night. Godfrey sent Tate down for the count of 10 with a terrific left hook 12 seconds before the end of the round. Until then the pair had staged a slow, uninteresting encounter. Godfrey weighed 225½ and Tate 233½.

Illinois-Chicago Game to Attract Crowd of 60,000

New Stadium Expected to House the Largest Attendance in Big Ten History.

By the Associated Press.

URBANA, Ill., Nov. 3.—Some 60,000 ardent followers of the pigskin will crowd into the new stadium of the University of Illinois to see Zuppke's machine come to grips with its ancient rival, Chicago, in a game that bids fair to be long remembered in the annuals of midwestern football.

Never before hereabouts has such a crowd attended a football contest. Only once before has it been equalled west of the Alleghaneys and that was when Ohio State opened the gates of her new bowl in 1922. Seldom, if ever, before have the two teams seemed so evenly matched.

Harold Grange, the Wheaton, Ill., boy, who has become Zuppke's ace, is depended upon to carry the heaviest load for his team. Together with that marvelous thrower of forward passes, Britton, the home fans are looking for an open attack that will carry the Midway team off its feet.

Harry Thomas Ineligible.

There is no way of discounting Chicago, however, despite a last minute ruling that removed Harry Thomas, star half back, from the lineup, because of ineligibility. John Thomas will be shifted from fullback to the vacant position, and Zorn, plunging flash, will assume the fullback's duities.

Capt. Jimmy Pyott will be on hand as will Dickson and Lampe.

More than 15,000 vociferous rooters from Chicago will be in the stands. They were arriving all during the night and this morning. All of the regulars who go to make up these two perfectly oiled machines will be in the game from the first blow of the whistle.

More than 1200 St. Louis rooters were on hand for the game.

MISSOURI M. A. WINS FROM KEMPER, 7 TO 6, IN CONFERENCE GAME

MEXICO, Mo., Nov. 3.—In a State Conference game, Missouri Military Academy yesterday put over a surprise by handing Kemper of Booneville a 7-6 defeat. Russell's 40-yard pass to Quire in the first half scored for Mexico and Duringer kicked a goal. In the second half Kemper rallied but after scoring a touchdown failed at goal. Last year, Kemper won, 90-0.

The lineups:

STRONG AGGIES ELEVEN TO OPPOSE REJUVENATED TIGER ELEVEN TODAY

By the Associated Press.

MANHATTAN, Kans., Nov. 3.—A Missouri University football team that shows its full strength for the first time this season in playing Nebraska's smashing team to a standstill last Saturday, and a Kansas Aggie squad that forced the University of Kansas players back near their goal posts, will clash here today.

Coach Bachman of the Aggies has been training his men with a view to developing a winning punch, which critics observed that they seemed to lack at critical junctures in the Jayhawker game. Although the Aggies are expected to use pass work freely, rooters are hoping for a repetition of brilliant running by Stark and Axline, who starred in the K. U. contest.

A Missouri team crippled in the early part of the season by injuries, but restored for the Nebraska game, will take the field today. Gwynn Henry, the new Tiger coach, has been working this week on an aerial attack, in which he has expressed confidence.

The probable lineup:

Missouri.	Pos.	Kansas Aggies.

Suits This Season Getting Away From Elaborate Effects

By ANNETTE BRADSHAW.

THE elaborately draped and trimmed suit of other seasons has given way to the suit that tends to simplicity of line and trimming.

Suits that come under this head may be said to be divided into two classes, those that are trimmed a little, and those that are severely plain.

Cinnamon colored woolen material is used for the skirt and jacket of the three-piece suit I have in mind, while a crepe blouse introduces soft shades of pumpkin and yellow and black. It is sewed to the skirt, while narrow strips of woolen cloth in cinnamon and the colors of the blouse drop down at the side.

The other one I am referring to is a stunning tailored model of fine black serge with narrow pin stripes in white. The short coat slopes in becomingly at the waist and flares ever so little about the hips. The tiny suede cloche has a ribbon pleated about the crown.

Becoming overblouses are made to be worn with these two-piece suits. Many of them are finished with straight-across necklines showing a deep hemstitched band. These come in dark colors and white It is a very good idea to have a dark blouse for general wear.

Sally Decides the Play Is Impossible

MOSTLY SALLY

By P. G. WODEHOUSE

A CONTINUED STORY

Mr. Bunbury sprang to his feet and waved his hands.

"For heaven's sake. Are we rehearsing, or is this a debating society? Miss Hobson, nothing is going to be written into anybody's part. Now are you satisfied?"

"She said" . . . .

"Oh, never mind," observed Miss Winch, equably. "It was only a random thought. Working for the good of the show all the time. Thats me."

"Now, sweetie!" pleaded Mr. Cracknell, emerging from the collar like a tortoise.

Miss Hobson reluctantly allowed herself to be reassured.

"Oh, well, that's all right then. But don't forget I know how to look after myself," she said stating a fact which was abundantly obvious to all who had the privilege of listening to her. "Any raw work, and out I walk so quick it'll make you giddy."

The Story—

SALLY NICHOLAS is a girl left a sum of money by her father, who was a widower. Her brother, Fillmore, a few years her senior, also shared under the will. Sally has just returned from Paris where she went for a vacation and is now in Detroit where Gerald Foster, to whom she is engaged, is overseeing the production of "The Primrose Way," a play he has written. An influenza epidemic has closed all of the theaters and the company is spending much of its time rehearsing. Sally has learned that her brother has put considerable of his money in the play, which to Sally looks like a "bloomer."

She retired, followed by Mr. Cracknell, and the wings swallowed her up.

"Shall I say my big speech now?" inquired Miss Winch over the footlights.

"Yes, yes! Get on with the rehearsal. We've wasted half the morning."

"Did you ring, madam?" said Miss Winch to Elsa, who had been reading her magazine placidly through the late scene.

The rehearsal proceeded, and Sally watched it with a sinking heart. It was all wrong. Novice as she was in things theatrical, she could see that. There was no doubt that Miss Hobson was superbly beautiful and would have shed luster on any part which involved the minimum of words and the maximum of clothes; but in the pivotal role of a serious play, her very physical attributes only served to emphasize and point her hopeless simplicity. Sally remembered Mr. Faucitt's story of the lady who got the bird at Wigan. She did not see how history could fail to repeat itself. The theatrical public of America will endure much from youth and beauty, but there is a limit.

A shrill, passionate cry from the front row, and Mr. Bunbury was on his feet again. Sally could not help wondering whether things were going particularly wrong today, or whether this was one of Mr. Bunbury's ordinary mornings.

"Miss Hobson!"

The act of the drama had just brought that emotional lady on left center and had taken her across to the desk which stood on the other side of the stage. The desk was an important feature of the play, for it symbolized the absorption in business which, exhibited by her husband, was rapidly breaking Miss Hobson's heart. He loved his desk better than his young wife, that was what it amounted to, and no wife can stand that sort of thing.

Makes It Known She Is the Star

"Oh, gee!" said Miss Hobson, ceasing to be the distressed wife and becoming the offended star. "What's it this time?"

"I suggested at the last rehearsal and at the rehearsal before and the rehearsal before that, that, on that line, you should pick up the paper-knife and toy negligently with it. You did it yesterday, and today you've forgotten it again."

"My God!" cried Miss Hobson, wounded to the quick. "If this don't beat everything! How the heck can I toy negligently with a paper-knife when there's no paper-knife for me to toy negligently with?"

"The paper-knife is on the desk."

"It's not on the desk."

"No paper-knife?"

"No paper-knife. And it's no good picking on me. I'm the star, not the assistant stage manager. If you're going to pick on anybody, pick on him."

The advice appeared to strike Mr. Bunbury as good. He threw back his head and bayed like a bloodhound.

There was a momentary pause, and then from the wings on the prompt side there shambled out a stout and shrinking figure, in whose hand was a script of the play and on whose face, lit up by the footlights, there shone a look of apprehension. It was Fillmore, the Man of Destiny.

Alas, poor Fillmore! He stood in the middle of the stage with the lightning of Mr. Bunbury's wrath playing about his defenseless head, and Sally, recovering from her first astonishment, sent a wave of sisterly commiseration floating across the theater to him. She did not often pity Fillmore. He was a nature which in the sunshine of prosperity had a tendency to grow a trifle lush; and such of the minor ills of life as had afflicted him during the past three years, had, she considered, been wholesome and educative and a matter not for concern but for congratulation. Unmoved, she had watched him through that lean period lunching on coffee and buckwheat cakes, and curbing from motives of economy a somewhat florid taste in dress. But this was different. This was tragedy. Somehow or other, blasting disaster must have smitten the Fillmore bank-roll, and he was back where he had started. His presence here this morning could mean nothing else.

Paper Knife Source of Great Trouble

She recalled his words at the breakfast table about financing the play. How like Fillmore to try to save his face for the moment with an outrageous bluff, though well aware that he would have to reveal the truth sooner or later. She realized how he must have felt when he had seen her at the hotel. Yes, she was sorry for Fillmore.

And, as she listened to the fervent eloquence of Mr. Bunbury, she perceived that she had every reason to be. Fillmore was having a bad time. One of the chief articles of faith in the creed of all theatrical producers is that if anything goes wrong it must be the fault of the assistant stage manager; and Mr. Bunbury was evidently orthodox in his views. He was showing oratorical gifts of no mean order. The paper-knife seemed to inspire him. Gradually, Sally began to get the feeling that this harmless, necessary stage-property was the source from which sprang most, if not all, of the trouble in the world. It had disappeared before. Now it had disappeared again. Could Mr. Bunbury go on struggling in a universe where this sort of thing happened? He seemed to doubt it. Being a red-blooded, one-hundred-per-cent American man, he would try hard, but it was a hundred to one shot that he would get through. He had asked for a paper-knife. There was no paper-knife. Why was there no paper-knife? Where was the paper-knife anyway?

"I assure you, Mr. Bunbury," bleated the unhappy Fillmore, obsequiously, "I placed it with the rest of the properties after the last rehearsal."

"You couldn't have."

"I assure you I did."

"And it walked away, I suppose," said Miss Hobson with cold scorn, pausing in the operation of brightening up her lower lip with a lip-stick.

A calm, clear voice spoke.

"It was taken away," said the calm, clear voice.

Miss Winch had added herself to the symposium. She stood beside Fillmore, chewing placidly. It took more than raised voices and gesticulating hands to disturb Miss Winch.

"Miss Hobson took it," she went on in her cosy, drawling voice. "I saw her."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

OH, the skyrocket makes quite a show when it goes, sizzes along through the air; it's as bright as the stars, it is redder than Mars, but the next time you look—it's not there! All the comets that ever have whizzed past this earth were not robed like the skyrocket is, not so fiery of hue, not so red or so blue, and they didn't make half such a whiz. When the skyrocket starts, anyone would believe that it meant to go over the moon; it sets out with a crash and it cuts such a dash, but it fizzles out awfully soon. There are folks just like that—you've observed them, perhaps. They start out with a bang and a crash; you can hear the glad sound for a hundred miles 'round; they are making a wonderful splash. They are putting on speed for the natives to see; they are making the home town look gay, for the stunts that they do they should land in "Who's Who," and the sky is their limit, they say. So the bystanders stare at the records they set; they are right in the midst of the throng, as they soar for a while in the very best style; but, alas! they don't last very long.

Maxims of a Modern Maid

THE principle of "safety first," as applied to courtship, demands that a young man ascertain at the earliest possible moment whether Sweetie believes in (1) keeping love letters, (2) keeping a diary, (3) keeping the peace.

• • •

Any girl who hasn't quite put her eyes out with last season's cloche hat—the one resting on the eyebrows—can finish the job with this autumn's poke, which casts its shadow before it even to the point of the chin.

• • •

If man learns nothing from experience it certainly isn't the fault of his wife. She is always ready to remind him that a week ago Thursday he forgot to bring home the breakfast bacon, that once last winter he left the furnace drawing overtime, and that he carried around her letter to Aunt Mary FOUR DAYS without mailing it—Aunt Mary noticed the postmark!

MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

Giving his life FOR the woman he loves makes man the hero of song and story; yet it's a simple business compared to that of the mute, inglorious husband who gives his life TO her every day in the year so long as they both live.

• • •

When a husband and wife make their marriage a joke, it's usually not they but their friends who see the humor of it.

• • •

Sometimes a cat says "Miau! Miau!" and sometimes she says "Of course, dear, you're too busy to spend time on anything so frivolous as clothes!"

• • •

The point of view of the modern cynic: When in doubt, believe the worst—but what of it?

• • •

"I am dying for love of you and you are dying for another!"

It is about that terse text of Kipling's that Ethel M. Kelley has written her superb new novel, "Heart's Blood" (Alfred A. Knopf). The story is for every woman who has ever thought, with emotion ranging from whimsical wonderment to angry despair, "WHY does HE care for HER—anybody can see that she doesn't give a snap of her finger for him!" And the story is for every woman who comes to know that love—man's love—is to the most selfish and the least scrupulous; that temperament, not character, is its magnet. We seem to have made the reading of Miss Kelley's book practically unanimous—at least, so far as one sex is concerned.

There are two women in "Heart's Blood"; Gwenny—loyal, tender, capable, conscientious, selfishly devoted—yes, young and lovely, too—and Lila, a purring, cuddling, scratching, kitten-woman, amoral—and adored. David, her husband, adores her; so does Jim, the man to whom she goes; so does Harry, the man who helps her to go; so does Gwenny herself. Gwenny has her own lovers, but she sums up the difference between herself and Lila.

"Elnathan Bassett tries to shoot himself when she said she wouldn't marry him. Well, I can't imagine either Peter Robbins or Alton Snow ever going without a meal on my account. But everything that happened around Lila was like fire works. Sometimes a spark flew off and burnt me some, but that was all."

It is the Lilas of life that make other women wonder why this business of choosing a mate should be left in the hands of the stupider sex!

• • •

Every man marries the wrong woman, unless the right woman—laboring under the handicaps of honesty, decency and modesty"—beats her to it. He can't choose rightly for himself. He chooses only surfaces, and he is the cheat of sex. Sometimes he is kidnaped in mid-career by the woman to whom he belongs by right of her love, and who, in addition to her character and her unselfish passion, has enough cleverness, enough magnetism, even enough unscrupulousness, to beat the Lila or Carmen type at her own game.

• • •

When Lila wins the marriage game and the man—still she remains Lila. As David, her husband complains: "She isn't treating me right, she doesn't stay at home and get my meals, or tell me where she goes when she isn't home. • • • Marriage is different from everything else. No matter how two people disagree with each other or get worked up about little things, why, they're married to each other just the same. If the biscuits aren't fit to eat, and the mantlepiece is streaked with dust—that isn't what makes the difference, you just have to bear and forbear. But Lila doesn't play fair with marriage, somehow. She cheats."

Does that prevent her from taking everything—and everybody—she wants? It does not. "I don't understand," says Lila, "people that let things get in their way." Does her uxorious spouse ever fall out of love with her? He does not. And all there is left for Gwenny, who loves David as neither he nor any other man deserves to be loved, is to write the story in her own heart's blood.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON

The Authority on Home Cooking

Conserving Late Fall Fruits and Vegetables.

EARLY October sees the perfection of the latest garden products that can be conserved for the winter. For instance, the very finest plums for jam, the small blue damsons, are the last to come to market, and they are so firm that they may be kept for a week or more, for a day when it is convenient to do them up.

The plums must be carefully washed, then put into the kettle with five pounds of sugar to a six-pound basket of the plums, with a half cupful of water to keep them from catching to the bottom of the kettle. Allow these ingredients to melt together before starting them to cook, then cook them down until a little of the juice jells on a cold plate. Then put them into pots and cover them down when they are cold. These plums are easy to preserve and are fine in flavor. If they are wanted to serve when cold with meat, it is easy to slip out the seeds of the quantity needed.

Then there are quinces. The largest and finest of these are late in making their appearance. Many women have trouble in making good quince preserves, but it is easy enough if you proceed in the following way:

Wash and wipe the perfect fruit, then with a stainless steel knife cut it in quarters. Peel the fruit, then cut out the cores deeply to get all of and hard pith or pebbly part. Throw the quarters into just enough cold water to cover them. Take all the parings and cores out them into a saucepan and cover them with cold water. Bring them slowly to the boiling point, add to them six quartered tart apples to a dozen quince peelings and when all is soft, strain the mass carefully through a piece of damp cheesecloth and a fine strainer.

To each pint of juice add three-quarters of a pint of sugar. Heat, melt, cook gently and skim well this mixture, then cook it until a little jells on a cold plate—around 20 minutes usually, though the amount of heat and the atmosphere make a difference. Pour the jelly into hot jelly glasses and let it stand for several hours to see how it jells. Should it be too thin, it will not harm it to turn it back and cook it over for a little while, but not too long or it is likely to be too hard and sugar off.

Now for the quinces themselves—place them on the fire and cook them in the plain water until they are tender when tried with a broom splint. Lift them out into a colander, then measure the juice and add three-quarters of a pint of sugar to each pint and a half of juice. Melt this mixture, boil it gently, skimming it carefully, and when the syrup is rich, add the quinces and let them cook for 10 or 15 minutes. Skim the preserves well, then put them into jars. Seal the jars and turn them upside down to cool. This is the old-fashioned way of preserving quinces and the results are always perfect if the steps taken are exactly those described.

Jelly made as described above is clear and fine in color and perfect in texture and flavor. Quinces may be stewed for sauce to eat at once or after being stewed down and well seasoned, they may be used in pie.

Hard green citron melons, which come late, make excellent sweet pickling material, just as nice and even nicer than watermelon rinds, and they are made in the same way.

Yourself

By J. J. MUNDY.

AS you look back you can think of many good opportunities of which you did not take advantage.

Most of your thoughts of the past are vain regrets.

But why not center on making opportunities for yourself NOW?

"Too old to make a start." Is your opinion so firmly intrenched in your subconscious mind that you cannot limber up your thoughts enough to see a good opportunity now when you get it?

You have passed up as good opportunities as you will have, just in the past two or three years, because you are past the prime of life.

You always say, now, "if I were a little younger."

Get out of the habit of thinking backward.

Do not waste time looking backward or waste precious moments given you to see great things you might accomplish in the future if you were really awake to the fact that it is not age that counts so much as attitude.

There are many ways in which you could better your position.

If you have your faculties and can eat three meals a day, you ought to have brains enough to take your opportunities as fast as they are presented.

The Rothschild Dynasty

The first of the Rothschilds to win fame as a financier was Mayer Amschel, the founder of the great banking dynasty, who died in a rambling old house, bearing the device of a red shield, in the ghetto of Frankfort-on-the-Main, 111 years ago. At the bedside of the venerable Jew were five sons, and these, with his dying breath, the father admonished to be loyal to the religion of Israel; to obey their mother and accept her advice on all matters; to intermarry and to remain united to the end. By obeying these rules, he whispered to them, they would become the richest men in the world. His prophecy came true, for the Rothschild dynasty of bankers controls billions of the world's capital.

What Mothers Should Know

By DR. CHARLOTTE C. WEST

WITHOUT memory—the capacity to remember—the mind is a blank. Cultivation of the mind depends upon one's ability to remember what we are taught, or read, or see. The tremendous scope of this faculty is so far from being appreciated that parents neglect one of the most important duties they owe their children by not seeing to it that the power to remember is cultivated to the utmost.

We are now living in an age wherein to succeed in life every faculty must be alert. Memory assists every other faculty, and in order that this may be so, the child's health, especially his special senses—hearing, sight and so on—must be as perfect as possible.

Memory varies greatly. Some persons are naturally endowed with it to an extraordinary extent, and it is subject to great modifications in the same person under different conditions of health and age.

That the memory is deeply influenced by the state of one's health cannot be repeated too often.

School children suffering from long-standing diseases of the nose and throat do very poorly in their studies because their sense of memory is impaired.

Nervous shocks weaken the memory. Alcohol and tobacco alter the character by lowering its moral tone; therefore alcohol in any form whatsoever should never be given to growing children.

How can you cultivate your child's memory?

First, remember that mental concentration forms the basis for a good memory. Make a practice of going over the day's happenings. Have your child recall, step by step, every trifle in the orderly manner of its occurrence.

Children with defective memories should read a paragraph slowly and deliberately, then recall as much of it as possible, repeating the process until it is memorized, if it takes a week.

HEROINES of HISTORY

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

By MARK STUYVESANT

The Rise and Fall of England's "Perdita."

IN the last half of the eighteenth century there seem to have been more fine painters working at the same time than during any other period of English history.

Among these great artists were Reynolds, Gainsborough, Hoppner, Cosway and Romney. And, strange as it may seem, they all chose as one of their most interesting subjects the same woman. The pictures of this beautiful creature may be seen bearing the title of "Perdita" in the Wallace collection in London.

How Mary Robinson—for that was her real name—came to be known as "Perdita" is interesting.

Mary Robinson was the daughter of the captain of a whaling ship—Capt. Darby. When Mary married a clerk in London in 1774, it was with great pride that her father spoke of his pretty daughter's brilliant match.

A Compelling Beauty.

A great gift of beauty was Mary Robinson's. Hers was the kind of compelling beauty which draws the attention of important men and women and leaves a name that demands historical mention.

After a very few years of residence in London, Mary Robinson's beauty became famous, and it was through her lovely appearance and charm that she won a place in society which otherwise she could not have taken.

But ill fortune fell upon the young couple, perhaps through Mary's extravagance, and her husband was condemned to prison for debt. His faithful wife accompanied him to the dreary place to which he was sent and there shared his imprisonment.

But her secluded life there was not spent idly. It was within the prison walls that Mary wrote verse—and very good verse. So charming were her lines that her poetry was published in two volumes soon after her release.

It was the kind Garrick, the greatest of English actors, who, seeing Mary's beauty and recognizing her genius, gave Mary her first engagement in the theater.

In the year 1779 Mary Robinson made her first appearance at the Drury Lane Theater. Three years later she scored a phenomenal success as Perdita in "The Winter's Tale." From that night she was known as Perdita.

Steal's Prince's Heart.

For as George Prince of Wales, afterward George IV of England, sat in a box and watched her he fell madly in love with Mary.

The Prince was only 18, but he was a Prince of the royal blood and accustomed to having his own way. So after a short but fervid correspondence with the famous actress, Mary Robinson, became his favorite.

The young Prince soon tired of her beauty and in two years Mary found herself in a precarious financial condition. For George not only deserted her but he dishonored the bond, payable the day he would become of age, which he had given her.

Naturally, the British public looked with contempt upon this woman who had once been their idol. For this reason Mary Robinson did not dare return to the stage.

She turned to her writing again and managed to support herself through the publication of her poems.

As she might have expected, Mary Robinson's life ended most unhappily. But as "Perdita" her beauty is preserved on many canvases, and it is because the greatest artists of England of her day painted the pictures, that she is remembered.

YOUR HEALTH

UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM NEW YORK

FORMER COMMISSIONER OF HEALTH, NEW YORK CITY

YESTERDAY I talked with an eminent physician whose life has been spent in a study of the effects of drugs on man and beast. He called my attention to the frightful mortality from organic heart disease. He says it is the chief cause of death in America and, in his opinion, the abuse of drugs is largely responsible.

Too often a person suffering from a slight headache or other transient pain will rush to the drug store to buy a tablet or powder of some sort. Without medical advice and without thought of what the habitual use of these dangerous drugs may do, the stuff is purchased on the slight provocation.

There can be no doubt that this practice is on the increase. That it may have an important bearing on the prevalence of heart disease is a reasonable theory.

You must realize that any sort of pain which suddenly disappears on the taking of a drug, must be controlled by some powerful brake-like action on the delicate organs of the body. Chief of these, to be thus affected, is the human heart.

I suppose one might rub liniments on his skin from youth to old age and have nothing worse happen than a thickening or inflammation of the hide. But you cannot continue to take a drug which depresses the action of the heart without ultimate and permanent injury to this vital organ.

You have seen a reckless automobile driver go around the corner on two wheels, at the last moment slamming on the brake, fixing the wheels, and tearing half an inch of rubber off the lace of the tires. You say to yourself "That man should be sent to jail!

Isn't it much the same thing to abuse the body, cause it to pain somewhere and then by the reckless use of an anodyne, to put a brake on the heart? If you do this you are as bad as the reckless motor driver. Indeed you are worse. He is wearing out worthless rubber—you are wearing out the machine without which you cannot live.

When you have habitual or periodical pain, consult your doctor. If it is a headache, perhaps your eyes are out of order. The need of glasses may cause intense pain in head and shoulders.

Bad teeth, bad tonsils, intestinal disturbance or stomach neglect, kidney and liver trouble—there are many, many causes for pain.

The point I want to make is this: Find the cause of your trouble and get rid of it by appropriate treatment. Don't depend on drugs and anodynes. Get at the root of your misery and remove it.

If everybody would do this, organic heart disease would specially decrease.

Children's Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess

A little thought of others' feelings
Should guide us all in all our dealings.
—Blacky the Crow.

THE little people of the Green Forest gathered around Old Mr. Buzzard's favorite tall, dead tree and stared up at a tiny speck high up in the blue, blue sky.

"It is Old Mr. Buzzard," declared one.

"No it isn't, it is that man-bird," declared another. "Old Mr. Buzzard has flown clear out of sight."

"No such thing. It is the man-bird which has flown out of sight," insisted another.

And so they argued and argued, watching the one black speck in the blue, blue sky which they could see. Presently that black speck grew larger. Larger and larger it grew. It was coming down.

"What did I tell you" cried one. "It is Old Mr. Buzzard and he is coming down. That man-bird isn't anywhere to be seen, but it is up there somewhere in the blue, blue sky, for I can still hear the noise it makes."

It was true. Old Mr. Buzzard could be clearly seen now, but the man-bird could not be seen, although it could still be heard. Blacky the Crow looked around at all the other little people. "Old Mr. Buzzard has left the race," said he. "I have an idea he knew he would lose it before he started. He went because we made so much fun of him. His pride was hurt, for you know he was very proud of his flying. His pride is still more hurt now. It is going to be very hard for him to come back and face us. He thinks we'll make fun of him. Instead of that, let's give him a great welcome. Let's tell him that he is just what he is, the most wonderful flyer in the Green Forest."

Poor Old Mr. Buzzard! He was a long time coming down. You see, he couldn't bear to think of facing all his neighbors down there. He was tempted not to go back at all, but to start at once on his long journey to the Sunny South for the winter. But he knew that if he did this they would all remember it, and he wouldn't feel like coming back again in the spring. So at last he headed straight for his favorite tall, dead tree in the Green Forest. He could see all the little people waiting for him down there. There wasn't a sound until he had alighted on that tree.

"Hurrah for Old Mr. Buzzard!" cried Blacky the Crow. And all the others joined with him.

Old Mr. Buzzard didn't know

"Hurrah for Old Mr. Buzzard!" cried Blacky the Crow, and all the others joined with him.

what to make of it. He blinked his eyes and looked as if he thought his ears must have fooled him.

"Hurrah for Old Mr. Buzzard, the greatest flyer in all the Green Forest!" shouted Blacky the Crow, and as before, all the others joined with him.

Old Mr. Buzzard began to hold up his head. It had sounded as if Blacky meant just what he had said. Old Mr. Buzzard held his head still higher. Then all his neighbors, talking all at once, began to tell him that never in their lives had they seen such flying, and how proud they were to have such a wonderful flyer in the Green Forest. The best part of it was that Old Mr. Buzzard knew that they meant just what they said. When at last they had all departed and left him alone, Old Mr. Buzzard settled himself to rest. His pride had been restored. He couldn't beat the man-bird, but he was still the best flyer among the birds.

"Ah'll never boast again," said Old Mr. Buzzard. "No, sub, Ah'll never boast again." And this was a very wise decision on the part of Old Mr. Buzzard.

CITY SANITARIUM PATIENT BEATEN; TWO ATTENDANTS ARE UNDER ARREST

William Steffen, 48, Is in Serious Condition After an Alleged Unprovoked Attack in Ward, Following the Disappearance of Keys Carried by Guards.

ASSAILANTS SAID TO HAVE BEEN DRINKING

After Officials Succeed in Rescuing Victim, Employes Jailed on Complaint of Superintendent on Assault to Kill Charge.

William Steffen, 48 years old, a patient in the City Sanitarium, was beaten by two attendants yesterday afternoon, so severely that he was in a serious condition last night in the hospital attached to the institution. The attendants, Thomas G. McAuliffe and Cornelius E. McCalvey, were arrested on complaint of Dr. Charles H. Shumaker, superintendent.

Dr. Shumaker said that the attendants were under the influence of liquor, that their attack on Steffen appeared to have been unprovoked, and that he would give all the assistance in his power in prosecuting them. At the Magnolia Avenue Police Station, a charge of assault with intent to kill was entered against them.

Assistant's Orders Ignored.

The supervisor of attendants received a telephone call at 4 p. m. from a patient in one of the wards, who said that two attendants were beating a patient. The assistant superintendent, Dr. Harry Pecaut, went to the ward with the supervisor, and found Steffen lying on a bench, trying vainly to shield himself from the blows of the two men who beat over him. The men paid no attention to orders shouted to them by the two officials, it is said, and the assistant superintendent and supervisor then pulled them away by main force.

They found Steffen in a pitiable state, his face bruised and bleeding, his eyes blackened, and the upper part of his body bruised. He is of medium size, thin and rather undernourished.

Story Told by Patients.

Other patients related that the beating went on several minutes before help was called. They said the attendants were angry because one of them had laid down a key which a patient, not Steffen, had picked up. They seemed to think Steffen had it, and when he could tell them nothing about it, they attacked him. The patient who had the key, on seeing this, threw the key out of a window, and it was found outside later.

The ward in which the assault occurred is one for patients whose mental maladies are of a mild character, as distinguished from violent insanity. The superintendent still he considered the patients, though not mentally sound, to be reliable witnesses as to what they saw before the two officials of the institution arrived.

Steffen formerly lived at 270[illegible] Shenandoah avenue. He has been a patient in the Sanitarium four times, beginning in 1915, and his present stay there began last March.

25 PERSONS ATTEND MEETING FOR FORD-FOR-PRESIDENT CLU

Missouri Organization Formed Here With Election of Sheridan Carlisle as President.

A Missouri "Ford-for-President Club was organized last night by [illegible] persons who attended a meeting at 3535 Pine boulevard, called by Sheridan Carlisle, an attorney, Missouri National Committeeman of the Farmer-Labor party. He was elected president and then appointed W. Murrell, Webster Groves, an insurance man, as temporary secretary, and T. J. Wolfley, real estate man, as temporary treasurer. Carlisle said 75 other persons had signed membership cards.

Belief that Ford would "sweep the country" if nominated by a [illegible] party was expressed by Carlisle, who added that he expects formation of a third party soon. A membership fee of 25 cents was voted. A number of those present purchased membership cards for resale to others. The club was announced as a nonpartisan organization. Temporary headquarters are 406 Central National Bank Building.
